Detroit Won
Had England Done It?
Planes Change War
Mussolini at the Phone

By Arthur Brisbane

First, you will want to know that Detroit won the World Series, 4 to 3.

Second in importance, for most of us, comes the news that the League of Nations "brands Italy as the aggressor" in the Ethiopian war. In attacking Ethiopia, member of the League, Mussolini attacked all members of the League, says the decision.

Does anybody believe that if England, instead of Italy, had sent a punishing and incidentally land-grabbing expedition into Ethiopia, that the League would have taken such action? What did the League do when Japan walked into Manchuria and took that desirable territory, with its millions of inhabitants?

The French, good bargainers, joining England in denunciation of Italy, propose that British and French "naval, army and air forces" be made an "international army," under League orders, to enforce "sanctions" against ANY nation that might attack a neighbor.

France, of course, means GERMANY. England has had as much German war as she needs, for a while.

Emperor Selasse "ridicules" the taking of Aduwa because the city was undefended. It was; so is every Ethiopian city; also, for that matter, London, Paris, New York, all undefended against AIRPLANE ATTACK.

Aduwa is no more "defenceless" now than she was when Italians were defeated and humiliated there forty years ago. There is a lesson for wise ones that underestimate the airplane in war, some in our army and navy included.

It will interest England to know that Italian pilots are good marksmen. Aduwa reports few buildings injured, except the governor's palace. Changed to "except Buckingham Palace," that would have an unpleasant sound.

The first Italian officer killed in the storming of Aduwa was buried with full military honors on a high hilltop nearby. Unfortunately, from the bottom of the grave, you cannot enjoy the view.

Something new in war is Mussolini sitting in his office at the Palazzo Venezie in Rome, talking on a short-wave radio telephone with General Emilio De Bono, his commander-in-chief in Ethiopia. Mussolini should have been photographed as he received the message:

"We have just taken Aduwa, where eight thousand of our Colonial troops, six thousand of our Italian troops were killed forty years ago and Italy humiliated."

That was a proud moment in Mussolini's life.

After Mussolini gets the news by radio-telephone, he telephones it to the Italian King's summer residence.

Italy's "working soldiers," following fighting troops, are building modern roads with rock foundation between conquered Aduwa and Adigrat, roads strong enough to support heavy army trucks and tanks.

These roads will be cherished by Ethiopians later when they begin buying second-hand, and then new automobiles. They will be probably the first good roads anywhere in Ethiopia. The streets of Addis Ababa are of mud. Mussolini is following the road building program of his predecessor, Julius Caesar, and other Romans.

Diplomatic representatives of the various countries in Addis Ababa ask this government to prevent Mussolini from bombing the town and them.

The governments of those diplomatic gentlemen, having taken steps against Italy in defense of Ethiopia, should ask their own countries to protect Addis Ababa from bombs.

It is not this country's business to regulate an African war that it did not start. The last war was enough.

London reports one foreign newspaper man in Addis Ababa killed, others severely beaten by a mob of Ethiopians "staging an anti-foreign demonstration."

Diplomats at Addis Ababa request Mussolini, "Please not to drop any bombs on this town while we are here." The wise thing would be for them to move, regardless of Mussolini bombs.

Natives of Ethiopia, according to a scientific observer, extremely temperamental, may become more and more temperamental as the airplane war progresses.

WIFE ADMITS 2 ARSENIC KILLINGS

By Associated Press

Mineola, N. Y., Oct. 8—A confession which allegedly clears up two mysterious poison slayings was made today by Mrs. John Creighton, 36-year-old housewife, District Attorney Martin W. Littleton of Nassau County announced.

After a night of steady questioning, Mrs. Creighton admitted, Littleton said, that she aided Everett R. Applegate, the alleged betrayer of her 15-year-old daughter, in poisoning Mrs. Applegate, who died September 27.

She also confessed, the district attorney said, that 12 years ago she poisoned her brother, Charles R. Avery, in ewark, N. J., because he was "a cripple and a burden to the family."

WIFE TOO FAT

She was tried for that crime and acquitted.

Mrs. Creighton disclosed in her confession, Littleton announced, that Applegate had planned to kill his wife because she was too fat and because she knew of his relations with 15-year-old Ruth Creighton.

The girl and her parents shared the same house with the Applegates in Baldwin, L. I.

Applegate, held on a statutory charge, has not admitted any part in the poisoning, Littleton said:

Mrs. Creighton was quoted by the district attorney as saying Applegate had been giving doses of arsenic to his wife for some time previous to the day she died.

Mrs. Applegate, who at one time weighed 260 pounds, had reduced 40 pounds shortly before her death.

WANTED GIRL TO WED

Mrs. Creighton told her questioners, Littleton said, that Applegate learned of her connection with the death of her brother and threatened to expose her if she did not aid him in causing his wife's death.

In addition, she said, she wanted Applegate free to marry her daughter.

On September 26, the day before Mrs. Applegate died, Mrs. Creighton mixed an eggnog for her, the confession said, and Applegate then dropped some powder into it before taking it to his wife.

That night, Littleton said, Mrs. Creighton confessed, she herself put a "large dose" of arsenic in a glass of milk and gave it to Mrs. Applegate.

Mrs. Applegate died the next day and her death was at first attributed to a heart attack.

Relief Breaks Down

Famine Threatens Needy Families

(This is the fourth in a series on the crisis in federal relief in Massachusetts.)

By JOHN H. NOONAN and ALAN C. FRAZER
(Copyright, 1935, by the Boston Evening American)

This newspaper stated last Friday that the federal relief program had broken down in Massachusetts, due to the callousness of politicians, the blindness and inhumanity of social service "experts," and the hair-splitting of auditors connected with the comptroller-ceneral's department.

Now, after four days, this breakdown is admitted by Federal officials of the ERA and WPA.

These officials—far less optimistic than they were a week ago about the prospects of getting this state's share of WPA funds by November 1—are appealing to Washington in desperation for greater speed and efficiency

It is now admitted publicly by Federal officials that October is one of the leanest months experienced by the needy families of Massachusetts in evera years.

In spite of the five-billion-dollar fund at Washington, ERA and WPA administrators in the various districts of the state, are preparing to shove thousands, now receiving Federal relief, back on to the welfare rolls of the cities and towns.

Massachusetts municipalities face the possibility of having to make a wild scamble for funds to reestablish the dole system on a large scale.

There is still a chance that the situation will be saved. With a five billion dollar fund at their disposal—a share of it already "earmarked" for Massachusetts—Washington officials certainly have it in their power to do something, if politics and red tape can be forgotten.

2-YEAR SNOW SECRETS TO BE BARED

By JAMES J. SMITH
Copyright, 1935, by the Boston Evening American

Two years of mystery surrounding municipal expenditures in Boston snow removal contracts appeared ready for solution today.

Charles L. Manser, onetime special investigator for the Boston Finance Commission, has been secretly summoned by that body to tell of his findings, the Boston Evening American learned exclusively.

Manser will answer the summons tomorrow armed with a mass of information compiled during an exhaustive survey of snow removal contracts of the past two winters.

At least four contracting firms figured in the investigation. They include the Capitol Construction Company of East Boston, Marinucci Brothers of Dorchester, Edward J. McHugh Company of East Boston, and the Alvin Pieczkowski contracting firm of West Roxbury.

INQUIRY VOTED

At the office of the Finance Commission today it was admitted that a summons had been served on Manser today after a 3 to 2 vote by the commission members.

It was understood that Manser will insist, when he appears before the Finance Commission that the hearing given him be public and that if the commission insists upon a private hearing he will refuse to testify.

Manser was appointed a special investigator by the commission on June 7 last and terminated his connection about five weeks later. At that time he was classified as an unrewarded political supporter of Mayor Mansfield.

His first and only assignment with the commission was the probe of all circumstances surrounding the award of snow removal contracts under the Mansfield administration.

DOUBLE SERVICE TRUCKS

Among the allegations in Manser's report to the commission are that certain contractors used trucks for snow removal when they were supposedly employed in removing ashes and garbage and collected from the city for both jobs during the same period.

That certain inspectors employed in tabulating trucks at dumping spots were paid to check loads out, only to have them pass along without dumping and return to the spot within fiv eminutes to be credited as another load.

That the books of one contracting concern were reported stolen when the Finance Commission demanded they be produced for inspection, and that despite the claim of the contractor that the theft had been repored o police no record of such heft appeared in police files.

ETHIOPIA OUSTS ITALY'S ENVOY

London, Oct. 8 — The Addis Ababa correspondent of Reuters (British) and Havas (French) news agencies reported today that the Ethiopian government had ordered its charge d'affairs in Rome to ask for his passports and leave Italy.

By Associated Press

Geneva, Oct. 8 The League of Nations was informed today that the Ethiopian government has asked the Italian minister to Addis Ababa and his entire staff to leave Ethiopia immediately.

The request for the Italian envoy's withdrawal was announced in a communication to the League signed by Tecle Hawariate, the Ethiopian delegate.

As reason for the ejection of the minister was given an alleged misuse of the Italian legation's radio station for "the creation of internal disorders" in the country to which he is accredited.

"PROMISE BROKEN"

"Despite the unprecedented aggression on the part of Italy, of which Ethiopia has been a victim," said Hawariate's communication, "and the unjust war which, without any declaration or justifi-

London, Oct. 8 (AP)—An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Addis Ababa said today northern Ethiopian chieftains were moving with large forces towards Italy's colony of Eritrea and that one of them had penetrated 50 miles inside of the border with 15,000 men.

London, Oct. 8 (INS)—Ethiopian troops closed in on Aduwa from three sectors today and "massacred" Italians occupying the town, according to a Central News dispatch received here today.

Central News said the report was "unconfirmed."

Rome, Oct. 8 — Italy's three columns on the northern front in Ethiopia may move forward again at noon today, the Asmara, Eritrea, correspondent of the newspaper Il Piccolo reported.

He telegraphed the right column would move toward Aksum and that on the left strong outposts of tanks and artillery were posted for protection against any flank attacks.

The general forward movement, the correspondent said, would be slightly west of south, toward the Taccaze river.

Ethiopians Set to Battle; Americans Flee Capital

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER

(Copyright, 1935, By International News Service)

Addis Ababa, Oct. 8—Emperor Haile Selassie today ordered his Ethiopian armies, which until now had been kept back from the borders, to proceed to the front and meet the invading Italians.

The Negus ordered an end to the evacuation of border territory, which until now had been a main phase of the Ethiopian defense strategy, its object being to draw the Italians well into the Ethiopian lines.

In accordance with his new plan to put up determined resistance to the Italian invaders, the Emperor ordered Ras Kassa, commander-in-chief of the Ethiopian northern front, to push northward and meet the Italians with his 75,000 men.

Meanwhile, as Mussolini's airplanes ravaged the front—although they have not yet struck Addis Ababa—120 refugees, including a score of Americans, raced death to the border in a new train which, traveling day and night, is expected to reach Djibouti in 23 hours.

As a result, the view is gaining ground that he intends to stay until he is expelled by Emperor Haile Selassie. The emperor, in turn, is resolved not to give Premier Mussolini even this much ground for claiming Ethiopian aggression.

The Italian push from Assab, in Southern Eritrea, although an offensive there on a large scale has not yet been reported, may come momentarily, and it is anticipated that the first move in that sector will be to cut the railroad.

Hence, scores crowded the railroad station today in a vain effort to find seats in the packed train.

The disorder became so great that the French director of the railway ordered the locomotive uncoupled and threatened not to let the train leave unless the platform were cleared of the hystrical throng.

Italians here enjoy exemplary treatment.

Reports from Rome, of anti-foreign demonstrations in Addis Ababa, one of which said foreign journalists had been beaten, are pure fiction.

Foreigners are accorded at least as much courtesy here as in any European country.

Under the new scheme of attack, Ras Kassa left with his army immediately, starting from Debra Tabor, east of Lake Tsama, for the Takazze-Setit river. This river is of great strategic importance in northwestern Ethiopia.

It flows north and west. In Ethiopia, where it is called the Aakazze, it flows north to the Eritrean border, providing a valley through which Italians could penetrate far into the country.

On hitting the border, the river flows westward, marking the Eritrean-Ethiopian frontier at this point.

The Ethiopians claim that whatever Ethiopian towns were taken in the north by the Italians were captured without resistance, the Negus having ordered his defending forces to withdraw. Now, he believes, is the time to begin the real fighting.

The policy will be followed on all fronts, although in Ogaden province, to the south, the Italians now must cover some few miles before meeting organized Ethiopian forces.

Thirty thousand tribesmen were ordered to leave today to reinforce 15,000 guarding the route from Mt. Mussa Ali in northeastern Ethiopia to the interior.

Thirty thousand more were headed for this region from Auusa province, not far from the mountain, under the command of Sultan Mohammed Yagoua.

(Picture from Hearst Metrotone News.)

It's all in fun—and there isn't any bayonet on the gun, anyhow—but this recent picture from Addis Ababa shows how war-minded is the entire population of the Ethiopian capital. A smiling native girl is offering herself as mock target for the stalwart soldier with the brand new rifle and well-stuffed cartridge belt. The by-play is watched by an interested audience. And other weapons are in evidence.

Native Soldiers Deserting Italian Ranks, Is Report

By JAMES A. MILLS

Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press

Addis Ababa, Oct. 8—An Ethiopian official said today the Italian army on the northern front was suffering wholesale desertions of its native soldiers.

"Information received from the north shows that Ethiopians serving in the Italian army are deserting en masse," the official asserted.

"Fifty armed Eritreans under the command of an important chief arrived at Makale, south of Aduwa, with Italian machine guns. In the Agame region, 200 armed Eritreans surrendered to authorities."

Ethiopian warriors, meanwhile, massed in the hills south of Aduwa, confronting the northern Fascist force.

Whether the great concentration augured the first major pitched battle of the six-day campaign or whether the Ethiopians would decide upon harrying tactics was unknown.

A government spokesman said he had no news of the reported fall of Askum, on the northern front, and had not been advised of fighting today on any front.

ALL UP TO LEAGUE

Concerning rumors that Premier Mussolini had made peace proposals to Emperor Haile Selassie, the spokesman said:

"The government has not received such, and considers that any overtures must be made through the League, which is handling the entire situation."

Ethiopian advices from the northern front indicated that the morale of the front line remained excellent and that the warriors were not dismayed by the loss of the city where they routed Italians 40 years ago.

Ethiopian sources insisted, that owing to the difficult nature of the country, the Italian artillery and infantry from the home country had been able to constitute little more than auxiliary services for the hardened native Eritrean troops under the Italian banner.

Military observed recognized the Italian commanders were making their advance steadily, but without rushing, adopting the wise tactics of consolidating every yard of territory gained.

From the southern front came reports of the Italian advance from Italian Somaliland into the forbidding ground of the Ogaden province desert.

Only advance guards of the Fascist forces have succeeded in penetrating the waterless plateaux of this part of Ethiopia, advices said.

Ras Desta Damtou, son-in-law of the emperor, was appointed commander of the southern forces. He arranged to leave for Ogaden to take over the leadership of the warriors there totaling 250,000.

The emperor drew up his resistance in the very heart of the empire at Dessye, on the great central plateau, where Crown Prince Asfau has his headquarters with 100,000 warriors.

The Italian troops, consolidating their positions in the Aduwa and Adigrat sectors, still had more than 200 miles to go through narrow, hazardous mountain passes before reaching this center of Ethiopian troop concentrations.

MORE LEGIONS WAIT

In the extreme northwest, Dedjazmatch Ayaleu faced the Italians with 100,000 soldiers along the Setit river in Walkait Province.

In the northeast, where the Ethiopians concentrated beyond the lofty position of Adigart, stood another army of 200,000 under Ras Seyoum, commander of all the northern troops.

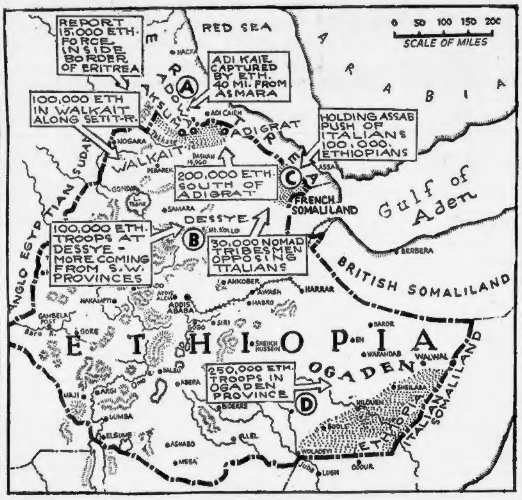
Farther to the northwest was Dedjazmatch Haile Salassie, son-in-law of the emperor, with 50,000 troops.

Two hundred miles east of Dessye, beyond the barren Danakil desert and strung along the Eritrean border facing Mussolini's forces, were 30,000 Musselman nomad tribesmen.

They are nominally under the command of the governor of the province, once the chief champion of former Emperor Lij Yassu, whom Haile Selassie deposed in 1916 and who is still held a prisoner.

For a decade, the loyalty of this Mohammedan chief to the present emperor has been considered most doubtful. Since the Italian advance, Ethiopian sources said he has shown himself to be one of Haile Selassie's most loyal supporters.

Southeast of the Danakil in the Aussa oasis opposing the Italians based at Assab are 100,000 hardened Ethiopian troops.



Map-diagram shows how Ethiopian warriors are rallying by ten and hundreds of thousands to oppose invading Italian columns on three principal fighting fronts. To the north, Haile Selassie's tribesmen are in heavy concentration in the Aksum, Aduwa, Adigrat district (A). Reserves are gathering at Dessys (B), capital of the rich interior province of the Ethiopian crown prince. In the northeast, opposing the Italian advance from Assab (C) toward the Ethiopian railroad line, are nomadic hill and desert tribes, constituting a dangerous menace to Il Duces' infantry. To the southeast, in Ogaden (D), a great army of 250,000 Ethiopians, under skilled leadership of a veteran Turkish general, is preparing to come to grips with invaders from Italian Somaliland.

"We'll Use Youth of Italy," Duce Tells Fascist Officers

By HUDSON HAWLEY

International News Service Staff Correspondent

Rome, Oct. 8—Premier Mussolini's private short-wave radio today flashed direct from the North Ethiopian war front news of a crushing "psychological" blow against Abyssinia—the capture of the "Holy City" of Aksum, 12 miles west of Aduwa.

Capture of Sheba's ancient capital, where emperors have been crowned for thousands of years, and where a church is traditionally said to house the original Ark of the Covenant, stretches the Italian military positions over a 70-mile front.

The line, in which the troops are now consolidating their posts before advancing on the long campaign to the south, curves through the mountains and ravines from Aksum through Aduwa and Adigrat, swinging southward towards Makale.

Aksum has a population of only 2000, but its capture is felt by Italy to be a shock to Ethiopian morale because the hamlet is the Mecca of their Coptic faith.

Before word of the fall of Aksum was communicated to the populace, still celebrating Sunday's investiture of Aduwa, Premier Mussolini made his first public appearance since the mobilization of 20,000,000 Fascists heralded the opening of the war.

Standing on the balcony of the Palazzo Venezia, his headquarters, looking down over the massed ranks of 10,000 Fascist officers in Piazza Venezia, Il Duce peered into the distant military future of Fascist youth.

"You have responsibility over 1,200,000 young Fascists," Mussolini said, referring to the fact that the officers command the Avanguardisti, which gives the youths their preliminary military training.

"Make of them a tempered poniard—at some opportune time they shall be used!"

An official communique described digging-in operations and reported capture of "hundreds of prisoners and much war materials."

THE EVILS OF BUREAUCRACY

"No method of procedure has ever been devised by which liberty could be divorced from local self-government.

"No plan of centralization has ever been adopted which did not result in bureaucracy, tyranny, inflexibility, reaction and decline.

"Of all forms of government, those administered by bureaus are about the least satisfactory to an enlightened and progressive people. Being irresponsible they become autocratic, and being autocratic, they resist all development.

"Unless bureaucracy is constantly resisted it BREAKS DOWN REPRESENTATIVE GOVERNMENT and OVERWHELMS DEMOCRACY.

"It is THE ONE ELEMENT in our institutions that sets up the pretense of having AUTHORITY OVER EVERYBODY and being RESPONSIBLE TO NOBODY."

gratefully accepted. I hope I shall have the pleasure of hearing from you soon.

Yours sincerely,
ALBA SCATTON.

* * *

Los Angeles, Cal., October 3, 1935.

MISS ALBA SCATTON,
519 Montooth Street,
Pittsburgh, Pa.

My dear young lady:

There is no such thing and can be no such thing as government control of NEWSPAPERS.

There may be and there is government control of publications, including daily papers.

But daily papers cease to be NEWSPAPERS as soon as they come under governmental control.

Please observe Germany and Russia and Italy, and all the nations where governments control the daily press.

Papers in such countries print only what the government wants them to print.

The government suppresses anything which it does not want printed; and if the editor prints anything which the government does not approve, he goes to jail, and the paper is compelled to suspend publication.

Consequently the public never gets the full facts about anything.

They never get the actual NEWS.

They always get just one side of every question,—and that is the government side.

* * *

WHEN I was last in England, I met an old friend who was London correspondent for what had once been a great German newspaper. He said:

"I have been relieved of my post and am going back to Germany."

"Good Heavens," I said, "what have you done?"

"Oh," he said, "I have not done anything, but I cannot send any news from London. My editor says that he is not allowed to print any more news from or about England excepting what the German government gives him to print.

"He cannot print the real news. He must print what the government desires to have the people believe. Consequently he says he has no need for a news correspondent. The foreign office of the government hands him his so-called foreign news."

Again, when I was in Germany, a paper was closed up and its editor deprived of the privilege of ever again editing a paper because he had printed in his paper some absolutely true accounts of occurrences that the government did not want printed.

* * *

IN Russia the same conditions prevail in more aggravated form, and more drastic degree. Editors who do not print what the government wants or who print what the government does not want are sent to Siberia or shot.

Under such circumstances, there cannot be any real news or any real newspapers.

Consequently the people never know the TRUTH.

In a despotism perhaps this does not matter much.

It would not do the people any good if they did know the truth. They could not do anything about it. The iron heel of a military dictator is on their necks.

But in a democracy the people MUST know the facts, and must know all sides of all questions.

Good government in a democracy depends upon the enlightenment of the electorate. They cannot vote right unless they are completely informed.

* * *

THEY must have the right to read not merely one newspaper but many newspapers, and get all the facts and all shades of opinion.

Free speech and free publication are the cornerstones of democracy—the keystones of liberty.

The first step towards tyranny is the suppression of free speech, and the government control of the press.

When the government controls the press the people no longer get true accounts of what their government is doing; and the successive steps to tyranny come quickly and surely.

Therefore, those who advocate government control of the press advocate the downfall of democracy and the end of liberty.

Very faithfully yours,
WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

Girl Would Be 'Sacrifice Bride'

COY BLONDE, PERFECT COOK, PREFERS MAN OF MIDDLE AGE

WOULD GIVE UP CHANCE AS SINGER

By JAMES F. McENANEY

Sacrificing her dreams and her ambitions to aid her invalid mother, a pretty 16-year-old Dorchester girl offered herself in marriage today to any man who can assure care of the mother for life.

Blonde and blue-eyed, the girl is a perfect cook and housekeeper and is a seamstress of such excellence, despite her youth, that she has been rated best in her ERA sewing project group.

The girl is Mabel Bell, second eldest in a family of 10 children, of whom five are boys.

Long ago her father died and the mother, now only 37 years old, married again. But Mabel's stepfather has been a sufferer from acute arthritis for some time and can work only periodically.

Cook at Eight

Since she was only six years old, Mabel Bell has done her share in taking care of the home, and she was a fair cook when she was only eight.

Another sister, Viola, 18 years old, and Mabel nurse the invalid mother, prepare the meals, keep the house in order and get the children away to school each day.

Mabel herself, through force of circumstances, had to leave school in the seventh grade, but she did not allow her education to stop with her leaving day school.

Hard Struggle

After her work was done at night she would rush away to night school until her mother's condition became so bad that she was compelled to give this up also.

Now the girl is working on the ERA project, but she receives only $6 a week for her efforts—and $6 a week in a family of 12 persons, ten of them with youthful and healthy appetites, does not go far, even with welfare aid added.

It has been a hard struggle through the months to make both ends come even close to meeting. So today Mabel Bell, 16, young, healthy and ambitious, put aside her dreams and decided to make the sacrifice.

She has no particular type of man in view for a husband, she told the Boston Evening American.

She does not believe she wants a man too young, she said, because a man too young might not understand the seriousness of the undertaking.

Must Aid Mother

Rather she would prefer a man of middle age, one not necessarily wealthy but a husband who has regular employment or an assured income sufficient for herself and her mother and to give the mother the medical attention she requires.

With the care and the expense of the invalid mother provided for, Mabel said today, Viola and the stepfather, with their welfare aid, will be able to get along satisfactorily, even if not possessing anything more than necessities.

Mabel is of Irish-German descent, is only five feet four inches tall and weighs only 109 pounds.

She has a nice singing voice and has won several prizes in amateur night theatricals singing in competition.

Part of her dream has been, some day, to be a professional singer, but she realizes that training would cost a sum unattainable.

Even if she could raise this amount somewhere—she knows she would devote it to the interests of her mother.

"Beyond everything else in the world, my first thought is for my mother," said Mabel, sobbing. "I would sacrifice everything for her."

Worcester Man Hurt in N. Y. Crash

By Associated Press

New York, Oct. 8—A woman was killed today by a hit-and-run driver and four persons were injured, one seriously, when a police radio car, pursuing the death car, crashed into a taxicab in the heart of Times square.

The woman, identified by police from papers as M. Duval, was killed at Fifth avenue and 56th street.

A. M. Collins, 50, of Worcester, Mass., occupant of the taxicab, suffered a fractured skull and possible internal injuries.

In the confusion of the crash in which the cab driver and two patrolmen were also injured, the hit-and-run car escaped.

CLOSED BANK

Pays Dividend

Manchester, N. H., Oct. 8—Attorney John R. McLane, liquidating agent of the closed Merrimack River Savings Bank announced a 5 per cent dividend would be paid 20,000 depositors in time for the holidays.

The payments will amount to $800,000 and will bring the total received by depositors to 65 per cent.

LEGION DRAFTS REPLY

Sees Slur in Oath Letter

The Teachers' Oath controversy, centered in Harvard University for the past few days, neared its end today with one argument left unsettled.

That was the reply of American Legion officials to remarks made by Professor James A. McLaughlin of the law school.

When the legion heads were drafting the reply, Harvard faculty members were perusing letters from President James B. Conant. These inclosed the oath of allegiance blanks with the request that they be signed.

At the same time the letters expressed the hope that the law would be repealed.

COMMENDS MATHER

Professor McLaughlin stepped into the picture with a lengthy letter to Professor Kirtley F. Mather, of Harvard, commending him on his stand against the oath.

Mather at first said he would refuse to take the oath, but retracted his stand after President Conant requested him to obey the law to keep the college out of a controversy.

In his letter to Mather, Professor McLaughlin characterized the oath as "a nasty gesture suggestive of Hitler or Mussolini."

He went on to draw a comparison of a theoretical bill which would forbid American Legion members from indulging too much in liquor and violating the laws of morality.

"Suppose the Legislature should pass a law as follows," the letter read:

"Every member of the American Legion shall refrain from drunkenness, lewdness or the advocacy of uneconomic or selfish measures.

"No such member need observe prevalent standards of sobriety, morality or fair play so long as they follow their own personal standards."

High officials of the Massachusetts Department of the Legion were wrathful at what they thought were disparaging remarks aimed at their organization.

Five professors of the College of Business Administration, Boston University, today took the required oath before Walter G. Goggin, head of the accounting department, who is a notary.

All other members of the Business Administration faculty had previously taken the oath.

Brothers Arrested As Counterfeiters

Two South Boston brothers were arrested today in what police claim will result in the smashing of a counterfeit ring.

After questioning the youths, police charged them with having counterfeit bills. Police sought six other young men in South Boston.

One youth was arrested when he attempted to pass an allegedly bogus $1 bill on Operator Charles Cemper of an Elevated car.

Haverhill Strike

Haverhill, Oct. 8—Twelve hundred wood heel workers who voted to strike last night, today began mass picketing of the Aaron Wood Heel Company, Essex street.

COOLIDGE'S OLD HOME

House to Be Gift Shop, Tea Room

Northampton, Oct. 8—The famous duplex residence at 21 Massasoit street, long the home of Calvin Coolidge, is being transformed into a tearoom and gift shop.

It will be conducted by the Misses Lucille and Edna Griffith, and the venture has the approval of Mrs. Grace Coolidge, widow of the former President, who has lent some of the furniture that was used by the Coolidges during their residence there. There will be included in the establishment a certain amount of Coolidge memorabilia.

The house, of most modest type, remained the Coolidge home from the time Mr. Coolidge entered public life here, through his career as governor, vice president and president.

After his retirement from the presidency Mr. Coolidge purchased an estate on the outskirts of the city, known as "The Beeches," which was much more in keeping with his station in life. It was there that he died.

'North Pole' Greely Seriously Ill

By Associated Press

Washington, Oct. 8—Major-General Adolphus W. Greely, 91, one of the few surviving old time Arctic explorers, was reported seriously ill today at Walter Reed Hospital.

Greely led an expedition in 1881 to the then "farthest north" beyond Greenland. All but seven of his party of 25 perished.

BLONDE For Public OFFICE

MARLBORO GIRL CANDIDATE

By BETTY DiPESA

"Five foot two, eyes of blue;
"But, oh, what those five feet could do!"

The words o fthe song popular several years ago aptly describe Miss Edna Granitsas, of Marlboro.

Just turned her twenty-first birthday, Edna is a candidate for the school committee in her home city in the primaries today.

The first woman candidate for political office in the history of Marlboro!

And that isn't all!

Edna in addition is attending Radcliffe College to get her Master's degree in history.

She is a graduate of the Framingham Normal School, Boston University School of Education, and Graduate School.

She has ambitions of being a professor of history.

Quite a record for one so young and so pretty, blonde hair and all.

I asked her if she didn't think she was a bit young to run for public office. Tossing her blonde tresses she replied:

"No, not a bit. I have the advantage of being young.

"I have trained to be a school teacher and I have done practice work. I have attended a school of education, but I am also at present a student.

"In this way I have the advantage of enjoying all the points of view. I can see the problems from the viewpoints of a woman, teacher and pupil. I know students—their likes and dislikes."

Then I asked if she thought a woman was as well equipped to serve on a school committee as a man. She replied:

"Better. A woman instinctively understands the problems of children. A man thinks only of financial problems."

Miss Granitsas is the daughter of a Greek father and a Swedish mother. Her mother operates an inn on Northboro road, Marlboro.

There was a young man named Peter who was constantly consulted during the interview. Naturally curious about a possible romance, I asked about it.

"Romance?" she said, shrugging her shoulders. 'I haven't time for any."

At any rate, Edna will run for councillor-at-large if she is successful in her candidacy for school committee.

Wife's Note Halts Dolbow Trial

By Associated Press

Salem, N. J., Oct. 8—Judge Frank T. Neutze today ordered a mistrial in the murder case of Mrs. Fox Dolbow and her childhood sweetheart, Norman Driscoll, because the wife of a juror attempted to send her husband a note.

Mrs. Dolboy and Driscell are under indictment for the murder of Mrs. Dolbow's husband, Harry.

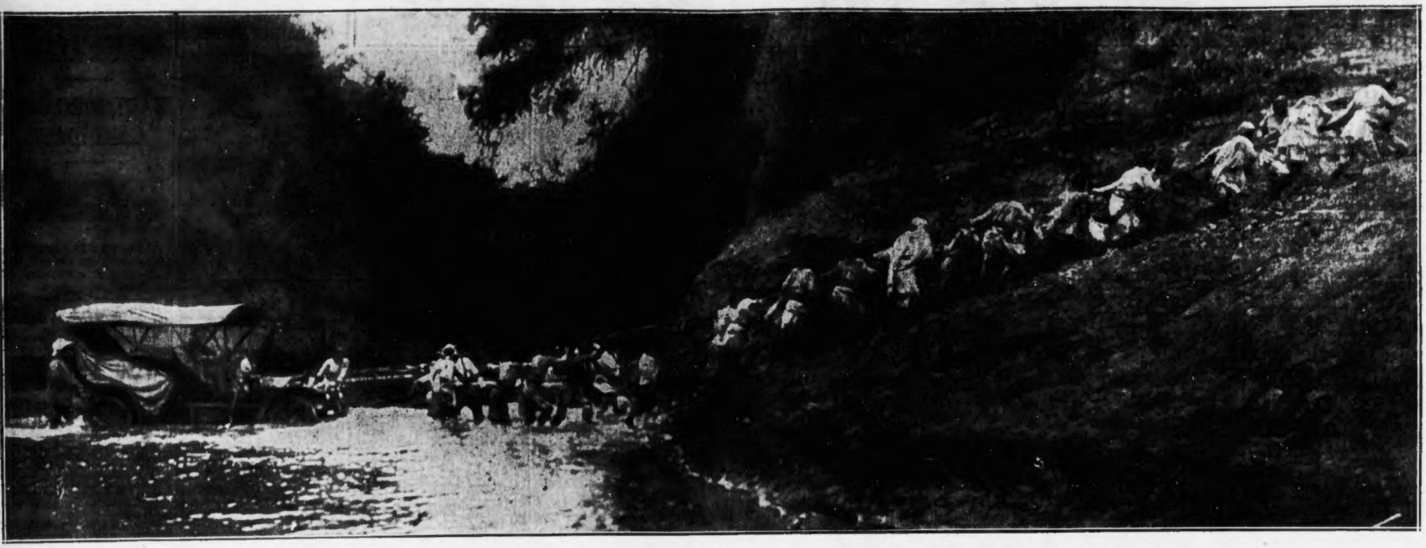
SWEAT, MUSCLE COUNT ON ROADLESS WAR FRONT



Just a typical incident in a day's travel by automobile in Ethiopia is this fording of a shallow stream by man-power, not by gasoline horsepower. Human labor is the most plentiful and cheapest of all commodities in the kingdom of Haile Selassie. Advancing Italian armies, for all their modern equipment, must avail themselves of many thousands of these two-legged burden bearers.

ITALY'S ENVOY ORDERED OUT OF ETHIOPIAN CAPITAL

cation has been imposed on it, the Ethiopian government had been resolved to permit the Italian minister and his colleagues to remain in Addis Ababa.

"Whatever might have been the inconvenience of this decision, the Ethiopian government wished to show new proof of its loyalty, its sincere and pacific intention and its spirit of conciliation.

"For this authority, which without doubt has no precedent in the history of peoples, one single condition was made. It was that the Italian minister should not take advantage of the generous hospitality which had been accorded him to utilize the radio apparatus which he possesses to create internal difficulty for the Ethiopian government.

"The Ethiopian government greatly regrets to report that this promise has not been fulfilled.

"The Italian Legation in Addis Ababa is the center of espionage, intrigue, and plots against the public order of Ethiopia.

"Under these conditions, at a moment when the legitimate defense of the empire is rendered more difficult by the attitude of the Italian minister, the Ethiopian government had the imperious duty to request the Italian minister and all his legation to leave Addis Ababa and Ethiopian territory at once.

"The Ethiopian government will take all necessary measures to asure that this departure will be undertaken under the customary conditions of courtesy shown by a most civilized state, that the protection of public authorities will be assured the minister of Italy and his personnel on all Ethiopian territory, and that the security and official records of the legation will not be violated."

British Mandate for War Sanctions Urged in Geneva

Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press

Geneva, Oct. 8—A plan to give Great Britain a League of Nations mandate, by vote of the assembly, to supervise sanctions against Italy was discussed today by some League powers, representatives of non-European countries disclosed.

The idea is that Britain, supported by other interested powers, should take the leadership in the sanctions program and that Britain would be requested to adopt the initiative in accordance with developments in the situation.

The Italian delegation was extremely incensed over yesterday's refusal by the League Council to postpone discussion of the report of the committee of six which indicted Italy for disregard of the covenant.

Instead of carrying out his original plan to request a new session of the council in order to present his objections, Baron Pompeo Aloisi of Italy sent a written statement to the League secretariat, protesting anew against the failure to grant a postponement.

ITALY'S PROTEST

Aloisi's protest said:

"After the decision by which the council at its meeting yesterday declined to accept the request for adjournment of discussion of the report of its committee of six, presentation of the Italian theses which motivated my request for postponement is now purposeless.

"The reason given for the refusal of my request proves that the council because of motives and circumstances which I refrain from discussing, has deemed it useless to hear from the most interested party.

"In regretting these methods which were in contradiction with the most elementary rules of all procedure, and were adopted for the first time by the League of Nations with respect to my country, I make all reservations as to what later decisions my government may take on this subject.

"I have the honor to ask you to present the above to all members of the council."

The problem of just what sanctions should be applied against Italy and how to put them into effect confronted the league council today after its dramatic indictment yesterday of Il Duce's government as an instigator of unjustified war.

"Will Mussolini weaken under the weight of world censure, as expressed in the council's unanimous action?" was the question asked widely in league corridors.

Without waiting for the answer, league statesmen went ahead with plans to co-ordinate the complicated network of sanctions made compulsory by the council verdict.

With them they will attempt to entangle and paralyze the mechanism of Mussolini's East African war machine.

Article XVI of the league covenant, which became operative against Italy, sketches the broad outlines of such sanctions and declares it the duty of the league member states to enforce them.

The details of the plan, a blueprint of the actual machinery of sanctions, remained to be drawn.

The League assembly will meet tomorrow to create a co-ordination committee to draft the actual plan and to fix the date when it should apply.

League sources said it could be safely assumed that if the assembly heeded Great Britain, the world-wide network of sanctions would not be weak.

Attivita' Al Fronte

Un dispaccio dell' Exchange Telegraph dal quartiere generale italiano in Eritrea, informa che un' altra aspra battaglia ha avuto luogo ieri lungo il fronte orientale della provincia del Tigre', a Sud-Est della citta' di Adigrat. Il dispaccio indica che la truppa Italiana operante sul fronte, ha incontrato un' accanita resistenza da parte delle truppe abissine infliggendovi perdite considerevoi.

Reparti di indigini operanti nel settore di centro al comando del General. Alessandro Pirzio-Biroli, sono entrati vittoriosamente nella citta' di Assale, occupando le alture circostanti, fra cui un monte alto 9000 piedi, considerato molto importante per la sua posizione strategica. Il monte e' stato occupato soltanto dopo un'aspra battaglia durata diverse ore e nella quale e' rifulso ancora una volta il valore degli Ascari Eritrei al comando di ufficiali Italiani.

MARCIA IN AVANTI

Subito dopo tali scontri, l'ala sinistra dell'armata del Nord al comando del Gen. Santini, ha ripreso la sua marcia spingendosi per oltre 30 miglia a Sud di Adua.

Areoplani italiani in ricognizione da Adua verso l'interno, hanno bombardato ieri sera una colonna abissina incontrata su di una carovaniera, riuscendo ad infliggere perdite considerevoli.

Si prevede che la prossima grande battaglia avra' luogo quando le truppe italiane muoveranno alla conquista di Makale, situata a 60 niglia a Sud di Adua.

Un dispaccio dela Reuters, agenzia giornalistica inglese, informa che le truppe italiane hanno gia' ocupato la Citta' Santa di Aksum, ad Ovest di Adua. Secondo un altro dispacco della stessa agenzia, l'Italia avrebbe fatto per la prima volta impiego di gas nelle operazioni intorno ad Adua. Un telegramma da Addis Abeba dell'Exchange Telegraph, riporta che gli abissini, in numero di 15,000, sarebbero penetrati in Eritrea. Tale comunicato e' stato smentito dalle autorita' italiane.

FORZE ABISSINE

L'Imperatore Haile Selassie, il quale deve dipendere soltanto sui muscoli dei suoi uomini per fronteggiare l'efficacia dei mezzi moderni di cui l'Italia dispone, ha 750,000 soldati pronti ad iniziare la marcia, in difesa della regione. Tale forza e' dislogata cosi:

Circa 250,000 nella provincia di Ogaden, nel settore lungo la Somalia Italiana, per fronteggiare le truppe italiane al comando del Gen. Rodolfo Graziani; circa 100,000 scaglionati intorno a Dessye, sull'altopiano che fronteggia i passaggi obbligatori verso Addis Abeba, luogo dove l'Imperatore fissera' il suo quartiere generale, assistito dal Ministro della guerra, Ras Mulugueta; circa 350.00 prenderanno posizione a Nord, sotto il comando di Ras Beyoum. In aggiunta a tali forze, circa 30,000 irregolari nomadi delle varie tribu', sarranno dislogati lungo la frontiera occidentale, ad Est di Dessye.

Decisioni Della Lega

Domani, mercoledi', avra' luogo l'attesa riunione dell'assemblea della Lega delle Nazioni. Lo scopo principale di tale riunione e' quello di poter ottenere il voto di quei membri che non sono rappresentati nel Consiglio della Lega, e, a norma dell' Art. XVI del covenant della Lega stessa, procedere quindi, tentativamente, all' applicazione delle sanzioni raccomandate dal Comitato dei 13.

E' noto che per rendere effettiva l'applicazione delle sanzioni, e' necessario che la Lega raggiungo l'approvazione unanime di tutti i membri. Se le sanzioni saranno soltanto di carattere economico e finanziario, il governo italiano e' ben preparato a subirne le conseguenze con calma e disciplina. Gli economisti italiani fanno rilevare a tal riguardo che le misure adottate dal governo fascista, sono tali da poter vantare un'assoluta indipendenza. Gli italiani sono inoltre preparati anche nel caso che la Lega dovesse votare sanzioni di carattere militare: un milione di uomini armati, e'pronto a difendere fino all'ultimo sangue gl'interessi italiani in patria e fuori.

Il prossimo riassunto sulle vicende della guerra Italo-Etiopica, compilato a cura dell' Ex-Tenente Giovanni Nania, apparira' sul Boston Evening American domani.

BINGHAM TALKS WITH HOARE

By Associated Press

London, Oct. 8—Ambassador Robert W. Bingham of the United States went to the British foreign office today, presumably to discuss with Sir Samuel Hoare, foreign secretary, the United States' neutrality proclamation and the British viewpoint in connection with the Italo-Ethiopian war.

An authoritative source said that while no official information was available on the subject of their conversation, it could be assumed that the British government was taking the opportunity to inform Bingham of the line of action Great Britain had adopted and would adopt in the future in the League of Nations.

The British said it was their policy to keep the United States constantly advised of their viewpoint on the war situation.

Anita Thompson Of Films Weds

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 8—Anita Thompson, film actress, and Johnny Quillen, actor and brother of Eddie Quillen, screen comedian, were married today in the Church of the Blessed Sacrament in a service read by Father Edward Whalen.

Mussolini Girds Nation To Battle All Penalties

Rome, Oct. 8—Premier Mussolini girded his nation today against impending League of Nations sanctions.

The defensive sectors of Italy's million-man army stepped up preparations to defend the nation's coastal cities in the event that hostilities arose from League action against the kingdom for its war on Ethiopia.

Informed Italian sources said Mussolini felt he had the jump on the world, as far as economic sanctions are concerned, and that he would not be caught napping by any effort toward application of military sanctions.

ITALY SELF-SUPPORTING

Economists pointed to several specific measures which Il Duce put through during the last year to make Italy self-supporting.

To these they added references to dozens of other achievements by Italy's "corporative state" which they said made the Italians dependent on no one for their bread, lighting, transportation, water and fuel.

On the defensive side, informed sources said, orders were issued to coastal capitals such as Naples, Genoa, Bari and others to observe air drills and to instruct the citizens on protection from aerial bombardments.

AIR DEFENSE PLANS

These sources also reported that anti-aircraft coast artillery and other defense regiments had entered into a period of intensive training.

Italy was really ready, they said, to "meet military sanctions with military measures," should league developments warrant.

Informed sources said the league action in declaring Italy had resorted to war in violation of Article XII of the covenant, making Article XVI and its sanctions operative, would have another answer from Italy soon in further advances by Fascist troops in Ethiopia.

The general opinion here was that after the positions around Aduwa had been consolidated, a new objective to the southeast would be designated and promptly taken.

FARMERS PARADE

The capital rang throughout the night to the shouts of some 20,000 parading farmers and peasants who invaded Rome in 400 antiquated farm trucks, shouting "Viva Il Duce" and displaying placards bearing the slogan: "Aduwa is ours."

The farmers demonstrated in front of the French embassy, but the French ambassador did not appear.

23 MILLION TRADE BALANCE LOSS SEEN WITH EMBARGO

By Universal Service

Washington, Oct. 8—Alone and aloof, the United States enunciated a clearcut policy of complete independence in its neutrality moves concerning the Italo-Ethiopian war, as administration leaders determined to reject all proposals for participation in group sanctions against Italy.

Secretary of State Hull emphasized the American neutrality moves have been undertaken without discussions with any other country.

Leading developments in the American phase of the great world drama were:

1—The State Department decided not to participate in any joint representations to Italy, as reported from Addis Ababa today to refrain from bombing Addis Ababa, or other Ethiopian cities in which Americans and other neutrals may be residing;

2—The State Department further decided the United States will not participate in any group sanctions against Italy or Ethiopia or both, either economic, financial or military, and

3—Coast guard and customs officers at all ports along both coasts were instructed to enforce at once the absolute embargo on arms shipments to Italy and Ethiopia.

The American policy, dictated by President Roosevelt himself, and translated into action by Hull, is that the United States will not become embroiled in the situation in any way; will not take sides; will not be responsible for its nationals who, by indiscretions, run afoul of any phase of the conflict.

The policy was conceded to be a radical departure from past stands of this country, and from that standpoint was regarded as highly significant.

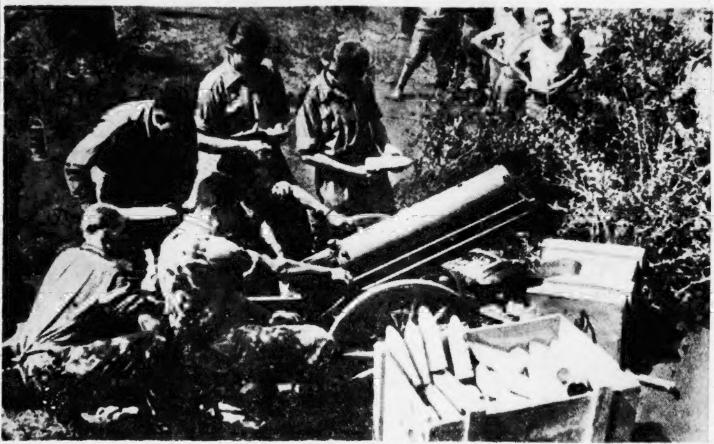
Perusal of Commerce Department figures of Italo-American trade for the first eight months of this year showed American exports of about $44,000,000,00 and imports of about $21,000,000—a positive balance of trade totaling about $23,000,000.

This it was generally conceded, is virtually dead as the result of the President's disavowal of any responsibility for future trade with either nation.

Italian credit in this country has suddenly shrivelled almost to the vanishing point, and the President's statement that all American trade with Italy is at the individual's risk was seen as virtually ending all but cash transactions.

Italian steamship traffic across the northern Atlantic was expected to be sharply curtailed in the near future, as soon as the effect of the President's order, stating that Americans hereafter travel on Italian vessels at their own risk, becomes felt.

Trouble in Making for Haile Selassie's Hillmen



Mountain howitzers like this spell trouble in large and painful doses for Haile Selassie's Ethiopian hillmen. These Italian artillerymen, in a training area, are familiarizing themselves with the working parts and operation of a type of gun which is being used extensively as Il Duce's invading columns battle southward from Eritrea.

Shows Courage in Ethiopia

U. S. WOMAN DARES WAR

Wife of Selassie's Adviser, Colson, Stays by Side

MRS. ANNA J. COLSON

Favorite of War Reporters

Splendid example of American womanhood is Mrs. Anna Johnston Colson, former Ohio girl who married a Maine Yankee and stands by his side today in Emperor Selassie's court.

She is the wife of Everett Andrews Colson of Warren, Me., and Lynn, the shrewd and honest Yankee comptroller in the distant African empire assailed by Italy's forces.

About her husband and his unique position as financial advisor to the king of kings, much has been written.

About Mrs. Colson, nothing at all.

Yet she is the outstanding white woman in the war-torn northeastern section of the black continent.

Chooses Danger

When the cloud bank lengthened over the Mediterranean and its portent became unmistakable, she could have started for home, for Boston, where at Chauncey Hall school her 15-year-old son, Everett, Jr., an only child, is preparing for Tech.

"My place," she said simply, "is with my husband. My son is safe."

At Addis Ababa, amid the hubbub of the moving white-clad, dark-skinned troops as the war drums beat their messages mobilizing 1,000,000 men in the hills, she stands by her husband's side, complacent, gracious and capable, beloved alike by the natives and the foreigners far from home.

She is a favorite at the American legation, the "mother" of all the American war correspondents in the Ethiopian capital.

Becomes Nurse

When Wilfred Barber, Chicago Tribune correspondent, was stricken with tertian malaria contracted in the Ogaden area and aggravated in the high, wet altitude of Addis Ababa, it was Mrs. Colson who abandoned all else and became his nurse.

On duty long hours of the day and night, she fought to pull him through and wept when she lost.

Barber was buried, as a soldier is buried, wrapped in an American flag, from the legation, his body borne to a grave in a grove of eucalyptus, his riderless mules following, their stirrups reversed in the army custom.

Mrs. Colson was present at the services, attended by respentatives of Selassie, the legation and all the correspondents.

Away 5 Years

Born Anna Johnston, in Ohio, she went to Washington to work in a government office and there met and married Colson, one of the government's financial experts.

When two couriers of Selassie selected Colson as the honest man he had sent them to find in the United States and take back to Ethiopia to handle his finances, Mrs. Colson unhesitatingly elected to accompany her husband. That was five years ago.

She has not been home since. Last year she had her son with her in Addis Ababa for six months. He came home alone.

Only if the Italian bombing planes penetrated to the Ethiopian capital will she leave Addis Ababa and then it will be because her husband will also leave—with Selassie and the government officials to seek shelter in the hill caves.

Needy Families Face Famine as Relief Fails

Lowell, Brockton, New Bedford, Haverhill, Springfield, Worcester and Fall River, the situation is especially threatening.

An illustration of the drastic action to which relief officials have been forced by the sudden and unexpected curtailment of federal funds is contained in the following official order of Colonel Thomas F. Sullivan, Boston ERA-WPA administrator:

"To all department and project heads:

"The state administrator has just advised that the allotment for October has been greatly reduced. This necessitated either the outright discharge of several thousand workers or a reduction in the time schedule.

"I have therefore decided to adopt the latter method and you are hereby directed to place all 24-hour workers on a 12-hour basis, and all 34-hour workers on an 18-hour basis, until further notice.

"There are no exceptions allowed, as funds are not available to pay any person in excess of the above schedule."

All but a few of the ERA workers were on the 24-hour basis. The reduction to 12 hours a week cut their wages below a subsistence level.

Seek Solution

Colonel Sullivan is now in Washington trying to have the situation remedied. If he and Corporation Counsel Henry E. Foley, who is with him, are able to cut the Gordian knot, they are cleverer than scores of other officials and politicians in this state.

At any rate, the various district officials, who come into direct contact with the unfortunate needy, and who in general are practical men rather than theorizing sociologists, are getting busy with all the energy they can muster, in an attempt to prevent a complete collapse.

These officials are not the only ones who have awakened to the breakdown of relief.

Other Boston newspapers, after quoting from these articles for a few days, have begun looking around for themselves, have re-discovered the breakdown which this newspaper disclosed four days ago, and have ceased "falling for" Brain Trust publicity material. Those sewing projects for aged women, that student aid, teachers' relief, and other enthusiastically announced plans of the WPA are still only visions.

State Administrator Arthur G. Rotch, unpaid head of the WPA-ERA relief organization here, gave up seeking more October relief funds long ago, and is confinng himself to sending out notices which the district administrators have to translate into terms of wage cuts and layoffs.

County Left Out

A meeting of the heads of the various alphabetic units in Massachusetts has been called for Thursday morning at the Parker House where they will dine at a cost of $1 each and will listen to a letter from President Roosevelt.

If the relief fund strategy was designed to whip Massachusetts Democrats into line, it is failing, as is evidenced by a statement to the Boston Evening American by Congressman William P. Connery, Jr., of Lynn, who has thrown down the gauntlet to Washington officials with a demand for a re-shuffling of the cards on federal relief.

Connery believes that the individuals holding these key positions are not cognizant of conditions in manufacturing centers.

A number of these officials do not live in Essex County at all.

Connery said:

"As for the WPA program, Essex County is without a single WPA project, in spite of the fact that the four largest cities in the county are great manufacturing centers, where relief is sorely needed and where any curtailment in relief funds means real distress. Incidentally all four of these were in the Democractic column in 1932.

"Relief workers in Lynn and Lawrence are supervised by Republicans from smaller communities, and in one case by a foreign-born non-citizen."

This man, according to Connery, is David Russell of Beverly, who applied for citizenship papers in 1925, but let them lapse. He re-applied last year and expects to get his final papers next year.

"At least nine of the key positions in the Essex County organization are in the hands of outsiders. Seventeen are in the hands of Republicans.

"The organization is full of social service workers drawing down 1929 salaries. Many of them are single, while the real sufferer, the laborer with a large family, is unable to obtain more than one day's work a week.

"There is an assistant director at $300 a month; supervisor of finance, $300 a month; two assistant supervisors, $249; personnel director and office manager, $240; supervisor of social service workers, $200; assistant, $160; seven social service workers, $120 a month each; director of women's division, $200 a month.

"Some of them are from as far away as Provincetown, two are from Boston, one from Melrose and another from Winthrop.

"I have written to Harry L. Hopkins, federal ERA administrator in Washington, pointing out that loyal Democrats in Essex County are becoming so aroused at their mistreatment that it will reflect adversely at the next presidential election."

French Troops Land at Djibouti

By International News Service

Djibouti, Oct. 8 — The steamer Porthos arrived here late today from Marseilles with 1200 French troops and seveal hnudred tons of war materials.

At the same time a train arrived from Addis Ababa carrying refugees from the Ethiopian capital, most of them Greeks and Italians.

FRANCE BALKS AT SANCTIONS

By Associated Press

Paris, Oct. 8 — Premier Pierre Laval was officially described today as anxiously seeking to keep Great Britain from "going the whole way" in sanctions against Italy.

French sources said official quarters found themselves "bothered" by the idea that they would be bound to support Great Britain if that country, in the event of carrying out possible League of Nations orders for military sanctions against Italy were attacked.

"We are counting on England's prudence," one official said.

The French also took what comfort they could in Great Britain's apparent intention to avoid military sanctions and in what they said is Germany's "consternation" at a Franco-British understanding.

ETHIOPIA FLIER SPIES ITALIANS

By International News Service

London, Oct. 8—An Ethiopian airplane today made a reconnaisance over the Italian lines on the northern front and escaped unharmed, the Exchange Telegraph reported from Italian headquarters.

The flight, first attempted by the Ethiopians, was made over new lines the Italian troops have consolidated just south of Aduwa.

The plane flew at a height of 5000 feet and was fired at by Italian machine and anti-aircraft guns.

An urgent message was sent to the Italian air force base and Italian machines quickly flew to Aduwa.

The Ethiopian aviator, however, escaped.

French Boycott Italian Ships

By International News Service

Paris, Oct. 8—Acting in accordance with orders from the Bordeaux headquarters of the Dockers' Union, which demanded a boycott against Italy, French dock workers declared today they would not unload Italian ships in French ports.

EARLY PRIMARY VOTE HEAVY IN 3 CITIES

With early voting reported heavy in every precinct, the Worcester primary for municipal offices today promised to poll approximately 50,000 votes out of a possible 60,000.

In Lowell, Thomas B. Delaney, one of eight candidates for mayor, said he had asked State Public Safety Commissioner Paul G. Kirk for a state police detail to supervise the Democratic primary.

In Marlboro, the third city voting, a primary conducted on nonpartisan lines was proceeding in comparative quiet with only three candidates contesting two mayoral nominations.

201 CANDIDATES

Contrasted with this serene situation, at Worcester both ballots contained a total of 201 candidates' names for various municipal offices and heavy early voting indicated that an all-night count is in prospect after polls close at 8 p. m.

The main contest between Mayor John C. Mahoney for renomination to a third term over Rep. Edward J. Kelley, Gov. Curley's legislative leader in the lower house, promised to be the most bitter in years.

The Republican mayoral primary was being conducted in comparative quiet, with Walter J. Cookson believed to be holding a wide margin of support over William H. Brady, ERA foreman and former deputy sheriff.

The large and unwieldly Democratic ballot of party candidates for election to city offices, Nov. 3, was causing election officials most concern while the Mahoney and Kelley forces bent every energy toward getting out the greatest vote in years.

TROOP CALL DENIED

Announcement at Lowell by Candidate Delaney, president of the city council, that he had called for state troopers in behalf of himself and two other mayoral candidates, Thomas A. Delmore and City Councilor Robert R. Thomas, met with a denial by Public Safety Commissioner Kirk at the State House in Boston. He said:

"If there has been any request for state police at Lowell on the part of any of the candidates, it hasn't been made to me so far."

Other Lowell Democratic mayoralty candidates include City Treasurer Charles R. Flood, James F. Roarke, Frederick L. Pyne, William R. Griffin and Michael W. Gavin.

Dewey G. Archimbault and Clinton R. Tuttle are the Republican candidates and Daniel J. Coughlin and Garabed N. Moushegian the Independents.

Altogether there are 139 candidates in Lowell for 13 offices.

PRINTS FOUND ON DICTAGRAPH

Secretary Richard D. Grant of Governor Curley's office, today declared that a "report of progress" had been made by the state police in their investigation of the placing of a dictograph in the Governor's Jamaicaway home.

"Sergeant J. Warren Toelkin of the bureau of photography informed Commissioner Paul G. Kirk the machine contained several finger prints on the reverse side," said Grant.

"Unless prints of all persons known to have touched the device, as well as those under suspicion, can be obtained, however, the guilty ones may escape and the mystery never solved.

"A daily search will be made of the executive offices in order to detect in advance any further evidences of Republican snooping."

Hackett, Brookline Native, Dies at 68

By Associated Press

Chicago, Oct. 8—Karleton Spalding Hackett, president of the Chicago City Opera Company, died here after two weeks' illness from a lung ailment.

Hackett, a well known voice teacher, would have been 68 today. He was born in Brookline, Mass., was graduated from Harvard in 1891, and later studied music in London, Florence, and Munich.

His widow and a daughter, Mrs. John A. Holabird, survive.

In a New York police cell is Everett R. Applegate of Baldwin, L. I., involved, authorities allege, in the arsenic murder of his wife. Partial guilt in the so-called poison death has been confessed, investigators claim, by Mrs. John Creighton, who, with her husband, shared a house with the Applegates. Applegate also faces charges of improper relations with the 15-year-old daughter of the Creigntons.

AMBULANCES GALORE

4 Speed to Aid Girl Who Trips

Down Atlantic avenue an ambulance tore its way through rush hour traffic today.

Up Atlantic avenue tore another ambulance—siren screaming, and autos turning hurriedly out of its way.

"Somebody fell off the platform—"

"Three people fell off the platform—"

"Nine hurt, and two killed—"

And over at Scollay station two more ambulances raced into position. Grand total—four ambulances!

At the edge of the crowd, a woman who, unable to get anywhere near Atlantic avenue station, informed the throng:

"They's two trains hit in the tunnel. One of them is totally destroyed and the other is all smashed up. It's terrible!"

Ambulance surgeons came slowly up the steps at Scollay, escorting Miss Florence Frongone of Orient avenue, East Boston. Parting the crowd they put her in the ambulance—one of the ambulances. She was taken to Relief Hospital.

She was treated for a bruised ankle—and sent home.

She had fallen over a suitcase.

FACTS

By Universal Service

Washington, Oct. 8—The legally defunct NRA, maintained by President Roosevelt at an annual expense of seven million dollars for salaries alone for 3000 employes, shortly will report to the President that the Blue Eagle was opposed in virtually every city, county and state in the nation.

Now functioning as a fact finding group, the NRA is completing an exhaustive study of every act, every complaint, every bit of praise of NRA during its legal life. The study is justified by Major George L. Berry, NRA head, as essential to maintain what he calls a "priceless heritage of labor-industry" information.

At the same time it is attacked by many, including Berry, as having been carried on with waste and extravagance, and by some as purely a political maintenance of a payroll.

The reaction of the nation to NRA during its existence is found in 300,000 complaints against codes now under study. One high official of the Blue Eagle group declared privately that there were around three million complaints, but 300,000 is the number actually being studied.

New Job for Gallagher

Robert W. Gallagher, assistant messenger to the Governor, will for a few weeks assume the duties of Frank Kane, in charge of the employment office at Public Works Building. Kane, it is said, will go on a yachting party to southern waters. Among others expected to join the cruise is Edmond J. Hoy, assistant secretary to the Governor.

UPTURN SPEEDS NOW DECLARES MISS PERKINS

By Associated Press

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 8—An attempt to place the American Federation of Labor on record against American participation in the Olympic games next year in Berlin was started at the federation's convention here today.

By International News Service

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 8—American industry finally has made a definite turn around that corner to recovery, Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins reported to the American Federation of Labor here today in a speech jammed with highly comforting government statistics indicating the upturn.

Industries, she said, are forging to the front.

"The latest reports of the United States Department of Labor," declared the lady secretary, "on construction activity, steel production, automobiles, machinery and machine tools, in particular, leaves no doubt that these industries, which are so significant in the entire picture of any recovery, have actually made the turn."

CITES PAYROLL GAINS

And with production, payrolls have gone up and employment increased, Miss Perkins said, citing figures in various industries by way of proof.

"There are millions of men and women out of work still, as all of us who are here this afternoon realize, but taking private employment as a whole it is estimated by the Department of Labor statisticians that more than 4,400,000 workers who were idle in March, 1933, at the low point of the depression, have found jobs in private industry.

"In the same period weekly wage disbursements in the manufacturing industries rose from $75,000,000 to more than $140,000,000 a week."

GAIN NATION-WIDE

After asserting "the present acceleration is nation-wide and industry-wide," she declared:

"Take for instance the machine tool industry, which takes the first step in building up new machinery and equipment to reflect production increase. The August index of machine tool orders is 125.8, compared with 100 in 1926. The average for the eight months of this year is 82.5, or nearly double the average for all last year. As a matter of fact, business reported for the eight months is 18 per cent above the 12 months' figure of 1934.

PAY ENVELOPES FATTER

"What is true of employment is also true of the average weekly earnings of the workers employed. In the five selected durable goods industries the weekly earnings in August advanced over the corresponding earnings in August, 1934, as follows: $5.65 in blast furnaces, $3.40 in sawmills, $2.70 in foundries and machine shops, $2.30 in automobiles and $2.25 in brick manufacturing.

"In the five non-durable goods industries the advance in the weekly earnings of workers employed in August as compared with the previous year ranged from 55 cents in slaughtering and meat packing to $4.05 in tires and inner tubes."

This morning's session of the A. F. of L. convention was confined to routine business.

Join in "Religious" Refusal to Salute U. S. Flag

COSTA MITCHELL PHILEMON MITCHELL PHILIP MITCHELL CONSTANCE MITCHELL

These four Saugus children, whose parents are members of the religious sect, "Jehovah's Witnesses," have joined eight-year-old Carleton B. Nichols, Jr., of Lynn, in refusing to salute the United States flag at regular weekly school exercises. They are Costa Philemon, Philip and Constance Mitchell of Central street, Saugus. Their father is Costa I. Mitchell, a Saugus chain store manager.

Flag War Reaches Saugus Four Pupils Spurn Salute

Lynn's flag salute war had spread today to include Saugus, with the Saugus school committee having not one, but four school pupils as a problem because they refuse to pledge allegiance to the Stars and Stripes.

Tonight Carleton Nichols, Jr., ight, Lynn pupil, and his ather face the Lynn school committee, whose members will decide just what may be done with the boy for his repeated refusals to salute the flag.

But tonight also the Saugus school committee will meet to take prompt action in the case of that town's four recalcitrants, all four pupils from the same family.

The four Saugus children claim membership in the religious sect, Jehovah's Witnesses. This is the group in which the Nichols' boy holds membership.

They announce they would refuse to salute the flag yesterday for the first time.

The four, all pupils at the Roby School, are Costa S. Mitchell, 12; Constance, 11, and twin brothers Philemon and Philip, 9.

They are the sons and daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Costa I. Mtichell, of Central street, Saugus.

Mitchell, a chain store manager, is widely known in Saugus.

Teachers said the children had joined other pupils in saluting the flag on previous occasions and their action yesterday came as a surprise.

Superintendent of Schools Vernon W. Evans questioned the four separately and found them determined in their refusal to salute the flag.

Each, he said, claimed to have arrived at the decision independently and declared it was against the precepts of their religious sect to salute.

Superintendent Evans reported the case to the town school committee.

POLICE GUARD CALLED

A special detail of police officers has been assigned to the Lynn school committee quarters in Franklin street to prevent any possible trouble tonight.

Superintendent of Schools Harv · Gruver will notify the committee formally that the boy has refused to salute the flag in school exercises.

The committee then will take action which probably will result in the boy's expulsion from school.

The boy's father, Carleton Nichols, Sr., has been notified to be present.

He will be represented by counsel and by a delegation from the Lynn camp of Jehovahs Witnesses.

Delegations from the American Legion, the Women's Republican Club, D. A. R., and other organizations also are expected to be present.

The elder Nichols also is scheduled to appear in Lynn district court tomorrow with Edward Holton James of Concord on charges of "disturbing a school."

Man Saved from "L" Car Death

Throwing himself in front of a Lechmere-bound car in Northern artery today, Raymond Abonnte, 45, of Somerville avenue, narrowly escaped death. The motorman applied the brakes and stopped the car just before it could strike the man.

Abonnte was taken to Somerville police headquarters by Patrolman John Hourihan. He told police he was tired of living. He was taken to Boston Psychopathic Hospital.

NEW PWA RELIEF DEADLINE SET

Washington, Oct. 8—Direct relief will continue until at least one employable in every family on relief, and all employable single persons on relief, are provided jobs. WPA officials admitted today.

The deadline for ending direct relief Nov. 1, announced five months ago by Administrator Harry L. Hopkins, has been extended officially at least to November 15.

President Roosevelt has approved $1,900,000,000 worth of WPA projects, but only $585,000,000 in cash has been made available by the Bureau of the Budget and Comptroller General McCarl.

An average of 87,000 a day would have to be given jobs to end relief by November 1.

This, WPA officials admit, is becoming less possible daily, hence the extension of the deadline officially to November 15, with fur-

Son-in-Law Sues Swans For $10,000

Worcester, Oct. 8—Clyde H. Swan and his wife, Sarah, were made co-defendants today in a $10,000 heart balm suit brought by their son-in-law, George C. Vaidulas, proprietor of a radio store in Barre.

The suit against Swan, Barre banker and former state representative, is the latest step in events sequel to Vaidulas' marriage to Shirley A. Swan, with whom the radio dealer eloped to Hoosick Falls, N. Y., in November, 1933.

Returning to Barre, the bride and Vaidulas lived together until some months ago, when she filed suit for divorce. The action was later withdrawn.

In her divorce suit Mrs. Vaidulas declared her husband had pulled her hair, threatened to beat her with a strap and refused to keep the fires burning in their home.

Find Out
From Your Doctor if the "Pain" Remedy You Take is SAFE

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well-Being to Unknown Preparations.

BEFORE you take any preparation you don't know all about, for the relief of headaches; or the pains of rheumatism, neuritis or neuralgia, ask your doctor what he thinks about it—in comparison with Genuine Bayer Aspirin.

We say this because, before the discovery of Bayer Aspirin, most so-called "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as being bad for the stomach; or, often, for the heart. And the discovery of Bayer Aspirin largely changed medical practice.

Countless thousands of people who have taken Bayer Aspirin year in and out without ill effect, have proved that the medical findings about its safety were correct.

Remember this: Genuine Bayer Aspirin is rated among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and all common pains . . . and safe for the average person to take regularly.

You can get real Bayer Aspirin at any drug store—simply by never asking for it by the name "aspirin" alone, but always saying BAYER ASPIRIN when you buy.

POLICE BLAMED BY DOWLING

If more than 2000 persons who are receiving welfare were not police-listed it is a police fault, John C. L. Dowling, executive director of the welfare department, asserted today.

He was answering a demand made in the City Council meeting yesterday by Councillor Robert Gardiner Wilson, Jr., for a probe which, Wilson asserted, probably would save the city $10,000 weekly in welfare distribution.

The revelation that more than 2000 welfare recipients do not appear on the police census was made by the statistics department of the city, and in answer, Dowling said:

"It is apparent to all that the Boston police do not list everybody. For that reason we have large supplementary voting lists every year. Thousands of persons are overlooked by the police annually and are compelled to re-register if they desire to vote.

"I have ordered an immediate checkup of every name regarded as a suspicious case by the statistics department and the City Council. I am pleased with the criticism by the council, because publicity is good. It keeps this department up to a high state of efficiency."

'POPEYE THE SAILOR'

Salem Eyes Pop at Actor's Antics

Salem, Oct. 8—Well, the defendant (so he said) was Popeye. Yessir—the original "Popeye the Sailor" (so he said).

He was an actor (so he said) and therefore Corporal Arthur Ford's eyes popped out when William A. Costello, 37, late of 315 West Eighth street, New York, produced a total of $110 in real money with which to pay fines.

What made the spectators eyes pop out as well was Costello's brand new trailer, for which he had paid cash in Danvers last night—shortly before he fired off the gun that caused him to be bailed before Judge George B. Sears in court here.

HISTORIC SHOT

The shot was heard round Doane's Cabins, on Newburyport Turnpike, thereby bringing out the Minute Men to see what Britisher was on the loose.

But "Popeye" was, said State Trooper John Dorsey, more tight than loose.

When police arrived at Doane's Cabins, they said, Costello was posing in Wild West attitudes, which do not match a staid Colonial background like Danvers. So the Troopers began figuring up the charges. Costello slipped right back into his "Popeye" role as the troopers began writing:

"Driving an uninsured car.

"Driving an unregistered automile.

"Driving an uninsured trailer.

"Drunk.

"Carrying an unregistered gun.

"Firing a weapon contrary to law.

ESCAPES ONE CHARGE

Nobody had seen him driving the auto, so he escaped a liquor driving charge.

Judge Sears gave "Popeye" a suspended sentence of six months on the two firearms charge, fined him $100 on the two insurance charges and $10 on the auto registration charge. The drunk charge was filed.

As Costello drove off toward Auburn, Me., where he is scheduled for a theatrical engagement, the court bailiff looked popeyed after him as he fingered the crisp fine money. He was heard to murmur:

"An actor feller with real money on him! That was a bad depression we had—while it lasted!"

14 AIR DEATHS PROBED; HUNT 3RD PLANE

By Associated Press

Cheyenne, Wyo., Oct. 8—Investigators searched the wreckage of two airplanes today trying to learn why they crashed in the west with 14 deaths. At the same time hope dwindled for the safety of three persons missing in a third ship since Sunday.

There was doubt that even the close inspection of the United States department of commerce would throw clear light upon the worst of the accidents, the fall of a United Airlines passenger ship near here that killed 12.

The plane apparently struck a hilltop and careened crazily for several hundred yards, scattering the bodies of its occupants over the rough terrain.

A theory the two pilots of the sleek twin-motored craft may have been overcome by carbon monoxide gas was not borne out by blood tests.

The other accident at Lordsburg, N. M., brought flaming death to Lieut.-Col. J. E. Davis of San Diego, marine air force commander, and fatal burns to his mechanic, Sergeant Q. M. Owens, also of San Diego.

Owens, who leaped from the plane, a living torch, just before it smashed into a railroad embankment after taking off for San Diego from the local field, died several hours later in a hospital.

At Salt Lake City the search continued for the missing "Luxury" plane of the Standard Oil Company, unreported since Sunday.

The search turned to northwestern Utah upon the report of a railroad conductor that he saw a strange "blotch" high up on a mountain. Two days of hunting in the Great Sale lake vicinity proved fruitless.

Aboard the plane were R. S. Allen, pilot; G. A. Lenz, co-pilot, and George C. Anderson, mechanic, all of Alameda, Cal.

13 New Paralysis Cases Reported

Thirteen new cases of infantile paralysis were reported today to the state department of public health. Five of them were from Norton and three from Boston.

The epidemic, having reached its peak, is now definitely on the decline, health officials said.

The total number of cases reported for October to date is 107 and for the year, to date, 1187.

In the corresponding period in 1931, the last epidemic year, the total number of cases was 1206.

Sherman Sobs His Woe With Babe in Arms

JANICE SHERMAN

Worcester, Oct. 8 — Newell P. Sherman, whose composure was unruffled by a jury's verdict of death, broke down with his baby daughter in his arms.

Janice Sherman, two, was smuggled into the jail yesterday to glimpse her father for the first time since his arrest, July 21, for the "American Tragedy" slaying of his wife.

They met in anteroom in the presence of Sherman's parents and several jail guards.

At first the child seemed not to recognize her father in the gray-garbed giant prisoner who stood eagerly watching her.

Then she toddled toward him, arms outstretched.

He clasped her in his arms and broke down completely, shaken by loud, violent sobs as all the pent-up emotion of three months broke through the floodgates of his reticence. She put her hands against his face.

It was some time before he recovered. Then he got down on hands and knees and romped with her.

When Mr. and Mrs. Lewis H. Sherman took her away at the end of an hour's visit, he broke down again.

For the first time he seemed to realize all that he had lost.

MAE WEST BALKS EXTORT QUIZ

By Associated Press

Los Angeles, Oct. 8—Joseph E. O. Dunn, Department of Justice agent, asked Mae West to come up and see him today about a reported extortion plot in which a suspect is being held.

Dunn said he attempted to get into personal communication with the actress and that she refused to see him, sending word she would like to have the entire investigation deferred to a later date.

The agent indicated the government liked to act swiftly against extortioners and let Miss West know her presence at his office was desired as soon as possible.

Seven men were taken in custody after a tense half hour in the heart of Hollywood last night, during which police detectives, armed with sub-machin guns and sawed off shotguns surrounded a designated "payoff" spot .

Subsequently, all but one, who was booked on suspicion of extortion, were released.

Held was George Janios, 38, a bus boy in the Fox Studio restaurant. He denied he was involved in the alleged $1000 plot, which Cavett said threatened death or disfigurement of Miss eWst.

Charles Street Gift Shop Looted

Currency, jewelry and negotiable bonds valued in total at $1656 were stolen today from the Carry-On Gift Shop? Charles street, West End, a store conducted on a charity basis and patronized by Boston society.

Thieves forced a rear window, looted an open safe and cleaned out a window display of odd pieces of jewelry.

It was at first believed that the robbery totaled close to $10,000 but $8000 worth of negotiable bonds that had been in the safe were found intact in a back room in an envelope also containing 10 pairs of suede gloves. The thieves apparently discarded them.

Included in the loot was $185 in cash and a valuable engagement ring.

The break was discovered by Mrs. George Prowse, of Myrtle street, a bookkeeper. Miss Clara Bentley, of Arlington street, store manager, and police were notified.

Kills Self in Lake

Worcester, Oct. 9—Miss Mary J. O'Connor, 60, a patient at Worcester State Hospital here, died on the way to City Hospital today, after being taken from Lake Quinsigamond where she had immersed herself in four feet of water.

77 TO BRAVE WAR

N. E. Folk to Sail on Italian Ship

If there is danger in traveling the Mediterranean these days, 77 New Englanders do not care.

They've booked on the Italian liner Roma, due to sail from Boston, October 26, for a Mediterranean cruise.

Harold J. Fieskel, New England manager of the Italian lines, said today:

"Naturally there is no danger for Italian vessels in the Mediterranean. The fact that 77 persons are already booked for the cruise, which means the round trip, indicates business is better than usual."

In New York the port development conference dispatched a strong protest to President Roosevelt concerning his "trade warning" to firms and individuals doing business with Italy.

The conference brands the President's admonition as virtually "the first application of economic sanctions on Italy," pointing out that 90 per cent of the Italian-American business flows through New York—amounting to approximately $100,000,000 a year.

Outstanding among the President's critics is Ugo D'Annunzio, naturalized American son of the poet, Gabrielle D'Annunzio, hero of Fiume, who coupled his criticism of the trade warning with high praise of Il Duce. He said:

"Unless the President has secret information that England plans to torpedo Italian ships there is no occasion for any warning."

Talmadge Loses Cotton Fight

By Associated Press

Albany, Ga., Oct. 8.—Governor Eugene Ta'madge today lost in United States District Court a move by which he sought to tie the hands of United States district attorneys in Georgia from prosecuting violators of the Bankhead Cotton Control Act.

United States District Judge Bascom Deaver denied the governor's petition to amend his earlier Bankhead injunction suit to restrain district attorneys from prosecuting persons for violation of the cotton law.

COURT HOLDS BRIDEGROOM

Love brought a bridegroom of a day into East Cambridge court today and he was held in $500 on a charge of having a small pistol in his automobile.

It was all on account of a love spat, Attorney John H. Hurley, counsel for Wilfred A. Marshall, 22, of Wall street, Arlington, declared.

Marshall, the lawyer asserted, had the tiny vest pocket pistol in his car as a measure of self-protection because he had persuaded a girl to leave the car of a swain called "Chick" and to enter his car.

As a result, the two youths quarreled and Marshall procured the weapon as protection, according to his counsel.

Then the attorney worked up to his climax and announced that Marshall and the girl, Miss Mary E. Pike of 1285 Massachusetts avenue, Arlington, had been married yesterday in Nashua, N. H.

Police told the court that the lad called "Chick" had informed them that Marshall had a gun without a license. The pistol, police said, was found in Marshall's car while it was parked in Massachusetts avenue, Arlington.

Husband Stabbed In Row Over Wife

Daniel G. Sears, 30, of Sixth street, Medford, told police he was stabbed with a penknife today in an altercation with a 19-year-old youth over Mrs. Sears.

Several chest wounds were inflicted. Sears was treated at Haymarket Relief hospital, and taken to Milk street station for questioning.

Police are seeking a shipping clerk at a Summer street address.

"STRONG MAN" CCC HERO

By Associated Press

Palmer, Oct. 8—Casper de More of East Lynn, "strong man" of the Brimfield CCC camp, became a hero in the eyes of his fellows today when he carried a wounded companion two miles through the woods to the camp hospital.

John Lata of Holyoke had severely wounded himself in the leg with a machete. So severe was the wound that it was feared Lata would bleed to death.

De More came to the rescue and carried the injured man to the hospital.

Suspect Plunges Out of Window

Brockton, Oct. 8—Charged with larceny from his mother, a Brockton youth leaped through a second-story window at police headquarters today and suffered injuries from which he may die.

Stanley Kavalouskas, 20, of Wilmington street, on parole from Concord Reformatory, made the leap, taking window glass and frame, in an apparent attempt to escape.

He was being fingerprinted at that time by Captain Oscar A. Johnson and Anthony LeCaire of the State police.

The youth landed on the sidewalk in front of the guard room. Patrolmen George Wilber, Einer Thompson, and John Anderson saw him stagger to his feet and try to run.

They chased him and caught him within 50 yards.

At Brockton Hospital, where his name was placed on the danger list, it was reported he had broken bones in leg and shoulder and possibly in his back.

COURT TO HEAR PWA DISPUTE

Court battles to require four unions to permit completion of Medford's $250,000 PWA road and sidewalk project were begun today by the M. McDonough Construction Company of Saugus.

The company sought an injunction in equity court against the Cement Finishers' Union, local 534; International Union of Hoisting and Portable Engineers; Teamsters, Chauffeurs and Helpers' Union, local 42, and Teamsters and Chauffeurs Union, local 379.

Twenty-three Medford streets, now torn up with the construction which was begun August 15, are affected, and more than 100 PWA workers are involved.

The trouble began October 4, when members of the Cement Finishers' Union demanded the calling off of non-union men in their craft, and installation of union members.

Hearing on the injunctions is set in the Pemberton square courthouse at 10 a. m. tomorrow.

DROWNED WIFE CLUES LEAD TO CHELSEA; SEEK SUITOR

Clues to the mystery death of Mrs. Ida G. Baker, 30, young Malden mother whose body was found in Boston harbor, led state detectives to Malden and Chelsea today.

A man reported as a cause of the estrangement of Mrs. Baker and her husband, Solomon Baker, was one object of the search. His identity is known but his whereabouts is a mystery. He was a sweetheart of Mrs. Baker before her marriage and later persisted in his attentions.

Detectives are also seeking the identity of another man with whom Mrs. Baker occasionally was seen.

SKIRT STILL MISSING

Investigators are convinced that when Mrs. Baker told relatives upon leaving home Friday night that she had an appointment with her husband, she was using a pretext to keep an appointment with another man.

The autopsy upon her bruised body, found floating 10 miles down the harbor Sunday, continued today in search of evidence of a possible attack.

City police searched the harbor waterfront from Charlestown to South Boston for the victim's missing skirt, hat and handbag. In the latter she carried a considerable sum of money when she left home, and the chance that she was the victim of murder for robbery was not being overlooked.

SCOUT SUICIDE THEORY

Check of her acquaintances is being made in search of one who may own a boat. Police and the medical examiners are disinclined to believe that her body floated so far down the harbor from the Atlantic avenue waterfront.

The trend of the inquiry was toward an inquest, which may be held in Hingham court within a week. This would put up to the court the problem of deciding whether the back and leg bruises, which doctors hold indicate Mrs. Baker was shoved to her death, are compatible with a suicide theory.

That the victim dined heartily shortly before she met death is strong evidence against suicide, police declare. Where she dined, and with whom, are major points the investigation seeks to establish.

Baker, released after being held for questioning since Sunday night, expressed pleasure at being freed and sorrow for his dead wife, from whom he was estranged.

In an exclusive interview with the Boston Evening American Baker said:

"Of course we didn't get along. But I'm truly sorry it ended this way.

"I have been trying to get a divorce from her. I would much rather have her alive and divorced from me than lying on a morgue slab.

"We quarreled a lot because I'm pretty hot-tempered. But I wish that she was still here."

He expressed interest in reports by the medical examiners, Dr. Timothy Leary and Dr. John G. Sweeney of bruises on the body.

MAY LOSE GIRL

He also expressed concern about his daughter, Shirley, 5.

"I guess she'll be fatherless as well as motherless now," he said ruefully.

"My wife's family will probably want to take her. I guess that will be best for her.

"I don't expect to go to my wife's funeral. It's not that I don't want to. But her parents and family will take charge of it and I imagine there might be some difficulty if I tried to attend."

He expressed the conviction she was murdered and declared he would do everything in his power to help police run down her slayer.

2 Held in $50,000 In $5 Holdup

Because, police charge, they refused to accept a compromise of 50 cents each to buy cigars, and, nistead, took $5 from Frank Chin, Chinese laundryman in Granite street, Quincy, at gunpoint, two men were today held in $25,000 bail each for Norfolk Superior Court.

They are James W. Moore, 23, Moreland street, Roxbury, and Joseph Mangiasi, 23, Blue Hill avenue, Roxbury. Arraignment was in Quincy court.

Police charge that on September 3 they entered Chin's laundry, and committed the robbery. Chin allegedly identified them yesterday.

Crash Ship Towed To New London

New London, Ct., Oct. 8—The Pronto, 90-foot British motorship which collided Sunday with the Coast Guard patrol boat Argo, was towed into New London today, a few hours after she sunk off Montauk Point, L. I., and suddenly reappeared above the surface.

The craft, barely visible above the water, came into the harbor on the end of tow line fastened to the stern of the Coast Guard cutter Champlain.

HARBOR DEATH VICTIM, HUSBAND

SOLOMON BAKER

"We didn't get along—but I'm sorry she's dead!" That's the comment of Solomon Baker, estranged husband of Mrs. Ida Goldman Baker of Dorchester, whose body was found floating in Boston harbor.

RITCHIE GIRL'S DEATH FALL IS PROBED

The deathe plunge of Miss Barbara Ritchie, 20, member of a prominent Winchester family, at Phillips House, Massachusetts General Hospital, was under investigation today.

Authorities have not determined whether she fell from the window of her fourth floor room or from a greater height on the eight-story building.

She had been under treatment at the hospital for the past six weeks.

OVERSTUDY BLAMED

Her father, Fred E. Ritchie, of Wedgemere avenue, Winchester, said she had been suffering from malnutrition, caused by a nervous breakdown brought on by overstudy.

Her illness had prevented her entering Wellesley College this fall.

Her nurse had left the hospital room to bring a supper tray. When she returned Miss Ritchie was missing.

At the same time a taxicab driver outside the building heard a crash and discovered the young woman's body lying on the pavement.

SCREENS AT WINDOWS

Her father announced his belief she had fallen from the window of her fourth floor room.

Hospital authorities, however, pointed to the fact that all windows in the building are guarded with heavy screens.

They lean to the theory she may have gone to the roof of the building and fallen from that height.

Betty Alden on 'Beacon Hill'

Recent Brides Among Guests At Art Show Opening

By BETTY ALDEN

"AND SO," THEY SAY IN THE STORY books, "the handsome prince and his golden-haired princess were married and lived happily ever after" . . . But being poor newspaper reporters, the fairy story writers omit a point which is interesting to the public, and that is where the happy couple will make their home . . .

The usual custom for the princes and princesses of Boston society is to take a wedding trip and then return to build their nests on Beacon Hill . . . Because of its convenient location the Hill has always been a favorite nesting tree . . . shops and diversions for the new wife are near at hand, and hubby has but a short walk to State street on blustery winter mornings . . .

MRS. NATHANIEL WINTHROP

Yet it seems that this year the Hill is losing a little of its appeal . . . A great many newlyweds are making their homes in Cambridge, the city across the Charles which, though not as convenient, offers a sophisticated collegiate atmosphere and produces the best accent and "wiffle" haircuts in the country . . .

So once again the lure of intellectuality has triumphed over lowly practicability . . .

Two new citizens of Cambridge are Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Winthrop who have just returned from their honeymoon in Spain . . . Nat finds their new address very convenient to the law school where he is studying and Serita can dash in town to the Vincent Club and Junior League meetings in practically no time at all . . .

Their life need not, however, be made up wholly of studies and urban amusements, for Nat's mother is keeping her Hamilton house open until the first of December, and the bride and groom will make many week-end trips to enjoy the beauties of New England autumn and to ride and hunt with Kay Winthrop, one of the shore's most active sportswomen . . .

In about a week the latch strings will be open to the friends of the William Hathaway Farnhams, in their new apartment in Cambridge . . . Though they just returned from a Bermuda honeymoon on Sunday, the bride, Mary Illsley Farnham, is a domestic little person and will have everything in readiness for her first guests in a very few days . . . She and Bill were married at St. Michaels in Milton the 19th of September, and though Bill works in a bank in town, they chose Cambridge for their first home because so many of their friends live there . . .

Mason Hammond and his attractive bride from New Orleans will hold a housewarming before long in another Cambridge apartment . . . They came north after their honeymoon in the Pocono mountains, to spend a little time with Mason's mother in Nahant, while they looked for the apartment into which they just moved . . .

Although not entirely a stranger to Boston society, this bride will have to suffer the ordeal of meeting a lot of new people when she and Mason go about to parties . . . She has visited here frequently with the Guido Pereras on Beacon Hill but Mason took up most of her time on those visits . . . leaving her little opportunity to become acquainted with Bostonians . . .

Bride Greets New Friends at Art Tea

YESTERDAY AFTERNOON, Mason proudly presented his bride to many guests who attended the tea for Mrs. Elizabeth O'Neill Verner at the Doll and Richards Gallery . . . The occasion marked the opening of an exhibition of pastels and prints by Mrs. Verner, a native of Charleston, S. C. . . .

It was a very democratic crowd which gathered about the tea table . . . several other southerners were there chatting with Mrs. Hammond and greeting the artist and her daughter, Mrs. John H. Hamilton of Cambridge and Charleston, wife of a Harvard faculty member . . . Though Mrs. Verner's exhibit is a pleasure to her many Boston friends, her visit here has a double purpose, for she will remain to greet the infant grandchild who will soon arrive at her daughter's household . . .

Mrs. Hammond, the bride, was dressed in a black silk afternoon dress with a satin tie and a square black felt beret trimmed with a wisp of black veil . . . She is quite tall, and dark and has a very dignified and charming bearing, even in those affectionate tete a tetes with her bridegroom, when both seemed absolutely oblivious of the people around them . . .

Jane Frost and her father came in from Dover for the occasion and others who acknowledged their interest in Mrs. Verner and her work by attending, were Mrs. John L. Grandin and her daughter, Isabella, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Perry, Mrs. Charles Gaston Smith, Mrs. Dunbar Lockwood of Topsfield, Mrs. C. C. Leslie Glenn, Mrs. Robert Soutter Jr., with her mother-in-law, Mrs. Robert Soutter of Norfolk and Marlborough street, and the debutante of the family, Miss Anne Soutter . . . The latter was a busy lady passing tea and cakes, and wore a simple checked frock of pale rust tones with a dark brown hat. . . .

Also there were Miss Aimee Lamb, Mrs. Samuel Hammond, Mason's mother, and Dr. and Mrs. Page . . .

Reinette Plimpton Makes Debut

REINETTE PLIMPTON, the deb who recently upheld the sacred traditions of Boston society in a friendly altercation with Lucius Beebe, author of "Boston and the Boston Legend," was informally introduced to society at a luncheon today . . . The party was given by her aunt, Mrs. Earl Melvin Major at her home in Newton Center.

Miss Plimpton received her guests, numbering about 80, gowned in a moss green frock with bronze orchids pinned on her shoulder. Mrs. Major wore black silk with purple orchids and Mrs. T. Barnet Plimpton, the deb's mother, chose a gown of Dubonnet red shot with silver.

Miss Elise Wetter, of Memphis, who was Miss Plimpton's roommate at Westover, and who is Mimi Little's house guest, is seeing two of her intimate friends launched into society during her stay here; one at today's luncheon, and one at tomorrow evening's dance for Mimi Little at the Concord Country Club . . .

DEBUTANTE Aids at Bazaar For Mission

MISS FRANCES B. LOWELL, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Lowell of Mt. Vernon street, is holding an Eskimo doll made of sealskin on which she and sister debutantes sold chances at the colorful Grenfell Bazaar held to benefit the Labrador mission. Wearing a tomato color sweater and skirt, Miss Lowell added considerable brightness to the vivid pageant at the bazaar.

Graduation Plans

Mrs. Alexander Whiteside, chairman of the Nursery Maid Committee of the Convalescent Home of the Children's Hospital, is being assisted by Mrs. George P. Reynolds in preparations for the annual graduation, which will be held on Wednesday evening, Oct. 16, at 8 o'clock.

Officers and members of the board of directors of the school are Mrs George H. Monks, president; Miss Mary B. Lothrop, vice-president; Mrs. Horatio G. Curtis, Mrs. Henry S. Trumbell, honorary vice-presidents; Mr. H. W. Dwight Rudd, treasurer; Mrs. I. McD. Garfield, assistant treasurer; Mrs. Nelson S. Bartlett, secretary.

Also Miss Lillian A. Guilod, Robert T. Gannett, S. Hooper Hooper, H. W. Dwight Rudd, Mrs. Fuller Albright, Mrs. Robert Amory, Miss Anna W. Cutler, Mrs. George P. Denney, Mrs. F. Murray Forbes, Mrs. John L. Hall, Miss Jane Garfield, Mrs. Hollis Hunnewell, Mrs. George S. Mumford, Jr., Mrs. Eliot Pratt, Mrs. George P. Reynolds, Mrs William Stanwood, Mrs. Robert M. Tappan, Mrs. A. Winson Weld, Mrs. Stephen M. Weld, Mrs. Alexander Whiteside and Mrs. Thomas Whiteside.

Society Notes

MR. AND MRS. RICHARD KING THORNDIKE, JR., of Boston, are visiting Hot Springs, Va., on their wedding trip. Mrs. Thorndike is the former Lucy Saltonstall Rantoul, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Neal Rantoul of Marlborough street and Beverly Farms.

Lecture Will Open Academy Season

"ORIGINS, Development and Values, Cultural and Ethical of the Drama," will be the subject of a talk by Rev. Carol L. Bernhardt, member of the faculty of Weston College, before members of the Bellarmine Academy of Boston at ten o'clock tomorrow.

The meeting at the Commonwealth Country Club, Chestnut Hill, marks the opening of the academy's third season and the beginning of a new series of lecture programs on world affairs, literature, history and art.

Preceding the lecture, Mrs. Joseph H. Shortell, president, will turn the meeting over to Mrs. Edward A. McLaughlin who will act as moderator over a round-table discussion on current literature.

Scanlon-Bearse

Choosing her mother's 23rd anniversary as her happiest day, Miss Dorothea Bearse, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter L. Bearse of Dorchester, was wed to John Joseph Scanlon of South Boston, on Sunday afternoon in St. Margaret's Church in Dorchester. Rev. Father Keagan performed the ceremony.

Th bride wore a gown of duchess satin with long train and a veil of tulle held by a tiny cap of pearls. She carried a bouquet of lilies, roses and gardenias. Miss Mary Lynch of South Boston was maid of honor and wore mist blue satin with which she carried briar-cliff roses.

Four attractive bridesmaids, Kathleen Burke of Roxbury, Mary Cannon of South Boston, Helen Scanlon and Rita Scanlon of Dorchester, were dressed alike in floor-length gowns and satin, two wearing plum tones with close fitting yellow hats and carried souvenir roses and two, in royal blue with peach hats and bouquets of talisman roses.

Mr. Scanlon is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Scanlon of South Boston. After a wedding trip to New York and the South, Mr. and Mrs. Scanlon will make their home on Edgewater drive in Hyde Park.

Ceremony In Salem

Jane Kelsey Plans Church Bridal Oct. 19

A ROMANCE which began in Washington, where the principals both hold government jobs, will culminate in the wedding on October 19, of Jane Kelsey, a former Boston debutante, to John Jerome Hart, son of Mrs. Richard Hart of Denver, Colorado.

The bride-to-be is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harlan P. Kelsey of East Boxford and Salem, and will have her sister, Mrs. Henry Severance Sawyer (Katherine Kelsey) of Dalton as her only bridal attendant.

The First Church in Salem will be the scene of the 4 o'clock service which will be read by the Rev. Bradford Gale. Mr. Stephen Hart of Denver will be the best man.

Miss Kelsey, who made her debut in 1931 at a large party at the Women's Republican Club, graduated from Smith College in 1934.

During the summer vacation after her junior year at college she studied in Geneva on a scholarship awarded by the Students International Union of New York. For the past year she has had a position with the Resettlement Administration in Washington.

Mr. Hart, who was graduated from Harvard in 1925, was a Rhodes scholar at Oxford, graduating in 1928. He is a lawyer with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation in Washington and will take his bride to Alexandria, Va., which is right across the Potomac from Washington, to make their home.

Miss Swift Elected to Board

MISS ELIZABETH FROTHINGHAM SWIFT, head of the volunteers of the Boston Dispensary and Floating Hospital, was elected a member of the Ladies committee of the New England Medical Center, at the regular monthly meeting.

The meeting was held yesterday afternoon at the medical center and Mrs. Charles C. Cabot presided.

Standing committees were organized and appointed at the meeting.

Mrs. Otis Weld Robinson takes charge of the Thrift Shop work. Mrs. Henry Bowditch heads the new house committee with a co-chairman yet to be appointed.

Miss Pauline Ehrlich will continue as publicity chairman and Mrs. Richard Lawrence is to be chairman of the Christmas committee, while her mother, Mrs. George J. Prescott, will superintend the making of surgical dresses.

Mrs. Frances S. Moulton is chairman of the nominating committee and two committees, the entertainment and the executive, are yet to be formed.

Society Notes

MR. ERNEST G. HOWES of Cohasset, who is taking a trip through the Middle West, is now in Chicago where he is stopping at the Hotel Blackstone.

* * *

MRS. WILLIAM HEWSON BALTZELL arrived in New York recently aboard the Bremen and is staying at the St. Regis Hotel for a few days before returning to her home in Wellesley. Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Wigglesworth of Marblehead and Mr. Henry S. Woodbridge of Brookline are also visiting the St. Regis.

Luncheon

Mrs. Albert J. Beveridge of Indianapolis and Beverly Farms gave one of the last parties of the season on the North Shore, Sunday, when she entertained about 50 young people at luncheon.

The party was in honor of Frances "Fuzzy" Fabyan, debutante daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Marshail Fabyan of Boston and Beverly, who will have her formal presentation at a dance in the town on December 4. She is one of the few Boston girls who will have the honor of receiving an invitation to the Bachellor's Cotillion in Baltimore early in December.

This Is Life by ROBERT E. ROGERS

The young architects at Technology are going to have lots of fun. For a good many years they have had a course in office practice, but now the department has decided to go into the laboratory method of teaching in a large way.

The boys are going to build a house from stem to stern.

Robert E. Rogers

"The new plan of instruction will include the selection and purchase of a suitable lot, making plans and specifications on a moderate sized house, selecting a building contractor, and supervision of every step of construction. The work will be carried on with the constant assistance and supervision of the faculty. Upon completion the house will be sold and the proceeds used to purchase a new location and finance the building of another house for the next year's class.

"During the first few weeks of the opening term the class will become familiar with various phases of architectural office practice. (I hope it will not be that familiarity which breeds contempt).

"They will then make a study of the proposed location, taking into consideration such economic and social factors as transportation, real estate values, taxes, mortgages, deeds, building laws, surveying and methods of financing."

And so on and so on. My guess is that by the time the job is done many of the embryo architects will be looking for another job, something without quite so much heartbreak in it.

I hope it will not be made too easy for them. There ought to be a good, old-fashioned savings bank mortgage expert who was brought up to be thrifty with the bank's money. If they want to make it harder, of course, they might try to get the money out of the Federal Treasury, the Home Loan Reconstruction Corporation, but maybe that would be straining the capacities of the boys and girls a little too much.

Roars of Anguish

Then the Faculty really ought to appoint a competent gentleman and lady for possible clients. The man should have ideas of his own on every technical problem and emit roars of anguish at every extra penny that has to be expended above the estimate.

The lady ought to be one of those geniuses who believes that any woman can design a house better than the best architect and who is full of cute afterthoughts about conveniences after the plans are completed. A useful bit of experience will come when the boys discover that the house actually costs one-third more than the outside estimate and the client says "Go ahead and sue!"

For the best results the Faculty ought also to retain one old-fashion trades union walking delegate, one versed in every trick of the trade in union law, who knows exactly what each craft is and isn't allowed to do, who can call strikes on technicalities all day long and still remain fresh as a daisy, and who will tie up the enterprise as tight as union jealousies, rights, and prerogatives allow.

Test the Plaster

Then I suggest hiring for a year a really competent inspector from city hall, one who knows of only one way of doing a thing and that's his way, one who accepts cigars and an occasional drink as his lawful perquisites, who gets easily offended and has to be smoothed down, and who gives the impression that a twenty dollar bill tactfully distributed here and there will not be considered an insult. He will teach the boys a lot about life as it is lived and how things are done in the big world outside.

And if he has a friend who is in the business of supplying "protection," at suitable prices, in lieu of sudden and unexpected pineapples, he, too, will prove a potent factor in education.

I hope the Faculty will run a parade of huge trucks past the house of an evening to see how well the plastering stands up.

I hope the boys will want to build a garage on a thoroughly inadequate piece of land surrounded on all sides by cantankerous neighbors who won't stand a garage on any terms.

And finally, I shall look forward with lively expectation to seeing the boys sell their house in a depression market for something more than 25 per cent of what it cost, including first and second mortgages, leaving enough capital left to do the whole thing over again next year.

I like that phrase "the house will be sold ' and also "the house will then be turned over to the Institute authorities for sale." Treasurer (Uncle Horace) Ford has pulled many a financial rabbit out of his hat in these latter years, and maybe this one will not stump him.

The happiest solution will be for some member of the Faculty to find himself so enchanted with the house the boys have built that he will hurry to turn over his life's savings and buy it. But what profiteth it a professor if he has a wife who wants to remodel it all over?

Schedule Changed

Due to many complications in arranging dates with famous musicians, Mrs. John W. Meyers, chairman of the Boston Morning Musicales, announces that several changes have been made in the original schedule of the series of 'mornings" which benefit the Boston School of Occupational Therapy.

The eighth season will open in the ballroom of the Statler Hotel on November 20 and will close on March 4.

The program for the season is as follows: Fritz Kreisler, November 20; Kirsten Flagstad, December 4; Helen Jepson and Richard Bonnelli, December 18; Joseph Hofmann, January 15; Giovanni Martinelli and Emanuel Feuermann, February 5, and Elisabeth Rethberg on March 4.

Mrs. H. Parker Whittington is assisting Mrs. Meyers in directing the large committee.

Among those who have accepted invitations to serve on the committee are Mrs. Harold G. Cutler, Mrs. Charles D. Russell, Miss Elizabeth C. Leland, Mrs. A. Barr Comstock, Mrs. Lawrence Black and Mrs. William C. Cox.

"Here are youthful, slender lines—where they count most! Lastex Tu-Way stretch—for comfort. A very flat back—for the season's smartest styles and the price is only $5.00."

STAGE Keeps Up Hunt for Real Hit

By GEORGE HOLLAND

As far as this column can make out at this distance from New York, not one solid success has developed in the Broadway area from the most promising early season array of potential dramatic hits in several seasons.

Damon Runyon and Howard Lindsay wrote a melodramatic farce that was earmarked all over a smash. It was called "A Slight Case of Murder," certainly an intriguing title. The reviews were only half-heartedly cordial and prosperity was slow in turning the corner of Broadway and 48th street. But "A Slight Case of Murder" is doing very well now, although it is far from a "smash."

George Holland

The Theater Guild's "If This Be Treason," a pacifistic play, is a commercial failure. A dramatization of the powerful novel "Paths of Glory," will not continue long probably. The critics are raving about Maxwell Anderson's "Winterset," but "Winterset" is not attracting the public in paying numbers.

A show by Phil Dunning called "Remember the Day" is doing fairly well, and another called "Squaring the Circle" is reported as showing a first week's profit.

• • •

These are a few of a large early crop of plays which will harvest more red ink—much more—than black. A great deal is expected of Philip Barry's new play, "Bright Star," which opens here tonight at the Plymouth under the sponsorship and direction of Arthur Hopkins.

"Bright Star" had a try-out last season and the author has worked hard on his manuscript to perfect it for this season's showing. The cast, including Lee Tracy, Julie Haydon and Jean Dixon, is really something. It is the most important premiere of the week, in or out of New York, as far as plays without music are concerned.

Unless something in the way of pay dirt pans out in the week's openings in New York, Boston and Philadelphia, a writer named William Shakespeare must be accredited with the sole solid success of the early season. His "Taming of the Shrew," with Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne, is buoying the ticket-brokers in the hope that other hits will come along.

Marguerite Churchill In Screen Comeback

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

Copyright, 1935, by Universal Service

Los Angeles, Oct. 8—One of the most fascinating looking women in Hollywood is Marguerite Churchill, the wife of George O'Brien who was at one time one of the best known screen actresses.

Marguerite has been out of the movies for several years. In fact, her last picture was a Fox drama, "The Girl With The Room" opposite Charles Farrell.

Louella O. Parsons

Marguerite didn't want to come back to the screen until she had just the right picture and contract. And now it's all arranged. She has signed a long term contract with Warner Brothers and her first picture will be "Invitation To A Murder," based on the Broadway play by Rufus King.

F. Hugh Herbert and Robert Lee are already at work preparing the screen play for her.

One of our New York scouts sends word that Richard Barthelmess will make independent pictures on the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot. Of course, this is contingent on whether or not the deal which he is making with ERPI goes through.

Dick is arranging to form his own company and he has the promise of Ronald Colman, William Powell, Clive Brook and others of his close friends, and if it's possible for them to make any outside pictures they will appear in the Barthelmess movies.

Universal is preparing to welcome Edgar A. Guest who leaves his home in Detroit this next week for the film capital. Mr. Guest will work with Irvin S. Cobb on a story called "Home." Not only will those two famous writers do their writing stint but they will also act.

Seems that since Irvin has been broken in to the screen he doesn't mind it and acting isn't as objectionable as it was in the beginning. Seems you can get used to anything.

Not in the wildest stretch of imagination could I see Gary Cooper as the Buffalo Bill we remember. But Cecil B. De Mille sees in Gary the perfect prototype of the young and glamorous Buffalo Bill and, believe it or not, Gary is very much intrigued. But I am afraid because of previous commitments Monsieur Cooper will have to forgo the pleasure of playing this fascinating hero.

Snapshots of Hollywood

BUSBY BERKELEY still shaky and far from his usual self, on the Warner lot for the first time since his tragic automobile accident; SAM COSLOW and ESTHER MUIR saying au revoir to friends. They leave for Russia in a few days.

WARNER OLAND recuperating from his CHARLIE CHAN activities in Mexico City; KEYE LUKE, gifted Chinese, has signed a seven-year contract. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

English Film At Fine Arts

Tomorrow brings the American premiere of the English musical film, "The Divine Spark," starring Marta Eggerth, Phillips Holmes and Benita Hume, at the Fine Arts Theaters.

Miss Eggerth, now under contract in Hollywood, first won favor on the Continent and in England. Her most recent film success, which won for her her American contract, was "The Unfinished Symphony."

The story of "The Divine Spark" is based on the life of the Italian composer, Vincenzo Bellini, and the background is the beautiful Bay of Naples.

Miss Eggerth sings arias from "Norma" and "La Sonnambula," the young American, Phillips Holmes, has the role of the composer, and Benita Hume takes the part of the famous prima donna, Ginditta Pasta.

The final screenings of "William Tell," starring Conrad Vedit, take place tonight.

At the Tremont

Tomorrow's attractions at the Tremont include May Robson in "Strangers All," and "The Daring Young Man" starring James Dunn and Mae Clarke.

Closing tonight are "Ginger," with Jackie Searle and Jane Withers, and "Little Men," featuring Ralph Morgan and Erin O'Brien Moore.

Charms and Talents on Stage and Screen

Nino Martini, star tenor of opera and radio, makes his screen debut in "Here's To Romance," which comes to the Paramount and Fenway Thursday.

Renee Villa whose illuminated bubble dance proved the sensation of London and Paris, comes to the stage at the Keith-Boston Thursday.

Symphony's Season

On Friday afternoon and Saturday evening, Dr. Serge Koussevitzky opens his twelfth season as conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

The program for the opening concerts [illegible] of the Second Symphony in D major by the famous Finnish composer Jean Sibelius, and Brahms's Fourth Symphony in E minor.

Serge Koussevitzky

On the occasion of the Sibelius Festival in Helsingfors last month with the composer in the audience, Dr. Koussevitzky performed the D major Symphony.

The conductor has announced several events of interest and importance which will find a place in his program during the coming season.

In commemoration of the late Charles Martin Loeffler, Massachusetts composer, the "Canticle of the Sun" will be played. A new symphony by Vaughn Williams, first heard in London last season, and the first performance of a new symphony by Albert Roussel will be brought to performance here. Several new symphonies by American composers are under consideration for programs later in the season.

Comedian Tops New Bill

At the Keith-Boston on Thursday, Henry Armetta, another of Hollywood's best known and best liked character actors takes the spotlight as headliner in a new and elaborate stage revue.

The famous Italian comedian, featured in scores of films, has played every type of role from organ grinder to impresario, and is perhaps most for his role as the proud and agitated father in "Little Accident."

The feminine star of the new RKO Boston stage show is Mlle. Renee Villon, whose dance originations have been featured at smart clubs from Agua Caliente to Paris. The 16 Gae Foster Girls are among the other headliners.

The film attraction Thursday will be "King Solomon of Broadway," comedy-drama with music, starring Edmund Lowe and featuring Dorothy Page and composer Pinky Tomlin.

Italy's Army On Screen

New and striking pictures of Mussolini's troops on the march in Eritrea, en route to the invasion of Ethiopia, are included in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News, now at Loew's State and Orpheum Theaters.

The veteran General Bono is in command, and before him pass the thousands of troops on review, and another army of tanks equipped for the siege over the mountain roads.

President Roosevelt talks decisively about American neutrality, and Edwin C. Hill, the Globe Trotter, provides a graphic word picture of events here and abroad.

Other Hearst news events show the grounded liner Rotterdam and the rescue of its passengers, the World Series baseball games and the wreckage of the second Caribbean hurricane.

At Plymouth

Lee Tracy returns to the legitimate stage tonight in Philip Barry's new play, "Bright Star," which opens at the Plymouth. Julie Haydon is co-starred.

Open Tour

The eminent violinist, Fritz Kreisler, will open his American tour at Symphony Hall Sunday afternoon in the first solo concert of the [illegible].

With Carl Lamson as accompanist, Mr. Kreisler will play the G minor Sonata (The Devil's Trill), by Tartini, Sarabande and [illegible] from the D minor Partita [illegible] Concerto [illegible] aux cheveux de lin [illegible] Debussy-Hartmann [illegible] own compositions and arrangements.

26 DRIVEN OUT AS FIRE HITS 3 HOMES

Twenty-six persons were driven to the street, nine children were carried to safety and damage estimated at nearly $3000 was caused by three fires in the South End and Mattapan today.

The fires broke out in rapid order within two hours, the first in a four-story lodging house in Columbus avenue, South End.

Twelve persons, three of them children, were driven out in this blaze and damage of $1000 caused.

The second fire, in a Morton street, Mattapan, garage, was discovered by Patrolman Edward Kildeen on duty in the nearby Mattapan station.

The third fire occured in a three-story dwelling in Angell street, Mattapan. Nathan Seldov, third floor occupant, sounded the alarm.

Patrolmen Joseph Snyder and Edward Logan rescued the three children of Seldov and four children of Mrs. Lena Strauss. Two children of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Berg were carried to safety by firemen.

Rescued in Mattapan Fire

Firemen carrying these two children to safety today when fire swept a three-family home in Angel street, Mattapan. The rescued youngsters are Sandra Berg, five, and Jackie Berg, eight, daughter and son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Berg.

"Diamond Jim" Contest Entries Due Tomorrow

Hurry! This is the last ory of the Boston Evening American-"Diamond Jim" Sup Salesman contest in which $15 in cash and theater courte tickets are being awarded.

ELSIE ROBINSON, who writes from a man viewpoint, often with startling nfidence, every day in the Boston marican.

All answers must be mailed or delivered before tomorrow at midnight.

All you have to do is become eligible for some of the cash prizes which await the lucky winners is to make a list of the ten requisitions of a master salesman in the order of their importance.

Send it to the "Diamond Jim" Contest Editor, Boston American 5 Winthrop Square, Boston.

No employe of this paper or the Keith theaters is eligible to compete.

The contest was inspired by "Diamond Jim" Brady, master salesman and be-jeweled man-about-town in the Gay 90's era. His tremendous appetite and thousand-dollar parties were the talk of the country.

His success and romances are vividly portrayed by Edward Arnold in the picture "Diamond Jim" now at the Keith Memorial.

The prizes: First, $5 in cash, second and third, $2.50 in cash, the next five $1 in cash with the following 25 winners being awarded guest tickets to see this exciting film. So, send your entry in immediately and Good Luck.

Lawyer Freed In $2500 Bail

Newfane, Vt., Oct. 7—Elfred F. Killeen, Bellows Falls lawyer, today was released on $2500 bail on a chacge of forgery.

Killeen entered a plea of not guilty in the Windham County Court. The bail was increased from $1000 to $2500.

It is charged that Killeen forged the signature of Robert P. Hamel of Bristol, Ct., in the settlement of a damage suit from an automobile accident.

Disbarment proceedings are pending against Killeen in Supreme Court.

Italian Consul Seeks Guard

By International News Service

Vera Cruz, Mexico, Oct. 8—The Italian consul here, Gustavo Dela Lluna, applied to military authorities for protection today following storming of the consulate by a pro-Ethiopian mob.

The crowd, shouting "Death to Mussolini," heavily stoned the building. The demonstrators were dispersed by police.

Safe Robbers Get $1000 in Malden

Safecrackers entered the furniture store of J. B. Ruderman & Son, in Malden square, while the store was closed for the Jewish holidays and stole $1000.

The loss was discovered today when the son of the proprietor opened the store and discovered the combination pried off the 800-pound safe.

The thieves had smashed a skylight to enter the store.

It's our family's whiskey, neighbor—and neighbor, it's your price!

THIS IS ME

We're back to the horse and buggy age with the price of our whiskey. The boys took this snap of me so you can't see them in the picture. But they are Harry Jr. and William, my sons—and my son-in-law, Tom. All got jobs in the distillery.

Seems like everybody's hankering after our family's whiskey!

I want to say right here that the biggest thrill I get is that stack of orders the postman keeps bringing every day for our family's whiskey. You know, I've been making whiskey some 40 odd years now, but this here is the Wilken Family Whiskey, and it sure does my heart good to see how we've been able to give you something you like so much, and that you're finding it so much milder and smoother than what you've been buying. And I want right here to thank my boys that helped me make it. I'm referring to Harry Jr. and William—and my son-in-law Tom. I guess it's like they say—you must be finding it pretty tasty, judging by your orders and everything. Harry E. Wilken Sr.

Detroit Delirious Over Maiden Series Title

Detroit, Oct. 8—In their delirium at having won the world's highest baseball honor, the joyous outburst of Detroit's people was almost as terrifying as their spasm of rage a year ago when they lost the seventh game and title to the St. Louis Cardinals.

Austen Lake

Hardly had Goose Goslin's victory-hit splashed the outfield grass; scarcely had Mickey Cochrane's spikes brushed the plate then the citizens spilled over the barriers, sprawling and tumbling, to chair their heroes on their shoulders and bear them aloft for public worship.

A volunteer cheer leader, a scarecrow of a man with a tangled thatch of gray hair, mounted the roof of the players' cave and started a rhythmic chant, flailing his arms and inciting the crowd to greater madness.

No cordon of campus cops came out to fringe the hallowed infield and protect the turf from the hordes of adoring lady fans, who punched little gopher holes with their pin-heels and, with male escorts, crowded about the Tiger dugout, seething and swaying till their massed heads looked like a pasture of clover-tops stirred by a summer breeze.

* * *

Detroit's Mardi Gras

In the downtown areas, office windows in the sky-towers spewed torn telephone books and the contents of loose-leaf files till the sky was stifled with floating fragments borne on the up drafts like giant flakes and burying the curbstones under.

Motorists pressed down their siren-buttons making the business district one, vast, aching bowl.

Outside the Book-Cadillac Hotel, trolleys and traffic were clogged by boisterous people who mounted taxi-tops and herded around the portals for some aimless yelling.

Harassed horse-cops were locked in the swirling press. And throughout the night, until the early hours of the morning, the citizens marched in a sidewalk parade, shaking rattles, chanting uproar and making carnival capers.

* * *

What a Difference One Year Makes!

It was the reverse side of the Detroit scene a year ago when the people's hate foamed up and they splashed Navin Field with a garbage barrage and staged a mutiny that brought squadrons of police flying from district stations to quell the uprising.

That series ended with Navin Field a fortified camp and the city's military poking the petulant people with riot sticks.

Yesterday's game, which brought Detroit its first world's baseball prize, will long remain a favorite topic of table talk, playing as it did on the popular fancies like a virtuoso fingering a concert fiddle.

From the moment red-eared Mike Cochrane, the Detroit field foreman, scuttled over the plate with a run in the first inning, the battle teetered like a chemist's scale.

And when, with the score tied at 3-all in the ninth, Stanley Hack of the Cubs shelled a hit to the flagpole and came to roost on third base, with the drugstore lights on the scoreboard showing no outs, the people sucked in their breath and sat with their blood mounting to their scalps.

* * *

She Loves Me; She Loves Not

It seemed that a mischievous fate was teasing a tired people beyond the bursting point. But when Tommy Bridges tucked up his shirttail and struck out Jurges and French and forced Galan to lift a boy's sized fly, the congregation let go its compressed air like a massed blast of 5 o'clock factory whistles.

Providence was kind! Rah! Tiger for Providence!

It was a game that balanced on delicate watch-spring margins, the thickness of a dainty lady's fingernail parings and the width of a night-club sandwich.

In their ninth, Detroit's scoring chance almost curdled when Gehringer fired a shot that Cub Cavarretta fielded by instinct rather than by sight, and the ball squirted out of his glove near first base.

He punched it on the bag and wheeled to double Cochrane. But the throw hit Mike on his wishbone and caromed into Umpire Dolly Stark's crouched figure.

A clean throw would have removed Cochrane and smothered the rally.

* * *

Moriarty 4, Cubs 2

Afterward, as the Cubs sponged their musty persons and prepared to disperse to their homes, they were unanimous that the score of games stood George Moriarty 4, Cubs 2, and they nursed the conviction that the American League's gift to umpiring had filched some $50,000 in extra prize money out of their bank balances.

This was strictly hokum. Yet it is odd how malicious fate will pester a man by enlarging on his troubles.

As if Moriarty had not been vexed enough, he was the focal point of every itchy decision in the final game.

Once, when Augie Galan came spinning into third on the back of his neck, and was tagged by a split-second either way, he rose convulsively and bunted George with his bantam chest. Together he and Manager Charles Grimm sang an aria of outrage.

And again in the sixth, when Stanley Hack ducked under "Flea" Clifton's groping tag and dog-walked on his hands and knees to the bag, Moriarty called him out for wandering off the narrow path.

What made it look worse was that "Flea," realizing he had missed the touch, chased Hack to the sack.

So George performed a Wallace Beery pantomime to show the customers why he did what he did, spraddling his larded person over Hack's old footprints.

Poor George! Winter is coming and he can toast his fatted calves before log fires and gargle toddies to his troubles. And the Cubs can go West and brood over their imagined slights.

But the Detroit people are happy beyond their fondest fancy.

CAVARRETTA GOOSE GOSLIN

FRENCH CHARLEY GEHRINGER UMPIRE STARK

Goose Goslin is Detroit's hero today as a result of his ninth-inning single which scored Mickey Cochrane to win the sixth game, 4 to 3, and the World Series for the Tigers. Here Goose was a goat. He went to second after hitting to French with Charley Gehringer on. Gehringer escaped being [illegible] by smart [illegible]. Here he is arriving back at [illegible]. Imagine his astonishment. Goose was put out trying to get back to first. The fans forgot all that when his single won the game.

All Hail on Suffolk Ineligible List

By Bob Ahearn

Aftermaths of the crowd demonstration at Suffolk Downs in which 2000 irate fans attempted to mob the judges' padoga today.

Herman P. Conkling, presiding steward at the East Boston oval, announced that Mrs. J. Gregory's All Hail has been barred from further competition at Suffolk Downs. All Hail is also ineligible at Narragansett and Rockingham.

The Massachusetts State Racing Commission began an investigation this morning as to why the entry of All Hail was accepted by the track.

All Hail's bad acting at the post is well known. The gelded son of Golden Broom is considered the most unruly of the present day thoroughbreds.

All Hail, installed second choice of the public, wheeled at the start of the eighth race, blocking off Platinum Blonde, the odds on favorite, which had No. 1 post position.

Jockey Herb Lindberg, astride Platinum Blonde, had to take up sharply, bring Hanbla Bauer's mare to a dead stop.

Backing Platinum Blonde with $12,534 across the board, Mr. and Mrs. John Public were aroused to see Appomatox take the [illegible] while their choice finished a [illegible] last. They began a demonstration which took nearly an hour to disperse.

That owner-trainer Hanbla [illegible] foresaw what happened is a known fact.

Early in the afternoon she informed friends that Platinum Blonde was a likely winner on [illegible] that All Hail [illegible] had [illegible].

That All Hail has been a thorn on the side of the starter during the New England campaign can be attested by a glance at the past performance chart.

In a start at the first Suffolk session, a claiming event for three-year-olds and upward, July 23, the footnote reads, "All Hail unruly at the post.

Then again in previous effort, July 5, at Narragansett, in a claiming affair for older horses, it was the same old story, "All Hail unruly at the post."

Danno Conquers Joe Savoldi

New York, Oct. 8 (I.S.)—Danno O'Mahoney, Ireland's famous exponent of the Irish Whip, retained his claim to the world heavyweight wrestling championship by throwing "Jumping Joe" Savoldi in [illegible] minutes [illegible] seconds of a feature finish match in Madison Square Garden.

Savoldi, noted [illegible] ing fullback for Notre Dame [illegible] for his wrestling ability, led to his own undoing by missing a flying tackle, landing with stunning force against the ringpost and offering no resistance when O'Mahoney pinned his shoulders to the mat.

GOLDEN GLOVE Tryouts Friday

Tryouts for the Golden Glove boxing [illegible] will be held Friday [illegible] at the Boston Arena under [illegible] of the Irish American A. C. of South Boston.

Among the many entries pouring in to Tom Kanaly is Peter Brozowski, the 135 pounder who lost a very questionable decision to Jimmy McCarron last Friday.

Second Guessers Get to Work

Detroit Still Celebrating World Series Victory

By Joe Cashman

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 7—The series is over. The Tigers are world's champions.

But it will be weeks before Detroit stops celebrating and returns to sanity, longer still before Chicago stops lamenting what might have been. And not until another season will post mortems on the 1935 classic cease to dominate all baseball conversation.

[illegible] a flock of more [illegible] championship [illegible] been many National League [illegible] more formidable than the present Cubs. Much better baseball was played in several title engagements of the past.

Never, though, did a series bring together two more evenly matched and courageous clubs, provide more unforgettable scenes or supply more ammunition for second-guessing than this meeting of Mickey Cochrane's Bengals and Charlie Grimm's Bruins.

As long as your envoy lives he'll always vividly recall the ninth inning on October 7, 1935, and the spectacle of a metropolis gone mad that followed.

The first half of the frame—Stanley Hack opening with a triple in a bid to break a 3-3 tie. The same Stanley Hack still on third when the half ended. The amazing, incredible interlude with little Tommy Bridges writing an immortal series chapter by fanning Billy Jurges, throwing out Larry French, while he held the runner on third, and then getting Augie Galan on a soft fly to center.

The last half of the frame — Mickey Cochrane getting a single. Mickey Cochrane reaching second with two out. "Goose" Goslin, veteran of a dozen big league campaigns and five World's Series, dropping a single in right field. Mickey Cochrane scoring standing up to end Detroit's 30-year-wait for its first world's championship.

The aftermath—a crowd of 48,000 leaping out of the boxes and lower stands, rushing down from the upper stands, jumping out of the bleachers. A triumphal snake dance. Thousands of hats thrown in the air. Thousands of hands shaken, thousands of backs slapped, thousands of cheeks kissed. A mighty three cheers and a Tiger for every Cochrane charge.

Then out of the park these fans warmed to join countless thousands of other merrymakers, those who couldn't get in for the game but had heard the happy news and were delirious with joy.

BRIDGES GREAT

As an ideal Indian summer afternoon rolled into a moonlit [illegible] the celebrants grew giddier [illegible] more deafening.

Baseball had never before brought about such insanity and probably never will again.

And yet the unprecedented [illegible] in the memory of [illegible] of that sixth and [illegible] and the gallant fight of the Cubs up to the moment that [illegible] Tommy Bridges popped up [illegible] that remarkable display of [illegible] which has never been surpassed on a diamond.

The Cubs weren't supposed to have a chance in this game. They [illegible] Larry "Lefty" French, a [illegible] southpaw, making his first starting start, to pit against Bridges, who had won the second game under wraps.

They were playing on hostile territory and with their backs squarely against the wall. The betting was 2-1 they'd be beaten, and [illegible].

They were finally forced to surrender, but what a fight they put up. What anxious moments they gave those 48,000 fans before it was all over.

The Tigers, taking a one run lead in the opening frame, didn't bother these Chicago kids a bit. The score was tied in the third.

COURAGE

Another Tiger [illegible] the fifth merely spurred [illegible] on to take the lead [illegible] when Billy Herman [illegible] a home run with French on base. The visitors held [illegible] the sixth when the Bengals knotted the count.

Bridges [illegible] a complete puzzle to them on [illegible] was anything [illegible] Windy City athletes [illegible] on this [illegible] him for [illegible] more than [illegible] and [illegible] Tigers collected off French.

But Bridges was supreme; was every great pitcher rolled into one in that ninth.

And the Tigers deserved to win the game and the series.

The first Tiger run in the final game was the result of a two-bagger by Fox with two gone after Cochrane and Gehringer had singled. The blow had to be scored a double but it looked like a routine out until it took a queer hop over Hack's glove at third.

The Cubs lost a run in the third when Clifton lifted Galan's foot off third base and then made the tag, indicating he hadn't nipped the runner a moment before when an "out" verdict was rendered by Umpire Moriarty, who ignored the foot lifting on the grounds that the play had previously been completed.

Another opportunity was taken from the Bruins when Moriarty ruled Hack out at third in the sixth because the Cub ducked safely into the bag instead of standing up to let Clifton tag him. Umpire Moriarty said Hack ran out of line. Even the partisan Detroit fans booed.

But the Cubs should have been expecting those kind of breaks by that time. They'd been getting them for several days.

GRIMM BLAMED

Detroit, of course, will forget all that while toasting the Tigers, and it's entitled to do so. The Tigers were more than entitled to the honor they gained. They made the breaks.

Chicago will remember and regret, though. It won't soon forget some of Manager Charlie Grimm's strategy either. On the contrary it will in all probability place the blame for the Cubs' downfall squarely on the shoulders of the pilot, who performed the miracle in leading the club to 21 straight September victories and the National League pennant.

It will be said he could have won the third game if he had ordered Hartnett to hit away instead of sacrificing with Lindstrom on second base with the winning run and nobody out in the tenth inning.

And it will be far more emphatically claimed that he had absolutely no excuse for letting Jurges and French, two woefully weak hitters, go up to bat against Bridges in the ninth with the winning run on third.

The criticism against letting French hit after Jurges had fanned seemed justified, but Bridges, in that inspired moment, probably could have fanned any other batter in the game just as easily.

Anyway the arguments over Grimm's [illegible] will [illegible] all winter.

And the fans will talk incessently in glowing terms about Bridges, Cochrane, Goslin, Warneke, Herman, Klein, Gehringer, Clifton et al.

The series drew over a million dollars at the gate.

It deserved such popularity.

Cy Did It!

That's What Gloucester Says

Gloucester, Oct. 8—Home Town boy makes good.

Cy Perkins is the hero here. He is credited with winning the world championship for Detroit by his coaching and development of young players.

Gloucester residents quote Cochrane, Rowe, Auker and Gerald Walker as their authority for hanging the rose on Perkins.

Chicagoans Cheer Cub Players

Chicago, Oct. 8—Chicago's vanquished Cubs returned home to be greeted by a small, but enthusiastic gathering of fans.

About 200 followers met the special train and gave each athlete a rousing cheer, with Manager Charlie Grimm and Gabby Hartnett winning especially vociferous greetings.

The players scattered at the [illegible] but probably will get together [illegible] before heading [illegible].

ALL FORLORN BEST AT SUFFOLK

Whopper Fancied by Wilson

By Dave Wilson
(Selections Made for Fast Track)
BEST BET—ALL FORLORN

Suffolk Downs, Oct. 8—Whopper, giant three-year-old from the Kentucky stables of Hal Price Headley, is highly fancied by this observer to romp off with the major portion of the spoils in the $5000 added The Yankee, one mile and a sixteenth feature on a brilliant card of eight races here tomorrow afternoon.

All Forlorn rates the call as the safest wager on the entire card.

FIRST—OMAREEN, STAR QUEEN, FRUMPER

OMAREEN, a frequent winner on Canadian tracks the past summer, shapes up vastly [illegible] of platers in this [illegible]. Breezed five panels in 1 05. STAR QUEEN isn't much horse, but she is clearly entitled to the [illegible] on her most recent effort. FRUMPER holds some class, but recent endeavors haven't been so hot.

SECOND—FOREWARNED, FLYING SAILOR, FLASHING THRU

FOREWARNED just missed earning brackets on opening day. He was only a [illegible] back of the winning Quasimodo at the finish and will be meeting nothing quite [illegible]. FLYING SAILOR turned in a nice second to Gold Step last time out. FLASHING THRU comes from Agawam with several nice efforts to his credit. He may hang on long enough to save the short award.

THIRD—LITTLE NYMPH, POLLARD ENTRY, DON CREOLE

LITTLE NYMPH, fifth in the Constitution Handicap, turned in a smashing performance that day. She forced a fast pace throughout to be beaten by less than one length for all the money at the finish. I don't see how the Pike filly can hardly miss if she runs back to that race. BILLY I and HIGHOMAR, which will run as the Pollard entry, will be hard to keep out of the place award. Both were frequent winners on New York tracks. DON CREOLE has several corking Western efforts to recommend him for honors.

FOURTH—ALL FORLORN, OLD REB, BROWN JACK

ALL FORLORN comes so highly recommended by the Clocker that I just can't go past her in searching for the winner. The White Cross mare worked six panels in 1 12 1-5 just like breaking sticks only a few days back. That move indicates tha tshe is right at the peak of her form. OLD REB just missed drubbing the top one over at the other town. Will have a 15-pound pull in the weights, and looks all over the main danger. BROWN JACK finished third to Microphone at Havre de Grace. He was off a bit slowly that day, and Star Pointer finished behind him.

FIFTH—WHOPPER, ANN O'RULEY, GOV. SCHOLTZ

WHOPPER is easily one of the outstanding three-year-olds of the season. His impost of 124 pounds does not appear burdensome in view of the fact that his opposition rates far below him from a class standpoint. Contention, if any, will likely be furnished by ANN O'RULEY. The latter turned in a nice effort in the Bostonian. She is a superior mudder and should take it all in the event of mud. GOV. SCHOLTZ'S recent races haven't been so hot, but he has been working well.

SIXTH—SOCIAL CLIMBER, GOLD STEP, OLD JUDGE

SOCIAL CLIMBER is dropping down from a creditable third behind Morgan's Fox, and my selection. Under intelligent handling she figures to never leave the result in doubt. Any sort of a track sutis. GOLD STEP is clearly the speed of the party, but is a very doubtful stayer in my book. The son of Sweep On has been a slow mile since his recent sprint victory, and may upset my calculations. OLD JUDGE will be dangerous only in the event of mud. He is a mudder of the first water.

RUTLAND Wins After 24 TRIES

By Bob Ahearn

Suffolk Downs, East Boston, Oct 8—Nine maiden juveniles faced the barrier in the opening event, a sprint race and when all was said and done it was the Oddesa Farm's Masked Smile that reached the finish line first. He was a head in front of Mary Hirsch's Lottafun, the public choice. C. W. Phelan's Be Just was third.

More than 7000 were in the grandstand, clubhouse and gathered in front of the stands as the first number was sent away from the gate by Starter Roy Dickerson. Lottafun set the early pace. At the sixteenth pole T. Malley asked Masked Smile for more speed and the daughter of Masked Marvel responded to overtake Lottafun.

A LOGG IS CUT DOWN BY ACE GRID AXEMAN

Down comes Falaschi, right, a Santa Clara end, and starts his driving tackle at Elmer Logg of Washington, who is just starting to run back a punt. Though Logg seems to have plenty of room to step away, the hard tackle nailed him, in the game at Seattle. This action photo shows that a decisive tackler can make it tough for any back to get away, even when he has room aplenty.

'Doped Horses Rare Today,' Says Trainer Partridge

By Ed Cogswell

"A doped horse is a rare exception," declared Trainer J. B. Partridge today, in speaking for his fellow-turfmen. Partridge has a stable at Suffolk.

"My horses—and all horses, to my knowledge—race on their own merits," he continued. "Long ago trainers of experience and standing found that the 'touching up' or stimulating of horses was a farce.

"Horses would respond in different ways. Some would not run at all; others would expend their energies on the way to the post; still others would feel the effect after the race was over. All of this made them bad betting propositions.

Lax Officials

"Trainers likewise found that a horse will run better than in a normal condition and in good health. Doping is injurious to all thoroughbreds. Trainers of high standing think too much of their charges to harm them in any way.

"In the very few cases a doped horse in uncovered. Who is found back of it? Always among some of the undesirable element. Too many men are running around with trainers' licenses not worthy of the honor.

"Lax officials permit these men, who can scarcely spell horse, to condition thoroughbreds. When they fail continually, through ignorance of the intricacies of the trade, they resort to dope.

"However, I repeat, this is the exception. Many times I have seen horses prance to the barrier wringing wet, wheeling and sunfishing, and heard the remark, 'I'll bet a saliva test of that baby would show him plenty high.' I know that the horse in question was no more doped than the speaker.

"True horsemen love the racing game. Many of us have been in it for years, taking the lean with the fat without complaint. We know it to be honest, clean and decent. We angrily deny any allegation that doping is widespread."

* * *

It is a wise plan to throw the last race of Good Gamble in the [illegible] can. This seems to be the general idea of trainers in referring to her defeat in the Bostonian handicap.

Due to the fact that the daughter of Chance Boy again faces Starter Dickerson tomorrow in the $5,000 Yankee handicap, these opinions may well be worth bearing in mind.

Going over the years' record of Good Gamble, the result proves she has been well-named. The representative of the Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt stable has been back of the money only three times in 18 starts, having won eight races, been second four times, and third in three events.

In money winnings Good Gamble has gathered in a total of $36,000 in select equine society. Her most recent victories being twice at Saratoga, and once each at Aqueduct and at Havre de Grace.

As a two-year-old in 1934 Good Gamble was very ordinary, for in 11 starts she was only once first, while her total winnings were the meager sum of $1875.

Mr. Boston
Lewis Out to Kayo Danno

By JACK CONWAY

I FOUND Strangler Lewis sipping java in his suite at the Copley-Plaza Hotel.

It is always interesting to talk with Lewis, as he is one of the wonder athletes of this generation. He rates with Jack Dempsey, Babe Ruth, Bill Tilden, Earl Sande and Walter Hagen.

"I am opening my Boston traintraining for my bout with O'Mahoney," remarked the Strangler.

Mr. Boston

"I shall work hard, but you can see for yourself that I am already in good condition.

"I have been preparing for the Irishman for three weeks and feel I shall once more be world champion following our meeting at the Garden on Friday night.

"I have a score to settle with O'Mahoney. You talked with me the day after my last bout with him in this city. I had a wound over my right eye and cuts on my cheek and lower lip. They were caused by blows which Danno delivered with his right fist.

"That wasn't wrestling. In wrestling one is permitted to hit with the forearm, but a wrestler who punches is supposed to be disqualified. O'Mahoney has an Irish crowd on hand when he shows in Boston, and he is permitted to run his own parade.

"There is only one way to beat that kind of a game. It is to meet fire with fire.

"This is why I asked Jack Dempsey to give me a few pointers about boxing. I have a defence for the O'Mahoney right, and a punch that will knock the Irishman right back to Ballydehob. That's the name of the place Danno comes from in Ireland, isn't it?

LEWIS' HUNCH

"I BELIEVE in hunches, and I have one that I shall regain my title at the Garden. I have staged several comebacks, and believe I have one more victory drive left in me. After all O'Mahoney is only a boy. He's 22 years old and doesn't know enough tricks for me.

"I am glad the Irishman was honest enough to admit I pinned him in our bout in London. Jack McGrath almost had people believing O'Mahoney upset me.

Then Danno got truthful and told the real facts. In London, Danno wasn't permitted to punch with his fists and so I didn't have much trouble defeating him.

"You can throw out the last Garden bout. O'Mahoney beat me with right hand punches rather than with wrestling holds. This time I shall be the first to score with the big wallop."

And the Strangler was then on his way to the gym to tune up for his meeting with O'Mahoney.

* * *

Dick Daviscourt, who used to work with O'Mahoney, has tipped Lewis that the champion plans to use a flying body scissors on Friday night.

Danno revealed his plans for defeating Lewis in the event they met again while he was working with Daviscourt. Now the latter has told all he knows about the Irishman to Lewis.

I believe O'Mahoney will be smart enough to change his plan of battle.

Emil Dusek will have Count Zarynoff as an opponent in the semifinal. In other bouts Jim Browning will tangle with "Bibber" McCoy, Leo Numa with Billy Bartush, Danny Winters with "Red" O'Dell, John Spellman with "Red" Ryan, and Chief Little Moose with Charley Strack.

RANDOM SHOTS

LOU Brouillard will clash with Marcel Thil in Paris on November 25 . . . This bout was originally booked for last June but was postponed at the request of Brouillard who expected a visit from the stork at his home . . . Frank Connelly, Jack Sharkey's new heavyweight, will clash with Jimmy Mendes at New Bedford on October 21 . . . Sharkey himself is training daily at Jerry Buckley's Gym, and has added road work to his training plans . . . The former champion weighs only 204 pounds, which is the same notch he was at the night he won the title from Max Schmeling . . . It is almost a certainty that Sharkey will soon announce his return to the ring with a bout with Joe Louis as his objective . . . Sharkey always had the Indian sign on colored heavyweights . . . Witness his victories over Harry Wills and George Godfrey . . . Primo Carnera will also try to get back into the heavyweight picture when he takes on Walter Neusel in the New York Garden . . . With Louis signed with the Twentieth Century Club until 1940, the Garden is in a spot where it must secure an opponent for Jimmy Braddock . . .

TUFTS UNBEATEN LAST 10 STARTS

B. U. Likely To End It

SATURDAY TILT ENDS RIVALS' RELATIONS

By Walter Kiley

Ten games without defeat is the proud boast of Lew Manly's Tufts College Jumbos.

It is a record which bears close inspection and compares favorably with that of any small college team of the country.

Neither Manly nor Jumbo followers shout their achievements from the Medford Hillside heights. They are not that kind. But they do take pardonable pride in their accomplishments.

Boston University, Saturday's opponent, is the immediate objective. The Terriers will be favored and on form should win.

This would be rather a bitter pill for the Jumbos to swallow, for B. U. and Tufts are rivals of long standing. The latter would much prefer to have some other New England college team snap their winning streak when and if it is ever to be broken.

It was back in 1933 that Bowdoin, much the underdog, came to life with a rush and beat Tufts 26-12. Since that time Manly's teams have pulled out unscathed, surviving an undefeated season in 1934.

NINE JUNIORS

Included was a 6-0 victory over Boston University at Nickerson Field. It was perhaps the sweetest of them all, Capt. Walter Froehlich turning the tide when he went over in a third period uprising.

When the dust of that battle had cleared away, the Jumbos decided to sever relations with Boston University after more than a decade of annual games.

So that Saturday's game at Tufts Oval is the last for the immediate future and therefore, to a Terrier way of thinking, the more desirable to win.

Manly teams are well drilled teams year in and out. But this task was a heartbreaking one as the season broke away this fall.

Nine juniors started against Colby last Saturday, nine players who were substitutes a year ago. Capt. Jack Randall, a fine guard, and Roger Keith, punting, passing and ball carrying left halfback, were the only veterans.

Well, Tufts was greatly outweighed with its line averaging only 175 pounds and its backfield peeled down to 160. Yet it withstood the Waterville team, which the week before had tied a good Amherst team, 6—6, and came off with a scoreless tie. This in itself was a moral victory.

Most heartening from Manly's standpoint was the Tufts' defensive work. Its offense was spotty as ever in an opening game. Naturally, it is hard to pound out yardage against a line that has 250 and 195-pound tackles, an 185-pound center and guards who go well over the 175 mark.

Manly's present task is to stop B. U.'s Gary Famiglietti, hard-hitting fullback.

B. U. STRONG

Charlie Hingston, himself a Tufts' fullback, now aide and chief scout for the Jumbos, took in the B. U.-Toledo game on Saturday. He returned to the Oval singing Famiglietti's praises.

"He is the finest fullback I will see this year," Hingston insisted. "He is the man that Tufts must stop."

Tufts has only a few more days to polish for as stiff an assignment as it will be forced to handle all year. Hingston gained the impression that the Terriers despite their showing against Toledo has tons of suppressed energy just waiting to be released.

It is with this in mind that Manly is perfecting his defenses. Offensively he is foregoing complicated plays and is passing up laterals entirely. His team is far from sufficiently advanced to fool around with trick manoeuvers until it has mastered the fundamentals.

He will start his same line-up. George Baker and Lincoln Radshaw are the ends; Ralph Smith and Louis Kyrlos the tackles; Capt. Randall and "Booch" Lavargna the guards; Marino Ascera the center; Chet Foberg, quarterback; Tony Stach and Roger Keith the halfbacks; and Louis Abbu the fullback.

Robbins Wrestles War Eagle

A real mat rivalry will be settled tonight when Winn Robbins light heavyweight titlist, defends his belt against Chief War Eagle in the feature bout at Mechanics Building.

Apparently the Redskin is certain that he will annex the title for he has brought several other warriors from Caughnawaga reservation to root for him.

The famous "Tomahawk Blow" of the Indian will be legal in the scrap.

In the semifinal, Jose Firpo, former ruler of the light heavyweight class, will clash with Stefton Chet Mar of Roumania. Firpo will seek a bout with Robbins or the Indian if he disposes of Mar.

Another bout will bring together Jack Lutze of Southern California and Ted Germaine of South Boston. Lutze is a younger brother of Nick Lutze who grappled on Boston mats.

THIRD WOMAN TO BECOME TRAINER

By Bob Ahearn

A stenographer in a large insurance company three years ago; now a licensed woman trainer of thoroughbreds, joining the ranks of Mary Hirsch and Hanbla Bauer in their quest for turf honors.

That's Margaret Henderson of Toronto, Ontario.

It will be worth your while to mark that name in your books, as ardent railbirds predict this Canadian lass of 23 years is going far in the horse race game.

Miss Henderson has just been granted a trainer's license in Massachusetts and saddled her first mounts, Fan and Swagger Stick, yesterday at Suffolk Downs.

Four thoroughbreds, Royal Duchess, Swagger Stick, Fan and a two-year-old [illegible] in the [illegible] of Margaret's mother [illegible] now quartered at the Downs [illegible] the care of young Miss Henderson.

Daily, in the early morn when the trainers work their [illegible] in trials and the track is [illegible] with activity, Margaret can be seen working her horses over the oval.

RIDES 'EM

She doesn't bother about hiring an exercise boy to work her mounts, but is content to take control of the reins herself and breeze over the layout.

It's quite a jump from convent school to the life of the horse world, but Margaret made it via a stenographer's position in the Sun Life Insurance Company, Toronto.

She has been around the track with her dad and mother the [illegible] three years.

It isn't the first time Margaret has held a trainer's license.

A year ago the Michigan Racing Commission granted the pretty Miss Henderson permission to saddle her horses in racing competition.

Androsay Choice in Revere 1st

By Sam Cohen

Eight speedy greyhounds step into the box in tonight's feature event at Wonderland Park, Revere, the eighth race over the futurity distance of 495 yards.

Camden Lager, Roy Rutland's speedster, will attempt to reel off a third straight victory in this event, but the competition will be keen.

Matched against Camden Lager are such classy racers as Brown Sugar, Court House, The Motorman, Dance Tune, Lady Micawber and Country Doctor.

FIRST RACE—3-16 MILE
ANDROSAY, MEDAZA, ROYAL AGAIN

P.P.	Name	P. Odds	Wt.	Owner	Comment
8	Androsay	2-1	54	J. D. Hall	Ought to win here
4	Medaza	5-2	64	J. J. Keenan	May take it all.
2	Royal Again	3-1	66	W. J. Dickinson	Due to break in
1	Daniel Webster	4-1	60	M. Martell	New, very fast
5	Silent Ike	5-1	61	Golden Bear Ken.	Hasn't shown much
3	Wiley Greek	6-1	[illegible]	John Miller	Second start; fair chance
7	Risky Andrew	7-1	63	Floyd White	First start
6	Blue Spur	8-1	[illegible]	Copper City Ken.	Green; no line.

ANDROSAY looks like the best of this group of green dogs and non winners. MEDAZA may be the one to run off with it, but ROYAL AGAIN can't be overlooked.

SECOND RACE—FUTURITY
MARY GLIDE, SMARTY, VICTORIA MAID

P.P.	Name	P. Odds	Wt.	Owner	Comment
[illegible]	Mary Glide	2-1	54	Clint Blair	Looks tops here
1	Smarty	5-2	[illegible]	Copper City Ken.	Is long overdue
[illegible]	Victoria Maid	3-1	62	Dr. B. A. Poorman	Longer distance here
8	Ugly Mug	4-1	65	Copper City Ken.	Improving rapidly
5	Peter Grand	5-1	55	Swan Kennels	May surprise
4	Mind Warery	6-1	49	Mrs. W. R. Burnett	Outside chance
7	Just Ahead	7-1	55	Frank Athanasaw	May not like route
6	Silent Spike	8-1	[illegible]	Ray Courtney	May get up.

MARY GLIDE seems to be in the proper spot here, but SMARTY will have to come in for some consideration for first money. VICTORIA MAID likes the short distance but has plenty of speed.

THIRD RACE—5-16 MILE
ANOTHER SIZAR, JUST FLINT, SMOOTHY

P.P.	Name	P. Odds	Wt.	Owner	Comment
8	Another Sizar	2-1	67	Patrick Conway	Favorite distance
4	Just Flint	5-2	51	Southern Kennels	Closed last with rush
1	Smoothy	3-1	59	Miss F. G. Koontz	Fast, moving up
3	Another Chord	4-1	69	Clyde Boyd	Came with a rush
5	Connaught Finbar	5-1	[illegible]	Paul Mulligan	May upset
7	Lendem Laddie	6-1	55	W. H. J. Kennels	May be due
2	War Leader	7-1	60	Lewis Randal	Needs racing
6	Garry's Double	8-1	60	R. K. Japour	Green, no line

FOURTH RACE—3-16 MILE
WHY LIFE, IRON MAN, KEEN GIFT

P.P.	Name	P. Odds	Wt.	Owner	Comment
7	Why Life	2-1	58	R. K. Japour	Much early speed
3	Iron Man	5-2	69	H. D. Morrison	Likes the route
8	Keen Gift	[illegible]	49	J. A. Steves Jr.	Green, plenty of speed
2	Got-To-Go	4-1	[illegible]	J. J. Thompson	First start, fast
4	Invidious	6-1	62	Roamer Kennels	May surprise
5	June Time	6-1	61	Syd Manor	Can upset here.
1	Office Dancer	7-1	63	Oswald Bros. Ken.	In better spot
6	Coming Day	8-1	60	M. Martel	Fast youngster

WHY LIFE is well placed here and should lead them all home. Chief contention will come from IRON MAN, with KEEN GIFT and GOT-TO-GO apt to pull a surprise trick.

FIFTH RACE—FUTURITY
SILVER CHIEF, BOLD STAR, TWINKLE LADDIE

P.P.	Name	P. Odds	Wt.	Owner	Comment
6	Silver Chief	2-1	[illegible]	Floyd White	Should repeat here
1	Bold Star	5-2	60	Mrs. Opal Warden	May be the one
5	Twinkle Laddie	3-1	57	W. H. J. Kennels	Can upset the dope
3	Glen Report	4-1	47	Frank Lane	Outside chance
2	Skim-A-Long	[illegible]	[illegible]	Whitehead Ken.	Should get up
7	Royal Way	5-1	[illegible]	W. J. Dickinson	Rounding into form
4	Midnight Mary	6-1	50	A. M. Chinn	Slim chance here
8	Wild Thought	8-1	55	Jess Williams	Fast newcomer

SILVER CHIEF has only to run back to his last race to walk off with this one. BOLD STAR will offer the chief contention, with TWINKLE LADDIE offering a bid to upset the dope.

SIXTH RACE—FUTURITY
GOLDEN TRUMPET, IMPERIAL DICTATOR, CHIEF'S DARLING

P.P.	Name	P. Odds	Wt.	Owner	Comment
7	Golden Trumpet	2-1	60	Dr. B. A. Poorman	Looks best here.
4	Imperial Dictator	5-2	65	Sunnyside Kennels	May take it all
5	Chief's Darling	3-1	[illegible]	Mrs. M. Falling	Won last one
8	Molly Malone	[illegible]	51	Augusta Kennels	May not like route
3	Uncle Chris	4-1	[illegible]	Frank Athanasaw	Has early speed.
6	Little Doggie	5-1	63	Copper City Ken.	May upset
2	Irish Pick	6-1	61	Charles Holmes	Could win this
1	Bell Heffner	8-1	60	W. E. Forbes	New; fast schoolings.

GOLDEN TRUMPET will have a tough time in disposing of IMPERIAL DICTATOR and CHIEF'S DARLING, to say nothing of UNCLE CHRIS in this one. It's a wide open race here.

SEVENTH RACE—5-16 MILE
MATTIE, KASHIMIR HAWKE, ENCHANTED TOBY

P.P.	Name	P. Odds	Wt.	Owner	Comment
8	Mattie	2-1	59	Charles Cross	About due
7	Kashimir Hawke	5-2	[illegible]	N. G. Allen	Looks next best
6	Enchanted Toby	3-1	60	J. D. Hall	Should be up
3	Mae Win	4-1	57	W. K. Lease	Has chance here
4	True Friend	5-1	60	Whitehead Ken.	In smart hands
5	Pepper Mark	6-1	61	R. F. Randle	Has been far back
1	Dinty Dennis	7-1	60	Wm. Baker	Maiden effort.
2	Lily Breeze	8-1	60	[illegible], Jr.	Same here

MATTIE is long overdue. This may be the one. KASHIMIR HAWKE will be right up there. ENCHANTED TOBY [illegible] if in form.

EIGHTH RACE—FUTURITY
CAMDEN LAGER, BROWN SUGAR, LADY MICAWBER

P.P.	Name	P. Odds	Wt.	Owner	Comment
2	Camden Lager	2-1	60	Roy Rutland	Can't get away from this
1	Brown Sugar	[illegible]	[illegible]	Syd Manor	Now in form
4	Lady Micawber	[illegible]	[illegible]	Art Wilson	Can upset here
3	Court House	4-1	[illegible]	Oswald Bros. Ken.	Has even chance
5	The Motorman	5-1	61	Bud Sunday	May need racing
8	Country Doctor	6-1	60	D. Callaghan	In fast company
7	Dance Tune	7-1	[illegible]	H. F. Alderson	Outside chance
6	Just A Bear	8-1	[illegible]	John Pesek	May need racing

NINTH RACE—FUTURITY
CAVE MAN, SEN SIRACUSA, SUN ROLL

P.P.	Name	P. Odds	Wt.	Owner	Comment
6	Cave Man	2-1	62	H. E. Alderson	Ought to win here
1	Sen Siracusa	[illegible]	63	J. D. Hall	Chief contention
7	Sun Roll	[illegible]	57	J. A. Austin	About due
2	Dancing Officer	[illegible]	[illegible]	Oswald Bros. Ken.	Improving
8	Clara Andrew	5-1	53	Roy Rutland	Closed fast last
5	Connie Mack	6-1	59	I. E. Thompson	May need racing
4	Don J	7-1	68	B. F. Randle	Slim chance in this
1	Turf Traffic	8-1	65	Art Wilson	From good kennels

CAVE MAN seems to have the call here but SEN SIRACUSA has the stuff if in form to run first. SUN ROLL is coming rapidly.

TENTH RACE—5-16 MILE
LADY CUTLET, CUSTODIAN, TARRAS SPEED

P.P.	Name	P. Odds	Wt.	Owner	Comment
3	Lady Cutlet	2-1	52	S. B. Cox	Four in a row.
2	Custodian	5-2	62	Roamer Kennels	Can surprise
8	Tarras Speed	3-1	63	Jess Bingham	Sharp, dangerous
1	Jimmy Fox	4	60	J. D. Hall	Is about due
7	Jew Bug	5-1	61	Chas. Holmes	Will be up there
5	Coin Collector	6-1	[illegible]	Augusta Kennels	Needs racing
6	Wolf Larson	7-1	71	Walters Kennels	Outside chance.
4	Rescue	8-1	65	Edythe Miles	Green; no line.

LADY CUTLET has the class here, with CUSTODIAN and TARRAS SPEED as the chief contention. JEW BUG cannot be overlooked either.

TOP DOG At Taunton Is SILVER EVENT

T[illegible], Oct. 8—Taunton's featured [illegible] at the Taunton dog track heads the list of ten races with the popular daily double being run on the second and third races as usual.

Silver Event is rated on top in the featured futurity because of his winning effort of Saturday night.

If he runs the same race back again tonight he should have little trouble in outrunning Over The Cross and Frindle Side, his two closest competitors.

Bel Water, First Point, King Burner, Stately Damon and Lucerra Jerry complete the feature field but will be needed much of a chance of winning.

The co-featured ninth over the 5-16 mile route will be a hard-fight battle all the way. Modesto Jimmie won his first two starts at Taunton and that him nothing is capable of a much better effort.

(For Oct. 8)

FIRST RACE—¼ MILE
Little Cop, Night Flash, Meadow Leader, Topper
Old Ramshead, May Price, Oakland Cad, Royal Black

SECOND RACE—¼ MILE
Wistful, Charming Way, Rocks, Royal Oak

HUSKIES Use Two Lines SATURDAY

Despite the fact that Northeastern will face the strongest opposition on the schedule when they clash with the Rhode Island [illegible] next Saturday, Coach Al McCoy will [illegible] two lines.

A [illegible] line mate [illegible] per [illegible] to experiment with two lines and he developed a second string forward line that was almost as good as the first defensively. The two lines played as separate units in the first three games.

Every place in the two lines is [illegible] with Frank Meehan [illegible] tackle, sure to [illegible] right end again in place of the injured Bill Hartwell.

On the other hand only three of [illegible] backfield positions are [illegible]: Gus Rock, soph quarter, [illegible] Hart, key fullback, and Al Hickinson, speedy half, have their posts clinched.

Grey Lashes Best

West Springfield, Oct. 8—Grey Lashes to carry the sure shot money of the night and Marchmont to take the feature event of the night, the October Stakes.

That's the form-figuring on tonight's racing at the Crescent Kennel Club oval here.

Grey Lashes runs in the eighth and the Leesley hound is in top form. Harmoni Maid and Melstone Twinkle are booked to furnish the competition for the Leesley entry.

Marchmont broke out as a long-shot star in the summer meeting and developed rapidly.

FIRST RACE—3-16 MILE
SCATTERWOOD, MAYVILLE, TOLL GATE

P.P.	Name	P. Odds	Wt.	Owner	Comment
2	Scatterwood	2-1	54	Eddie Welch	Take this one.
1	Mayville	3-1	60	H. C. Alderson	The one to beat
7	Toll Gate	4-1	60	Glen's Kennels	Likes longer route.
6	Laddie's Twinkle	10-1	57	John Howell Jr.	Youngster; no line
4	Lone Sinner	8-1	63	L. H. Nave	Outside chance.
8	Tubby W	10-1	50	D. W. Budd	Not ready.
3	Little Accident	12-1	41	Jeannette Eagan	Don't think so.
5	Sado	15-1	57	L. D. Koon	Outclassed.

SCATTERWOOD should have no trouble winning here. MAYVILLE likes the rail and will be close up. TOLL GATE will be going fast at end.

SECOND RACE—FUTURITY
ROYALTY, VIKI, MYSTIC GOLD

P.P.	Name	P. Odds	Wt.	Owner	Comment
2	Royalty	5-2	72	Royalty Kennels	At top of form
1	Viki	3-1	62	L. H. Nave	Chief contender
5	Mystic Gold	5-1	66	Jack Dobler	Has schooled well
7	Canto Wave	6-1	68	Claude Williams	Dangerous.
3	Bob's Pal	8-1	60	G. A. Alderson	Has early speed.
6	Brigand's Chance	8-1	58	Geo. Applegate	Outside chance
4	Sooio	10-1	57	L. D. Koon	Don't think so
8	Clean Face	12-1	60	Glen's Kennels	Not here.

ROYALTY has been consistently close up. Should win here. VIKI has chance if breaking well. MYSTIC GOLD should earn part of purse.

THIRD RACE—FUTURITY
JAZZ BO, MARLEE, LOCKET

P.P.	Name	P. Odds	Wt.	Owner	Comment
7	Jazz Bo	3-1	59	L. H. Nave	Second last out
2	Marlee	3-1	50	C. W. Lentz	Throw out last race
1	Locket	5-1	60	D. W. Budd	Will be close up.
8	Caper's Son	6-1	56	G. A. Alderson	Has chance
4	Black Bow	8-1	61	Zene Freeman	Last race bad
6	Stone Martin	10-1	55	Wm. Holpuch, Jr.	Don't like here
1	Ringaroo	10-1	52	John Howell, Jr.	Off form
5	Mozart Ackron	10-1	50	Eddie Welch	No.

JAZZ BO will improve from last race. MARLEE met interference last out. LOCKET will prove troublesome.

FOURTH RACE—FUTURITY
POLLY B., RED PETE, BOTTOM C.

P.P.	Name	P. Odds	Wt.	Owner	Comment
6	Polly B	5-2	53	D. W. Budd	Rail Bird special.
1	Red Pete	3-1	56	Hugh Rolston	Has good chance.
4	Bottom C.	4-1	58	C. T. Tisdale	Winner Saturday
5	Robie S.	8-1	55	Howerton & Dorman	Likes longer route
2	Miss Common	8-1	47	Sam Clark	Outside chance.
7	Silent Walt	12-1	59	Claude Williams	Not ready yet.
3	Easy Street	10-1	58	Wm. Holpuch, Jr.	Don't like
8	Sam	12-1	57	L. D. Koon	No

POLLY B is the chatter from the wise ones. RED PETE to be considered. BOTTOM C. may repeat winning effort.

FIFTH RACE—FUTURITY
BO KAY, SWIFT YALE, LADDIE'S BABE

P.P.	Name	P. Odds	Wt.	Owner	Comment
3	Bo Kay	2-1	50	C. W. Lentz	Looks best here
7	Swift Yale	4-1	54	Sam Clark	May wake up
1	Laddie's Babe	4-1	50	Jack Dobler	Likes rail position
4	Top J	6-1	60	C. T. Tisdal	Has chance.
2	Don Domo	8-1	56	Homer Moore	Surprise winner Satur
6	Pistol Shot	10-1	61	Hugh Rolston	Races poor.
8	Kitty Luck	12-1	50	P. C. Alderson	Not here.
5	Grey Traffic	15-1	66	H. E. Alderson	No

BO KAY appears the class here. SWIFT YALE, a disappointment [illegible], will be close up. LADDIE'S BABE for short end.

SIXTH RACE—FUTURITY
PERFECT BOY, FAWNY MISCHIEF, FIRE BUSH

P.P.	Name	P. Odds	Wt.	Owner	Comment
2	Perfect Boy	3-1	61	Hugh Rolston	Slight edge
1	Fawny Mischief	4-1	60	C. T. Tisdal	The contender.
8	Fire Bush	5-1	55	Zene Freeman	Will be close
3	Conqueror	5-1	66	Wychwood Kennels	Chance at price
5	Good Lookin	8-1	59	Leesley Kennels	Only on best
4	Foxie Bee	10-1	50	A. D. Crouch	No.
6	Common Gal	10-1	54	Sam Clark	No.
7	Mr. Johnson	10-1	53	C. W. Lentz	No.

There is little to choose among the top three.

SEVENTH RACE—3-16 MILE
OAKLAND HALL, HANK MEADOWS, NONCHALANT

P.P.	Name	P. Odds	Wt.	Owner	Comment
2	Oakland Hall	2-1	67	Wychwood Kennels	[illegible]
1	Hank Meadows	4-1	61	T. Tisdal	Late racer [illegible]
8	Nonchalant	5-1	58	Eddie Welch	Likes the distance.
3	Miss Jamie	6-1	51	D. W. Budd	Has room
4	Hi Tip	8-1	58	A. D. Crouch	Speedy, but quits
6	Just Chewchki	10-1	58	Ollie Payne	Not ready.
7	Iron Side	10-1	46	G. A. Alderson	Not here
1	Silver Babe	15-1	50	P. C. Alderson	Needs racing

OAKLAND HALL should take this one easily. HANK MEADOWS has bee racing consistently. NONCHALANT will bear watching.

EIGHTH RACE—FUTURITY
GREY LASHES, HARMONI MAID, MELSTONE TWINKLE

P.P.	Name	P. Odds	Wt.	Owner	Comment
8	Grey Lashes	8-5	58	Lesley Kennels	Tonight's best bet
2	Harmoni Maid	4-1	60	Glen's Kennels	The chief contender.
7	Melstone Twinkle	6-1	58	John Howell, Jr.	Races are good
1	Fast Fly	8-1	45	C. W. Lentz	Likes longer route
4	Mary O Mine	10-1	54	G. A. Alderson	Has early speed
3	Rolling Mozart	12-1	61	Eddie Welch	Needs this race.
5	Big Chance	10-1	59	H. F. Alderson	Hardly here
6	Romance	10-1	50	Ollie Payne	Not in shape

GREY LASHES looks much the best here. HARMONI MAID sure to be close up. MELSTONE TWINKLE has shown steady improvement. Should earn part of purse.

NINTH RACE—FUTURITY
MARCHMONT, HANDSOME ANDREW, THUNDER STORM

P.P.	Name	P. Odds	Wt.	Owner	Comment
6	Marchmont	8-2	67	Hugh Rolston	In good shape.
3	Handsome Andrew	3-1	68	Howerton & Dorman	Gets the call.
7	Thunder Storm	6-1	65	L. H. Nave	Has chance.
1	Fleeting Chance	8-1	47	H. C. Alderson	Rates well
8	Upton	8-1	61	Geo. Applegate	Speedy youngster
4	Rusty Cardinal	8-1	68	Zene Freeman	In smart hands.
5	Chance's Lad	10-1	65	A. O. Crouch	Only on best
2	Rip O'Day	10-1	57	Ollie Payne	Not here

TENTH RACE—5-16 MILE
CARDINAL WAVE, ROUGH BOY, WHITE OWL

P.P.	Name	P. Odds	Wt.	Owner	Comment
6	Cardinal Wave	2-1	56	Wychwood Kennels	Tonight's the night
1	Rough Boy	3-1	60	Ben Crouch	The one to beat.
7	White Owl	5-1	63	Zene Freeman	Speedy youngster; chan
8	Jake Loy	8-1	65	Ollie Payne	Likes this route
3	Dixside	8-1	61	Eddie Welch	Has schooled well
4	Black Terry	10-1	58	H. E. Alderson	Don't think so
5	Concern Widow	12-1	52	Glen's Kennels	Off form.
2	Actuary	12-1	57	Geo. Applegate	Not here

CARDINAL WAVE met interference his last out but should win [illegible]. ROUGH BOY will make it interesting. WHITE OWL could win [illegible] if he runs back to last race.

TECH BOOTERS To Drill Tonight

Malcolm Goldie, coach of the M. I. T. soccer team, will have a stiff practice session for his Cardinal and Gray booters tonight at the Tech Coop Field. It may be the last hard workout prior to the opening battle with Brown at Providence Saturday.

With an array of veterans on deck and several promising sophomores to replace the men who were last through graduation, the Tech team will give the Bruins a rugged [illegible]k.

Hit by Injury

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 8 (INS)—Purdue's hopes of a victory over Fordham in New York city next Saturday received a cruel blow today when it was learned Cecil Isbell, rangy sophomore halfback, probably will be unable to play. He suffered two dislocations to his left shoulder in the Northwestern game.

Holm President

Herb Holm of Charlestown has been elected president of the N. E. A. A. U. Bill Kenney refused reelection.

Browning, Piers Clash Tomorrow

Giant wrestlers with "million dollar legs"—Jim Browning, former heavyweight champion of the world, and Henry Piers—collide tomorrow night in the feature bout of Alex MacLean's show at the Boston Arena.

Browning, featuring his spectacular turn-over scissors, clashes with Piers, whose version of the scissors hold is regarded as the best the wrestling game has known since Joe Stecher's day, in a two out of three falls match.

Piers, recent invader from Haarlem, Holland, is fast rushing to the top of the grappling industry.

The colorful and courteous Count Casimir Polowski is in the semi-final bout on the seven-bout card, tangling with an unruly gentleman, Jack Ross.

The Polish peer, known as the stone man because of his apparently superhuman strength, has yet to meet defeat and actually hasn't been extended. Yet Ross will make plenty of trouble for the goateed and gallant count.

Dick Daviscourt and Serge Kalmikoff hold the spotlight in the special bouts, Daviscourt meeting Stan Stickney and Kalmikoff tangling with Jim Kendricks.

Staid Bridgewater Gets Excited

Bridgewater, Oct. 8—The 10,000 inhabitants of this South Shore town furnished a very energetic echo of the Detroit uproar when the news of the Tigers' victory flashed across the country.

For this is the home town of the man who scored the Tigers' winning run, "Mickey" Cochrane, catcher and manager.

When "Goose" Goslin's single sent Mickey scampering across the plate in the ninth inning with the winning run, stores were deserted by customers and clerks alike and business came to a halt elsewhere as the folks joined hands in one loud, prolonged celebration.

BROZOZOWSKI In Arena Show

The third elimination of the Golden Glove tournament will be held Friday night at the Boston Arena where the Irish-American A. A. stage six classes, 118, 126, 135, 147, 160 and 175 pounds.

The first entry that Tom Kanaly received was that of Peter Brozozowski of Gardner, who says he was given a raw deal last week in the finals with Jimmy McCarron.

Brozozowski wants to win this week so that he can meet Jimmy in the finals October 28. Peter says he will knock McCarron out the next time.

UTILITY SHARES FEATURE ON CURB

GENERAL TONE IS STEADY

New York, Oct. 8—An improved demand for utility shares gave the curb market a steady appearance today. Trading was heaviest in the power group, and prices were generally higher by fractions of a point.

Aluminum Company of America advanced a point on light buying and Hiram Walker was up the same amount. Creole Petroleum gained ⅝ of a point on moderate trading but International Petroleum was off ¼.

Several of the specialties came in for attention with jumps of 1 to nearly 3 points, including Holly Sugar, Draper Corporation and Technicolor.

NEW STOCK ISSUE

Approval SOUGHT BY Edison

By Hugh E. Bradshaw

Now that stockholders have approved an increase in the capital of Edison of Boston all that is necessary to complete the refinancing program is approval of the department of public utilities.

While nearly all observers are quite confident the application of the company will be favorably acted on, it is hard to control memories. The last stock change contemplated by Edison was a split up of shares in 1929, and the department refused to sanction the proposal. It was one of the happenings [illegible] [illegible] do not [illegible] may connected [illegible] o.

* * *

The present situation of the [illegible] and the mechanics of [illegible] approval are overshadowed by the question of price and the number of shares to be [illegible]. Edison of Boston is currently selling around [illegible] and an [illegible] of one new share for every six held would [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] issue due [illegible] April [illegible] a contribution of [illegible] to [illegible] from the company [illegible] ry.

* * *

Notebook: War or no war, wheat options after touching the levels noted here, are acting bearishly . . . We would take all profits . . . Or at least employ stop-loss protection . . . The adoption of sanctions by neutral powers may be the answer to the lack of enthusiasm in grain pits the world over . . . High-priced industrial shares, after negotiating normal recoveries, fail to act as though they were desirous of achieving better levels . . . We would watch them carefully.

* * *

While personal likes and dislikes naturally color all market opinions, a strictly impersonal view of the situation forces admissions that current market action is neither bullish nor bearish. Stocks prices are fluctuating in a meaningless area. A real test of either the most recent highs or lows is required to throw light on the underlying market situation. It should come along this week. Of all groups utilities have the best chance of providing the real clue to direction.

* * *

Shorts: Utilities felt the might of sellers earliest . . . They have wandered sidewise in a series of constantly diminishing cycles and are now at point where what might otherwise be considered a minor move would bring them out in the clear . . . If a general dip in here fails to upset the power and light shares we will become buyers of them . . . In fact if it were not for the greatly improved technical picture the utilities could present on a moderate upturn we would have few, if any, qualms about turning bearish.

GLITTERING GIRL

By May Christie

SYNOPSIS

Having struck oil, the quaint Jake Tysons leave their Texas home to introduce their lovely daughter, Vernon (called "Maggie" back home), to New York society with the aid of their socially prominent (though impoverished) cousins, the Rushingtons.

Sadie Tyson hopes for a brilliant match for her daughter, but Vernon's thoughts are with Terry Shannon, a young engineer she met on the train. Nan Rushington—Vernon's 18-year-old ultra-modern cousin—hopes to better her own financial status by being nice to the Tysons.

Nan bemoans the loss of her father's fortune which prevents her from financing the divorce of her latest crush, "Sugar" Sarrail.

Had Nan's mother been alive she, in all probability, would not have led such a giddy life. Her father was too taken up with his business worries to bother with Nan's escapades, although he disapproved of her gay career.

Nan takes Vernon to have her hair hennaed and a complete beauty treatment. Vernon emerges a vision of loveliness.

The two girls lunch at the swanky Fizzly Club, where Vernon makes a pretense of drinking her first dry martini, a bitter potion, in her opinion. Nan's "Sugar" arrives and his eyes had a smouldering expression as they beheld Vernon.

CHAPTER VIII

"You're coming to the Suydams' penthouse jamboree tonight, old thing?" Nan asked of him, swallowing the cherry. Her eyes were bright with anticipation, awaiting his reply.

"Guess so. Save a dance or two for me, Beautiful." He lowered his voice to add: "If you run into Myrtle at any of the teas this afternoon, soft pedal on last night—and tonight. Get me?"

"Perfectly." Nan nodded. She loathed Myrtle—Sugar's "up-stage" wife—she loathed Myrtle's "airs"—the manner in which Myrtle either ignored or snubbed her. "She makes me feel like a kitchen-maid having a backdoor flirtation!"

Nan was furiously to confide in Vernon later. Myrtle, it transpired, never gave any sign of noticing or being hurt by Sugar's "straying."

She came of a fine old family, and was quite a leader in her own set. Nan couldn't forgive Myrtle for her absolute poise, the well-bred way she ignored Nan—but most of all she hated her for being Sugar's wife.

Vernon Pays Bill

"Good grief! Here she is!" breathed Nan as a tall and ultra-slender woman in a dark red suit heavily trimmed with fox walked into the crowded bar, an elderly man at her side.

"And my father-in-law with her!" murmured Sugar, his eyes no longer sleepy, but uncomfortably alert. "What in heaven's name is the old boy here for?" He slipped his glass back on the counter and nervously crushed the stub of his cigarette.

"To keep tabs on the black sheep of the family! Bah! Bah!" jeered Nan.

Ignoring Nan in the throng at the bar, and smiling quizzically at him, Mrs. Sarrail came directly up to her husband. "This is a piece of luck. We thought you might be here. Father has some important business to go over with you."

Murmuring low excuses to Nan and Vernon, Sugar vanished through the door with his wife and father-in-law.

People around were grinning at Nan's discomfiture. "Hard luck, old girl! Myrtle's got a nose like a sleuth-hound! She's on to you!"

Vernon paid for the cocktails, then followed Nan out of the bar and upstairs to the restaurant. Their table was a tiny one against the wall. Nan lavishly ordered food.

Numbers of girls and their escorts stopped to speak to Nan, to be introduced to the lovely cousin from Texas. Some of Nan's good humor was restored by these continuous attentions. She was a vain little thing, and loved the limelight. Why worry about Sugar and his detestable wife, when she would see him tonight at the Suydams' party?

The Gushing Widow

A very gushing woman whose hair was sleeked back from her face in a short-clipped coiffure came over and sat with them for a little. To Vernon she made herself particularly charming.

Mertina de Bray was her name. She was a widow. Anywhere from thirty-five to forty-five her age might be. She was what the French call "bien soignee"—well-groomed and striking, but not pretty.

It transpired she was anxious to go to the Suydams' party.

"My friend, Prince Ivan Karinoff, knows them. He wants to take me, but I wouldn't dream of going unless it was directly arranged by the hostess. You know, Nan darling, no matter what other people do, I'm not Bohemian!" Mrs. de Bray gushed.

"Oh, I'll fix it for you, if you'll bring Prince Karinoff along tonight," vouchsafed Nan in a blase tone. "I may need him to flirt with. I want to give Sugar a lesson."

"Isn't she a perfectly priceless little darling? We all adore her!" Mrs. de Bray departed.

Nan looked absently after the retreating figure. "She's quite a decent sort. I've found her useful lots of times. She's good as an alibi. She made a great play for Dad before the crash, but I don't think he ever got as far as popping the question to her. Of course when he lost his money she dropped the chase—and who can blame her?"

Vernon was amazed at this frank analysis.

"It's awful to be short of money in this burg. Tina's not so young and there's so many women on their own, husband-hunting. Not that the men are much of a prize package when you do land 'em!" continued Nan sagely. "Tina's out for money, of course. She's always bright and cheery. She's a good scout."

"What about Prince What's-his-name? The one she spoke of?"

"You mean Karinoff. He's a rare old chap. Old Russian [illegible]. Down on his luck too. They say he drove a taxicab [illegible]. But [illegible] after he got out of the [illegible] when the Bourse [illegible]. Sporting spirit."

Vernon had never met a prince of the blood. She was greatly interested.

Nan looked knowingly at her. "[illegible] brother would fall for [illegible] hook, line and sinker! It's clear she's keen on a title for you." "Well, it mightn't be a bad idea." She giggled as she added "If I fix it up with Karinoff will Aunt Sadie pay me commission?"

"That's horrid of you, Nan."

"I was only kidding, dear child. But honestly, Vernon, I loathe being poor!" Quick tears flashed in Nan's bright eyes for a moment. "[illegible], after you've had everything!"

Vernon felt truly sorry for her cousin. It did seem unfair that the Tyson family, who really didn't know what to do with it all, should have so much [illegible] and Nan and her father, who had a position and an old name to keep up, should have so little!

Generous Vernon decided she must be very, very good to her pretty little cousin.

They left the Fizzly Club, and Nan guided her a block or two to that ultra-smart dressmaker, Madame Jerkins, whose exclusive salon was near Fifth Avenue on West 56th street. Their feet sank in a rug of [illegible].

The chairs and sofas were upholstered in [illegible] of Chinese blue. Down a winding staircase with balustrade of wrought iron promenaded models in exquisite evening dresses.

"Now this sea-green taffeta gown—it's the most [illegible] thing I've ever seen! You'd look like Aphrodite rising from the waves in it. You've simply got to buy it, Vernon!"

Admires Vernon

"It's certainly beautiful, but—" The gown was cut out at the back to the waistline and was suspended over the shoulders by the frailest of straps.

"It's the newest thing, go slip it on, Vernon!" Nan commanded.

The latter caught her breath in honest admiration when Vernon returned to the salon. Her [illegible]-white shoulders emerged from the great taffeta ruffles just above each elbow, slender and graceful. The diminutive bodice was high-waisted with a [illegible] "peplum" caught in front [illegible] some ornament.

From above the knees downwards the [illegible] skirt swirled [illegible] ruffles. A little cape [illegible] the sea-green taffeta [illegible] leaves could be worn [illegible] the shoulders [illegible] big muff. The color of the gown was wonderful with Vernon's russet hair [illegible]. She looked gorgeous.

Two hundred dollars was the price. [illegible] Sent [illegible] at six [illegible] C. O. D. [illegible] the H[illegible]

Vernon was wondering [illegible] her mother [illegible] decolletage [illegible] of New York [illegible] blood. [illegible] Terry Shannon could see her [illegible] night [illegible] the Suydams' [illegible]

It was [illegible] when the two [illegible] entered the [illegible] Fifth Avenue and on Park Avenue [illegible] the [illegible] show.

All for Vernon!

"This is a piece of luck! We meet like needles in a haystack! I've been upstairs for the past couple of hours, having a conference with Friedlis, president of my company and I was just thinking of giving you a ring to see how you were after your journey."

Before Vernon could speak Nan twittered "Brandies? I've met him. He's head of the Arizona and New Mexico Railroads. He's a big shot. He's a friend of Dad's."

Needlepoint Revived

By ANNICE BRINK

ONE of the very easiest of the handicraft arts, yet one whose finished product is in the cherished heirloom class, is needlepoint. And when even the busy movie stars take it up, there's good indication of its widespread vogue. Loretta Young worked on a panel of needlepoint between scenes of her current picture. Here she is shown with an authentic reproduction of the famous "Lady and the Unicorn" series of tapestries from the Cluny Museum in Paris. This panel is available in a Boston shop; if you wish for further details, phone Annice Brink, Fashion Editor, LIBerty 4000, or write her.

"Prisoner of OGPU"

By GEORGE KITCHEN

CHAPTER 19

Our energy was falling off perceptibly. I swapped my axe for a saw, but soon realized that I had made a bad bargain.

The peasants sawed methodically, the pickpockets gave up altogether and did not even try to make believe that they were working.

The monk and the two engineers were now only carrying branches. The rays of the setting sun now touched only the tree tops and it was getting colder.

Our thoroughly chilled guard was provoked and made attempts to drive the pickpockets to work, though he probably feared them a little and was urging them not any too persistently.

The Deniken lieutenant could hardly stand and had constantly to sit down for a rest.

I felt myself weakening. Alas! After all my tribulations my well-trained muscles had lost their strength and my heart was failing.

But the peasants were still sawing [illegible] as ever.

We had a good last quarter of the assignment still ahead of us. It was clear that we could not finish our job until late that night.

The work continued on after sunset. It was getting colder all the time. The moon rose and shed its greenish light over the working [illegible].

The blows of the axes sounded hollow. The pickpockets had started an open fire and were warming themselves at it. The freezing guard stood with them. The two exhausted engineers were sitting a little way off.

The foreman appeared, axe in hand.

"Well, are you ready? Look out, you will have to stay here for the night."

The remaining portion would take at least another three hours. The peasants were abusing the pickpockets, but could not get them back to work. The guard feebly urged them but would presently return to the fire.

My endurance was coming to an end. My body was cramped with cold and hunger and my fingers would no longer obey. I prayed for the end of this torture.

The work continued at a slowing pace. After their prolonged rest the two engineers resumed carrying branches but they were as slow as snails.

It was evident that at this rate we could never finish our assignment.

Should I [illegible] try to have a little talk with the foreman? I remembered the architect and his favorite expression, 'All men are human.'

The work had now come to a complete stop. Even the peasants were done for. All of us were crowding around the fire, trying to get warm, when suddenly a terrible heartrendering shriek pierced the air.

We all looked at one another questioningly, but there were no explanation.

So another half hour passed. The flickering light of a lantern coming toward us appeared in the distance. It was the foreman.

I quickly came to a decision and went to meet him.

"Look here," I said, "the assignment is almost finished, everybody is exhausted. Please let us go. We are all cold and hungry. Perhaps you have some little bit of food with you that I could buy. Here, take this five-spot."

He glanced at me, then at the rest of our group sitting at the fire, took the proffered bill and quickly stuck it into his pocket.

"All right, I shall call you in 20 minutes or so."

The matter was settled. In another half hour he again appeared at the fire. The freezing guard, who evidently was very anxious to return to the camp, talked to him in a low whisper.

The prisoners, frozen stiff and dumb, were staring into the fire.

"Come on home," ordered the foreman.

Whence did they suddenly get such energy? The first to jump up were the pickpockets, then came the rest. The foreman came up to me and shoved a small parcel into my hand.

"This is in exchange for your money."

* * *

The road back to camp seemed endless. Only then I felt my fatigue in full degree and, strange as it may seem, noticed that I had lost considerable weight during the one day. The moon shone brightly and lighted up the road.

The foreman had put out his lantern and walked ahead. We crawled along behind him, tired and benumbed. The guard closed the procession.

The axes and saws which we carried glistened in the moonlight. My drenched oxfords and stockings were covered with a crust of ice.

Every moment seemed to increase the difficulty of going onward. We were so completely exhausted. Turning the corner we saw the lights of the camp about half a mile ahead of us.

Oh, how I wished to get back to the barracks! At the gates our number was checked with the list carried by the guard and we were let in.

It was quiet in the barracks. Everybody was asleep and there was a lot of empty space on the shelves, as half the prisoners were still out in the forest though it was already half past ten.

We had missed the dinner call, but nobody thought of food any more; we wanted only to sleep.

I scraped the snow from my stockings and shoes, climbed into the first available space, stretched out my drenched feet and instantly fell asleep.

My head rested on some kind of a box, my feet were shoved under somebody's bundle. A doghouse would have been better.

"Citizen, wake up, you're in my place. Kindly clear it."

The tired angry face of the owner of the place bent over me.

"What time is it?"

"It is already after two and we have just returned, damn these torturers," he answered.

I got up. My whole body was in pain. My feet were entirely benumbed with cold and ached frightfully. Everywhere around me sleeping bodies covered the floor and every available foot of space was taken.

What could I do? I walked over to my bundle and sat down on my basket.

Dear Lord, when will these sufferings end?

I recalled the common cell of the Butirsky prison. What a paradise that was compared with my present life! My aching feet did not allow me to sit still, so from time to time I had to get up and stretch them.

I walked about the barracks, trying not to step on the sleepers. After a walk I would sit down again, then walk again. In this way the night finally passed.

Towards morning I began suffering sharp pangs of hunger. Bit by bit I swallowed my lard, which had thawed during the night. It was sticky and rancid.

At last the porridge was brought in. Sticking the remnants of my bread into my pockets I again took advantage of the doctor's written permit and left the barracks.

A large sled stood at the hospital door. Somebody's bare feet were sticking out from under a covering of burlap. Was it another case of "folding up"?

The tired doctor informed me that it was Filka, the boy who had squealed on the bread thieves. He was killed in the forest by a falling tree trunk.

The piercing shriek which we had heard in the forest the night before was his last cry.

At seven o'clock in the morning we were all driven out into the yard. There we saw some 40 prisoners formed in a small square.

These men were from two of our forest detachments which had not completed their assignment and who had only just now been brought back to the camp. They were ordered to stand there and shout out in chorus, for the edification of the rest of us:

"We are lazy good-for-nothings! We are slackers!"

Their emaciated faces had a vicious expression and were blue with cold. Grigoriantz was walking in front of their lines and ordered them alternately to mark time or to shout one and the same sentence.

Taking advantage of the reigning disorder I left the crowd of onlookers and went toward the office. On the way I met Lyskin. He seemed to notice my exhausted appearance, for he stopped me and said that he might use me to help him out with some special work at the office and ordered me to go there.

There was plenty of activity in the office, people were going to and fro, the telephone rang, typewriters hammered away.

A large cast-iron stove in the corner heated the room and was constantly fed with wood. It spread a pleasant warmth through the office.

My brain was foggy and refused to work, figures were all jumbled in front of my eyes. I repeatedly fell asleep over my work. It progressed very slowly.

Toward 2 o'clock my job was finished, but I decided to take full advantage of my day of rest and did not hasten to hand over my papers.

Instead, I peacefully sat over them smoking the tobacco which I had procured.

That day I again had to use brute force to obtain my dinner. After dinner I felt an imperative need to lie down somewhere, no matter where, just to lie down, stretch out and sleep.

I carefully inspected all the shelves, though I knew in advance that I could not find any room on them. Finally I found an empty space under the farthest corner shelf.

I crept into it and stretched out. It felt like a coffin. It was dark and damp. Cold air was blowing in through the cracks between the floor boards; consequently I had constantly to turn from one side to the other.

Another chapter of George Kitchin's "Prisoner of the Ogpu" will appear in tomorrow's Boston Evening American.

Dangers of Fissure Cases

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

ANAL fissure or laceration of the lining of the vent is a painful and disabling condition. Often it is confused with hemorrhoids or piles, but the treatment of the two conditions is quite different.

In fissure there is a crack or tear, usually caused by the passage of some hard object. This may be a mass of fruit seeds, a splinter of bone, or some other hard substance taken in with the hastily swallowed food.

The victim of fissure is often a sufferer from constipation. Chronic constipation may exist for years without pain, but once a fissure is formed, discomfort and real pain are present at times. At first the victim complains of a mild burning whenever there is a movement. This is followed by a sense of heaviness and discomfort in the fissured region. The pain may persist for several hours after evacuation. Sometimes this may be relieved by the use of a suppository.

Do not confuse fissure with piles. Blood may show in both afflictions but the pain is more severe and persistent in fissure. Of course, both conditions may be present at the same time. When this is the case an operation should be performed as soon as possible. It is a simple procedure and need not cause any worry or alarm.

Unfortunately, the application of home remedies, such as ointments and salves are of little value in promoting the cure of fissure. Relief can only be obtained by the direct application to the fissure of pure carbolic acid. Of course, this should be done by the doctor or severe burning of the surrounding parts may result. After the fissure has closed, a soothing ointment of balsam of Peru or ichthyol is beneficial.

Neglect of this trouble leads to extension of the fissure into deep crypts of the canal. When this occurs operation is the only means of relief. This operation calls for complete removal of the fissured area.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

Mrs. F. S. W. Q.—Will you kindly tell me a remedy for a sore on the leg caused by varicose veins?

A.—If you have varicose ulcers, you should stay off your feet. Sometimes dusting with quinine is helpful. For full particulars restate your question and send a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

T. P. E. Q.—What can be done for sore, tender feet? I am on my feet a good part of the time. 2- What do you advise for callouses on the ball of the foot?

A.—Daily care of the feet should give increased comfort and relief. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question. 2: For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON ON BRIDGE

Two Kinds of Methods

There are two ways of getting information in the bidding of a bridge hand, direct and indirect.

The player receives direct information from the bids his partner makes, for they show a certain number of honor-tricks and certain suit lengths.

Sometimes a player cannot find out what he wants to know by this direct route and draws indirect information from his partner's failure to make a certain bid.

Some expert players become very clever at times and arrange the bidding to force their partner to make a certain bid if he is able to do so. If he fails to make this bid they can count on the fact.

South, dealer.

After South and West passed, North made the powerful forcing bid of two hearts. East passed and South bid two spades. North knew that if South had a long, strong string of spades the Grand Slam could be made unless South happened to have three little hearts.

In this case, one of those hearts would be a loser. North therefore went about proving to himself South could not hold anything in hearts. Over two spades he bid three hearts. South bid three spades.

North then bid four clubs. If South had three hearts he would show a preference by returning to hearts. But South simply bid four spades.

North used the Four-Five Notrump Convention to show all four Aces, bidding four notrump and when South signed off with five clubs, continuing with five notrump.

But North was spared the trouble of bidding seven spades himself, for South, with the knowledge that North had all four Aces and a rebiddable heart suit, leaped right into seven spades.

The contract was easily made after West's opening trump lead. South drew four rounds of trumps and then played the Ace and King of hearts and ruffed out two hearts.

This established dummy's fifth heart as a winner making thirteen tricks.

Try a Filet Mignon

By MARTHA LEE

Can you turn out a filet mignon from a cut of chuck steak? It may sound like an old fashioned conundrum but it has a sensible answer. Just grind the chuck steak, or better yet, ask your meat dealer to grind it for you.

Ground beef has possibilities in the menu beyond your fondest dreams. First of all, it's a true economy purchase with a high food value and a nominal cost, having absolutely no bone or waste. Housewives often disregard the fact that chuck, flank and round steaks actually have a more delicious beef flavor than the more costly cuts. It's all a matter of cooking them to make them deliciously brown and tender.

Grinding automatically makes tender beef out of less tender cuts, so that they may be broiled, or roasted just like the choicest meat cuts, and at what a saving in cost. It's that delicately browned, broiled or baked flavor that you like so well in a beef rib roast or a tenderloin steak and get just that flavor in your properly prepared ground meat.

TRY THIS BEEF GRILL

Our newest idea for using ground beef is a Bacon and Chopped Beef Grill, truly a dish which will vie with any filet mignon. The ground chuck is mixed with a little fresh pork or chopped bacon and just enough evaporated milk to moisten slightly, is very lightly mixed so as to avoid packing the meat, then shaped into small steaks for broiling.

Instead of grilling onions and pepper separately, these and other seasonings are mixed into the meat itself for better blending of flavors. Serve these steaks with carefully broiled bacon strips and garnish with broiled pineapple and tomato.

BACON AND CHOPPED BEEF GRILL

- 1½ pounds ground beef (chuck or round)
- ½ pound ground pork
- 4 strips sliced bacon
- 1 tablespoon chopped onion
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 1 tablespoon green pepper
- 1 tablespoon chopped parsley
- ½ teaspoon pepper
- ¼ can evaporated milk

Cut the bacon in fine pieces and mix lightly with meat and seasonings. Shape into 9 or 10 meat cakes and place on broiler set 3 to 3½ inches under the flame. Broil 12 minutes, turning only once. During the last 6 or 7 minutes add strips of sliced bacon to the broiler, allowing 2 stripes to each serving. Turn the bacon once. Remove meat to hot chop plate and add a generous teaspoon of brown sauce. Place 2 stripes of crisp bacon on top of each beef cake.

ADVICE on LOVE and MARRIAGE by BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Unemployed, He Can't Afford to Give Her A Good Time

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I can't afford to take her to clubs, dances and movies at present, as I'm unemployed.

I am 30, she is 22. Naturally, she enjoys going out and feels she shouldn't miss out on the dances and all the fun because I can't afford to take her.

She claims she sees nothing wrong in going out with friends until conditions are better with me. She cares for me a lot, and we have tried to plan a future together, although it is hard at present.

MIGHTY PUZZLED.

One must take a chance in everything in life—in marriage, love, business, friendship, even in crossing the street. So you've got to have faith that this 22-year-old girl means what she says about going to dances and places of amusement.

Meantime, why not wear out the doorstep of your senator, congressman, governor, mayor or other political pundit till he gives you a job? You know, of course, that many new jobs have been created, and a man who knows how to make a nuisance of himself, to some politician with whom he has a drag, is the victor nine times out of ten.

SHALL SHE PROPOSE?

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

My children are grown and I am divorced. He is the same age and faith as I am, but he's terribly shy. Once he told me he had never been married, and said he feared he never would be now.

Do you think he said that to encourage me to say something about getting married. And that he is waiting for me to take him up on that? He has nothing to fear economically, as I have my own business and he holds a fine position. I think he's just shy, and I am tired of waiting. Shall I ask him what he means?

JUNE.

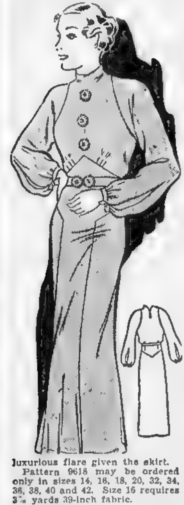
Someone said that all women propose, but they never do it openly as "will you marry me?" The next time your friend tells you he fears he will never be married, you will have to handle the situation as skillfully as Priscilla did when John Alden came wooing for his friend. As you probably remember, she told him to speak for himself.

New Military Version

By MARIAN MARTIN
PATTERN 9618

There's brilliance and a world of dash to this frock with its suggestion of the military in the throat-high, hug-me-tight collar, that isn't a collar at all, strange to say.

Full, peasant-like sleeves take a deep, easy armhole, while a broad panel accounts for the luxurious flare given the skirt.



Pattern 9618 may be ordered only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 3⅞ yards 39-inch fabric.

Send 15 cents in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for each Marian Martin pattern.

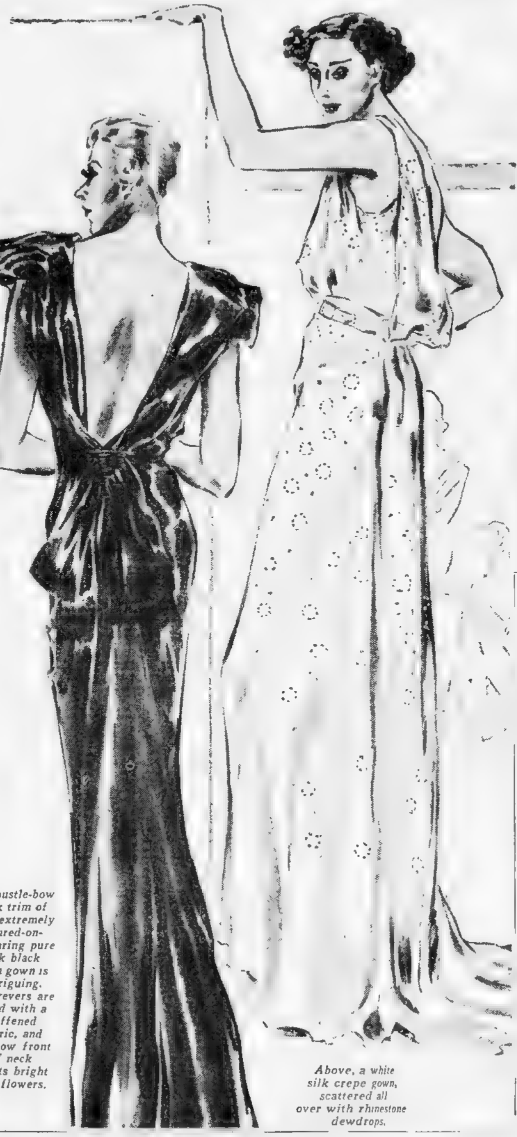
SILKEN EVENING SORCERY



The bustle-bow back trim of this extremely poured-on-appearing pure silk black satin gown is intriguing. The revers are lined with a stiffened fabric, and the low front V neck boasts bright red flowers.

By PRUNELLA WOOD

THERE IS A PRE-WAR glow and glimmer to many of this Winter's handsomest evening gowns, some of it due to paillette or beaded trimming, much of it inherent in the silk highlights of a model's fabric.

The two formal dresses sketched here are pure silk, which permits them to drape closely to the figure, and which accounts for the lustrous planes of the black satin model, left.

The white crepe gown, center, is made of unusually heavy white silk crepe which carries the added weight of the many rhinestone motifs encrusted upon it in a regular [illegible]. This is not one of [illegible] frocks scattered over with [illegible], but a [illegible] which slinks about the figure and is elegant and stately in the extreme.

• • •

Even though the formal season has just begun, it is remarkable how many evening toilettes are backed by coiffure ornaments. Gardenias and poppies are added to short hair effects, and where the hair is long enough to twist into a topknot between the ears, the pompadour notion is accented by a flat bow and flowers, or a twirl of tiny ostrich plumes sprang in the center, above the forehead.

The latest enthusiasm in evening bags seems to be gold or silver chain mesh, which makes both small or capacious models very becoming to ensembles.

Beauty Answers

Question: Looking over your column I noticed you mentioned an ointment that will dissolve blackheads. Of course, my skin is smooth, but I have a few black heads on my nose and chin and would be willing to do anything to get rid of them. If this ointment is not too expensive I would like to purchase it. Please let me know the price.

ANGELINA C.

Lowell.

Answer: The ointment which was mentioned recently in this column is a home-made recipe. The recipe is one which has been used by physicians in the treatment of skin irregularities of this sort. It contains a large quantity of ether which is said to dissolve the blackheads. Since it is well to remember that an ordinary case of blackheads can blaze forth any day into acne, care should be taken to get rid of these pests. Merely send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Beauty Editor, Boston Evening American, to obtain this recipe.

Question: I have a very bad habit of biting my lips, due probably to a nervous condition from which I am suffering. However, my lips seem to be continually cracked and swollen. And I find it extremely difficult to remove traces of lipstick when I retire. What can I do?

DOROTHY L.

Arlington.

After the lipstick-smear is removed at bedtime, use a white lip cream, frictioning it well with the finger tips. Cold cream is not satisfactory for this purpose as it does not remove an indelible stain. Neither does it taste nice.

Twin Enchantments

For Evening Glory

By Arline Gould

ISN'T IT TRUE that a tantalizing, haunting perfume and a woman's handkerchief sometimes play an important part in our scheme of things. Romantically speaking, of course.

Just as a man in love will associate every love song with the object of his affections, so he will remember a perfume which is undeniably hers.

An Englishman who had been listening to one of our famous crooners on the radio remarked that America seemed to be half-populated by people whose hearts were breaking—or about to break.

But when that same gentleman came to our shore for a visit, he changed his tune. He said that the other half of the population were the ones who were doing the breaking—the lovely American women.

LILLIAN AND MADGE JOIN HUNT

CHAPTER 467

THE YOUNG state trooper who had commandeered my car, and who, crouched in the rear, was watching for the gangsters whom he was chasing, did not immediately reply to Lillian's suggestion that the men were probably secreted in the detouring road which almost paralleled the main boulevard.

I knew that his silence did not mean any disrespect to Lillian's opinion.

It was simply that his brain did not work as quickly as his courage and his nerves, and that he was waiting until he could fully grasp just what she meant by her assertion that all he and his comrades would have to do would be to wait for the gangsters to appear.

"You mean," he said slowly at last, "that if my buddies haven't met them, and we don't pass them until we meet my pals, they're in that wood road, and all we'd have to do is take to the bushes and wait for them to come out?"

REINFORCEMENTS

"That's what I said," Lillian retorted, and I guess that she was repressing an amused smile with difficulty; "and if they don't come out fast enough to suit you, why, you can smoke 'em out."

"We can do that thing," the youthful trooper declared valiantly, and said no more while the car raced on, seeming to me to be hurling itself through space. It was not more than two or three minutes later when we glimpsed a powerful machine filled with troopers coming toward us.

"Here are your pals, brother," Lillian said. "Better get out and flag them when Mrs. Graham gets this runaway car stopped."

Her voice showed appreciation of the difficulty I was having in slowing down the car quickly enough to enable the young trooper to "flag" his comrades. The young chap was palpably a man with a one track mind. He was out of the car and on the running board before I had fairly slowed down, almost taking a nasty fall in the process, and was frantically signalling his oncoming comrades.

They slowed down and stopped with a squealing of brakes. The young trooper jumped to the ground, and ran over to them. There was a hurried colloquy, with occasional gestures toward our car. Then a man, evidently of higher rank than the others, climbed down and crossed the road to us, the young troopers accompanying him.

"Captain Lumley, ladies," he said crisply, announcing himself. "We are much obliged to you for your help and if you will just let us have the use of your car a little longer, I think we may be able to nail these birds. We haven't seen 'em, an' I'm inclined to agree with you ladies that they are somewhere on this detour road, a little way back. I'm sorry to ask you to take cover in the woods while we get busy on this, but it ought not to take long."

"Just a minute!" Lillian said. "What are you going to do with the car?"

"Put part of our men in it to wait at the entrance of the detour road," the captain replied. "Then I'll take the rest back to the other entrance to the wood road. If we don't meet them, we'll go down there after them, and drive them out this way, unless we can nail them in there."

"May I offer an amendment to that program?" Lillian asked, and the captain stiffened for an instant, then relaxed again.

"If you're the lady with the badge, you can say anything," he said gallantly.

"I'm the one," she countered curtly, and then went on rapidly. "Suppose your men hide in the car and my friend and I stand beside it with the hood open, bending over the motor as if we were in trouble. Then the men you're after, coming out on the road, won't suspect anything and you'll be able to get them as they come out."

The captain looked at her admiringly but dubiously.

"I don't know," he said. "There'll be danger—shooting, you know."

Lillian's eyes met mine and evidently she read in them what she wanted to see, for she answered steadily, "That's our affair," and then she hurried gaily: "Who's afraid of the big, bad wolf?"

NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING IS POINT-OF-SHOPPING ADVERTISING!

Newspaper advertising has one asset which no other advertising has!

It is point-of-shopping advertising—consciously sought and read when the man, woman or child is definitely looking for something to buy.

Numerous checks of reading habits demonstrate that newspaper readers give as much attention to advertising as to news columns.

Sales of retail stores total millions of dollars daily because the retailers are able to describe and picture merchandise, give its price and tell where it may be bought with least effort and loss of time.

Intrinsically, advertising is reader response. Not copy or art but customers in action.

Newspaper advertising creates buying action. It is local. It is sought. It is read at the time the prospect is actively planning to buy!

'To Be Shot at Sunrise!'

Irishman With Famed Connaught Rangers Cheats Death in Mutiny in India

By FLOYD GIBBONS

Publication of your story may be delayed a bit while Floyd is in the war zone, because of the time it takes for his mail to reach him. Floyd asks all his adventurers to "be patient with a hard workin' feller."

HELLO, EVERYBODY:—

And the Top o' the Mornin' to you, Valentine Delaney, out there at 1195 Fulton avenue, Bronx, N. Y., for your story this day, and I'm after thinkin' that you must have had a shamrock from the "old sod" in your pocket that day you cheated death in far-off India.

FLOYD GIBBONS

Val is in New York now, but he was a soldier not so long ago in that famous Irish regiment, the "Connaught Rangers." In the British army during the World War, they called Val's outfit "The Devil's Own."

After the Devil's Own had won the big war, Val says with true Irish modesty, the English shipped them out to India to clean up that little country of three hundred million souls.

But, begorra, while the Devil's Own was out in India troube started back home between the English and the Irish. This put the Devil's Own in a divil of a predicament. Shure an' here was an Irish regiment in the uniform of the King, while their brothers back in Ireland were getting shot up (and doing a little shooting themselves) by the English.

Well, sir, the Devil's Own—five hundred strong—decided that their loyalty belonged to the country of their birth rather than to the uniform they wore. So they up and started a war of their own, right then and there, on the plains of India.

Down went the British flag and up came the Irish emblem of liberty; out went their dapper English colonel and in came an Irish lance corporal as commander of the regiment. To the Irish lads, this was a blow for liberty; to the English it was plain, unadulterated mutiny. And mutiny is punishable by death in any man's army.

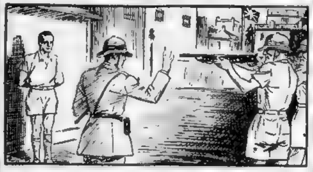
But the Devil's Own—determined as they were—were outnumbered ten to one and didn't have a chance. The mutiny ended in disaster when the Irish were surrounded in a "sand furnace" called Gullander Punjab and captured to a man.

Court-martials followed and Private Valentine Delaney, among the few picked as leaders, was presented in his cell with an official envelope marked "On His Majesty's Service." The paper had Valentine's name on it, but it was no valentine.

It was a death warrant!

I saw a picture of that death warrant and I have a mental picture of Private Delaney sitting disconsolately in his death cell, waiting for the day of execution. Jim Daley, a friend of Val's, occupied one of the death cells near him. In the British army executions take place 21 days after conviction.

As dawn broke on the morning of the 21st day Val says he heard the tramp, tramp, tramp of soldiers outside his narrow cell. His time had come, he knew, and he prayed for strength to take it standing up.



The soldiers marched into the prison. He heard them at Daley's cell. They were taking Jim first. A few minutes later the file of riflemen passed Val's cell with Daley. The Irish boy was pale, but smiling. He waved a steady hand toward Val's cell.

"Good-by, Old Boy," he said. "See you up above."

Val says his heart was in his boots, but he managed to call out a farewell. He listened then to their footsteps as they marched across the courtyard. The footsteps stopped. It seemed hours, Val says, waiting there tensely for that sound he knew must come. He put his fingers in his ears, but still he heard it—heard a crashing volley, a pause and then a single shot. That was Jim.

It wouldn't be long now, Val thought, and when the soldiers returned he was ready for them. He tried to look as unconcerned as he could and marched out between them with his head high in the air.

At the courtyard wall the procession of death stopped. An officer snapped out an order. The firing squad stiffened to attention. Val stood there trying to hold on to his nerves. He wondered what it would feel like to go crashing into eternity, and he mustered up a weak smile to hide his terror. He remembers each move the officer made.

Formally, as though he were at dress parade, the officer withdrew a paper from his pocket and read aloud. At the first words, Val says, his knees buckled, his mouth dropped open and he nearly collapsed.

The paper was a commutation of the death sentence to imprisonment for life! Holy St. Patrick!

Well, sir, they marched the dazed Val away to prison to start his life term, but you can't keep a good Irishman down, and in three years he received the "King's Pardon" and was set free.

"And," Val ends his letter, "that's why I'm here in 'the land of the free and the home of the brave'."

Bravo, Val! And more power to you! Tune in on tomorrow's true adventure. It's "Death Rides the Waves."

WE DON'T KNOW HOW TO THANK YOU FOR YOUR KINDNESS TO LITTLE ANNIE. SHE TOLD US HOW YOU HAVE TREATED HER AS THOUGH SHE WERE YOUR OWN CHILD
FLYIN' FISHHAWKS! I'D BE THE PROUDEST MAN IN THIS COUNTRY IF SHE WAS MY KID. MAKES ME SEE WHAT A FOOL A MAN IS NOT TO GET MARRIED
WE ALL FEEL THE SAME WAY ABOUT ANNIE BUT EVEN A LITTLE GIRL MUST HAVE FOOD AND CLOTHING, AND I THOUGHT PERHAPS YOU MIGHT LET US- THAT IS - I MEAN
I KNOW JUST WHAT YOU MEAN!
YOU MEAN YOU WANT TO PAY US FOR THE CHILD'S KEEP. I KNOW YOU MEAN WELL- BUT-IT'S MY FAULT- CAREY DIDN'T WANT TO MENTION IT-
THANK YOU KINDLY, FRIENDS BUT I COULDN'T TAKE A PENNY- NO-HOW

TIBBETT GIVING "LA TRAVIATA" BY RADIO

By N. F. T.

Garden scene singing from the classic old Verdi opera, "La Traviata," occupies the period Lawrence Tibbett is allowed (WNAC) on the coast to coast air this evening from 8:30 until 9 o'clock.

Guest artist hospitality and honors will be extended to Mary Eastman, popular network soprano, soloing the "Violetta" role opposite the "Germont" part, to be played by Tibbett.

From which mention the subject switch is made to set forth notice of something ever so decidedly different in character. There looms the appearance of Cliff "Ukulele Ike" Edwards, in company with Ben "Old Maestro" Bernie (WEEI) likewise tonight, when its 9 o'clock. Ben is appearing in person for dance lovers of Philadelphia, where "all the lads" provoke applause aplenty when they play. Accordingly, Ben's half-hour will be "piped" coast to coast out of the placid Pennsylvania city.

"N. F. T."

SECRET AGENT FLASH!

It's 6:45 this evening! Quarter to seven, instead of 6:30!

Meaning the regular weekly "Secret Agent X-9" airing with "Uncle Newt" and under Boston Evening American auspices, Ruth Hanson, the popular piano accompanist, will play for Joe Lally in the theme song singing as usual, and also for two special juvenile guest artists. They are 12-year-old Charlie Kanash of Roxbury and little Billy Schortell, the 12-year-old songster from South Boston. Both boys are songsters of unusual talent and take their first "mike" turn for the "X-9ers" who listen.

* * *

With a cash prize of $1,000 awaiting the winner, Alice Corlett, soprano, of Seattle, Wash., and Nyla Taylor, contralto, of Lansdale, Pa., will compete for singing honors during the "Fire Chief" broadcast (WEEI) starring Eddie Duchin, due tonight at 9:30 o'clock.

ACTION, CAMERA!

Amateur photographers who specialize in "candid camera" photography are to have their first opportunity to take pictures of a network program in progress when the "Crime Clues" feature takes the air (WBZ) this evening. All of which will be enacted before a studio audience composed exclusively of cameramen.

* * *

Fred Waring presents his concert master and first violinist, Johnny Richardson, in a violin solo of Jascha Heifetz's Rumanian dance, "Hora Stoccato," as a highlight of the "Pennsylvanian's" air attraction tonight (WNAC) with Stoopnagle and Budd from 9:30 to 10:30 p. m.

Richardson has been with the Waring organization for several years and previously was a member of the Philadelphia Orchestra under Leopold Stokowski.

Another bright spot as announced for the broadcast—this time in the strictly modern vein—is to be a special arrangement by Rosemary Lane and the Waring Glee Club of "Red Sails in the Sunset," a new number by the composers of "The Isle of Capri," Will Grosz and Jimmy Kennedy.

Radio Answers

Q—Who plays the role of "Frances Moran" in "Today's Children" feature?

All Ears, of Allston.

A—Bess Johnson is her name, a former advertising office secretary. Taking to radio she now finds movie moguls arranging screen tests for her.

Q—Did you publish in your column some weeks back, that John Charles Thomas, the singer, and Lowell Thomas, the commentator, were related? What is the family connection, if any.

C. N. Mac, of Dorchester.

A—No such item has been set forth, and they are not related.

Q—Does the Sunday night program of Phil Baker come from the cities he names, such as Detroit last Sunday night and is he to be here next week?

W. L. of Watertown.

A—No, it is an imaginary tour, with "Boston Night" slated for next Sunday, but the doings taking place in New York studios all the time. Just like the "Showboat" setting, also the Major Bowes hour.

Q—When will "Clara, Lu and Em" bring their front porch gossip turn back on the air?—R. K. J., of Reading.

A—They are due to return next Monday evening, October 14, through WEEI channels and every evening except Saturday and Sunday thereafter.

Q—How old is Ray Jones? What does he look like? Is he considered good looking? Is he single or married?—Marie, of Framingham.

A—Ray is 24 years old. He is of medium height, dark-haired and dark-eyed. Yes, he is. Not married.

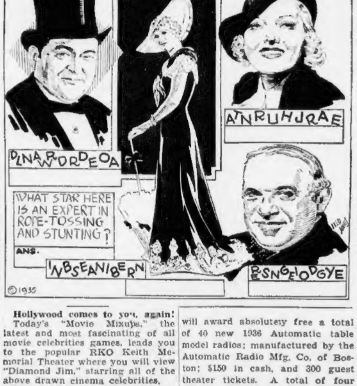
MOVIE MIXUPS

BY ART MOGER

BEGIN TO-DAY!- 40 NEW 1936 Automatic RADIOS FREE!
NOW PLAYING AT THE RKO KEITH-MEMORIAL THEATRE



Hollywood comes to you, again! Today's "Movie Mixups," the latest and most fascinating of all movie celebrities games, leads you to the popular RKO Keith Memorial Theater where you will view "Diamond Jim," starring all of the above drawn cinema celebrities.

Can you identify them all?

Near each likeness you will see a block of mixed up letters. Unscramble these letters and you will discover that they spell the names of the above drawn actors and actresses. Write or print their correct names in the empty blocks near them. Answer the question pertaining to one of these players in the square marked ANS.!

Save all SIX of this week's "Movie Mixups" and mail them to: The Movie Mixups Editor, Boston Evening American, Boston, Mass. The judges' decisions shall be final. No "Movie Mixups" will be returned.

The Boston Evening American will award absolutely free a total of 40 new 1936 Automatic table model radios; manufactured by the Automatic Radio Mfg. Co. of Boston; $150 in cash, and 300 guest theater tickets. A total of four such Automatic radios, with the NEW metal tube and other improved radio features, $15 in cash and 30 guest theater tickets are to be given free each week.

A grand award of a nine all-metal tube, all-wave, 1936 Automatic console radio with "Vision Ray," radio's most modern invention, is to be given at the end of this campaign to those who send in the most correct "Movie Mixups" every week.

Do not miss "Movie Mixups"! You need not be a weekly winner to share in this grand award. Duplicate awards in case of ties will be given.

JUNIOR BIRDMEN OF AMERICA

DEVOTED TO THE INTEREST OF THE YOUTH OF THE AMERICAS IN AVIATION

TODAY'S PILOTS OF MODELS —TOMORROW'S MODEL PILOTS!

"Swap Day" for Junior Birdmen of the Boston wing will be held at the organization's headquarters, fourth floor, 100 Summer street, Boston, on Saturday, October 26, opening at 9 a. m.

The event is just what its name implies, an opportunity for Junior Birdmen to trade model planes, kits, tools, toys, books, magazines, in fact anything and everything.

All Junior Birdmen with whom the idea has been discussed, are enthusiastic and promise to participate. Among these are "Bob" Shea of Brighton, Sidney Wallerstein of Dorchester, Torrey Capo of Quincy and Bruno Marchi of Medford.

"That's a good idea," exclaimed "Bob." "I'm for it. I've got a crosscut saw I'd like to trade for something I need more."

"I hope somebody brings a typewriter," was Bruno's reaction. "I need a typewriter. I've got a stack of magazines containing air stories that some Junior Birdman is bound to enjoy."

"I'll be there with some model planes," said Torrey. "And I'll trade them for whatever I find I need."

All Junior Birdmen are invited to take part in "Swap Day." Simply bring whatever you have that you don't want to headquarters on Saturday, October 26.

Other Junior Birdmen will be doing the same thing. Then strike the best bargain you can. Wing headquarters will simply provide the space, the tables, chairs and other facilities. Members will conduct their own "swapping" and close their own deals.

If you have nothing to trade and want to buy for cash, that's your privilege, too. You may pick up a used article for a bargain price.

Just one word of caution. Get your parents' consent on anything you propose to trade. In this way all possible reprimand will be avoided.

* * *

Bart Bratko, 42 Smith street, Allston, and Leslie C. Woodman, 41 Dartmouth street, Everett, are the latest Junior Birdmen to enter the S-39 Scale Model Competition, in which $1000 cash is the prize for the national winner.

* * *

Here are the latest entrants in the 1935 Indoor Model Plane Air Races to be held at South Armory on Saturday, November 30:

David Adelstone, 17, 75 Pratt street, Mansfield; Donald W. Robinson, Jr., 14, 36 Henderson street, Arlington; Albert H. Meryman, 18, 86 Bowdoin street, Winthrop, and Leonard Young, 16, 79 Fayston street, Roxbury.

To enter this contest simply write to Birdmen headquarters for a free contest manual, containing entry blank, specifications of models and rules. The prizes will include the 1935 indoor championship, a handsome silver trophy, nine gold, silver and bronze medals and a free trip to Chicago to compete in the national tournament for the high point scorer.

Oath of Loyalty

President Conant of Harvard Takes the Proper Course

FAITHFUL Americans everywhere should applaud the action of Dr. James B. Conant, president of Harvard University, in ordaining that all citizen members of the faculty must either obey the new Massachusetts teachers' oath of loyalty law or else leave the campus.

Dr. Conant's unequivocal declaration was the only fitting answer to the rebellion against the oath of loyalty law which was being fomented by Dr. Kirtley F. Mather, professor of geology at Harvard.

As the reported spokesman for an alleged group of liberal professors and instructors, Dr. Mather had publicly announced at a meeting in Boston a few nights ago that he would REFUSE to take the oath to support the Constitution.

At the same time, Dr. Mather was quoted as saying that HE believed MANY OTHER HARVARD PROFESSORS would join him in his stand.

OF course, no such attitude could be tolerated at Harvard. In President Conant's own words:

"The act appears to make it mandatory for the institutions concerned not to permit any citizen to teach who fails to carry out the provisions of this act, and Harvard University has so assumed since the act was passed.

"IT IS OUT OF THE QUESTION FOR HARVARD UNIVERSITY AS AN INSTITUTION TO CONSIDER NOT OBEYING THE LAW."

Just why, however, does any AMERICAN teacher or professor object to swearing allegiance to the AMERICAN Constitution?

Why does Professor Mather object?

What are his affiliations?

Present at the Boston meeting where Dr. Mather proclaimed his intention of NOT subscribing to the oath was Representative Thomas A. Dorgan, author of the oath of loyalty law in the Massachusetts Legislature.

In response to Mr. Dorgan's searching questioning, Professor Mather—according to the reporters—"readily admitted" that he is a member of an organization described as the "American Society for Cultural Relations With Russia."

He also boasted that he belongs to the "Civil Liberties League."

And what are these organizations?

WELL, the American Society for Cultural Relations With Russia is listed as a COMMUNIST organization in the PRINTED RECORDS of the McCormack-Dickstein committee of the House of Representatives.

Under the date of December 29, 1934, the committee record SPECIFICALLY names the "Society" THE AMERICAN SECTION of the Society for Cultural Relations Between Russia and Foreign Countries, WHICH HAS ITS HEADQUARTERS AT MOSCOW and is AN ACKNOWLEDGED PART of the Communist organization for international intrigue and propaganda.

By "Civil Liberties League" Dr. Mather presumably meant the American Civil Liberties Union, to which a number of college professors belong, and which is ALSO named SPECIFICALLY in the McCormack Committee Records as a definite part of the Communistic set-up in this country.

In its 1935 report the Civil Liberties Union itself included among its major activities OPPOSITION TO TEACHERS' OATH OF LOYALTY BILLS, IN ARIZONA, GEORGIA, MICHIGAN AND NEW JERSEY.

And regarding this same Civil Liberties Union the Lusk committee of the New York Legislature commented as long ago as 1928:

"The American Civil Liberties Union, in the last analysis, is A SUPPORTER OF ALL SUBVERSIVE MOVEMENTS."

In the light of President Conant's firm ultimatum at Harvard, Professor Mather has now changed his mind. He says:

"I shall, of course, comply with the law, BECAUSE I DO NOT WANT TO INVOLVE HARVARD UNIVERSITY IN A LEGAL BATTLE."

THE only issue was—should PROFESSOR MATHER obey the oath of loyalty law or leave the faculty?

And Professor Mather decides to obey—FOR THE SAKE OF HARVARD.

Being loyal to the institution which gives one a job is commendable in any man, to be sure.

But there is likewise something very commendable in being unquestionably devoted to the institutions which give him freedom and THE OPPORTUNITY TO HAVE A JOB.

False Alarms

Cause Serious Accidents

Sounding a false alarm of fire is an offense that deserves more severe punishment than the evildoer usually gets.

Fire Commissioner McLaughlin of the Boston Fire Department says:

"There seems to be no sensible explanation for the large number of false alarms that are being sounded in our city. It is a dangerous evil that has increased in Boston during the past two or three years."

Commissioner McLaughlin properly urges those suffering with this sense of misguided humor to consider that:

"A genuine call may come in while this apparatus is out on a false alarm, and some family, the life of a mother, father or a baby may be placed in jeopardy because of delay due to the false alarm."

New England Acts

War Against Crime

New England acts in further war against crime by sending representatives of law and order to the nationwide crime conference at Trenton, N. J., next Friday and Saturday.

A main objective of the gathering will be new building of compacts on interstate co-operation.

This is a field in which the New England states have pioneered.

The present goal is to obliterate boundaries in the pursuit of lawbreakers.

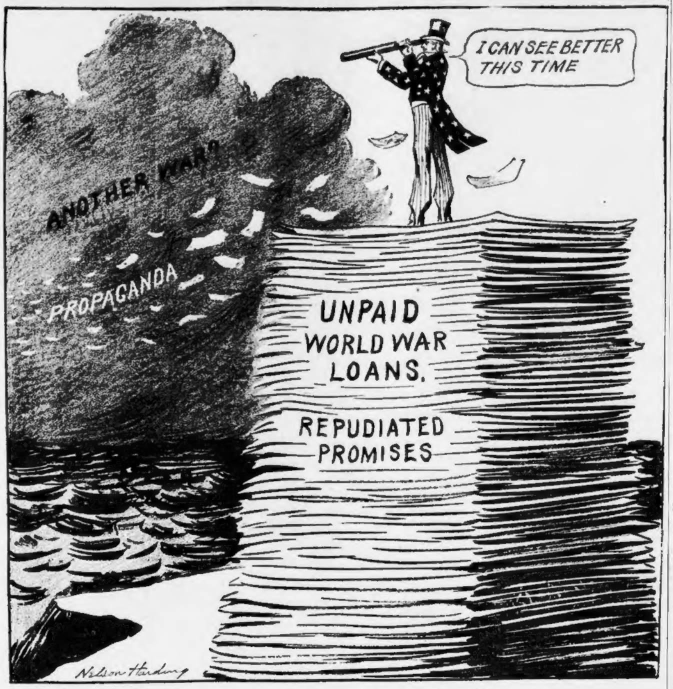
This, of course, should be done to supplement Federal jurisdiction.

In addition, the Trenton conference ought to give needed impetus to the long-standing and little-heeded organized movement for uniform State laws in general.

His Observation Tower

By Nels Hardin



On that observation tower,
Which is built of worthless paper,
Uncle Sam can see much farther
Than he could when foreign nations

Deluged him with propaganda
In those "World War" days that left him
With the name of "Uncle Shylock"
As reward for his assistance.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

New York, Oct. 8—Fred Astaire has become the Cinderella boy of the amusement world. The ugly duckling who stepped out of the pumpkin a prince. People used to think he was merely basking in the reflected glory of his frisetted and waspish sister Adele.

O. O. McIntyre

A nice boy, splendid foil and all that! Yet he has gone like a shot to his greatest successes since his talented sister married an English noble and the stage alliance was broken. Despite his stage achievements in New York and London, he was not made an over-night star by the movies.

His first part was a minor one and his billing was a scant mention of his name in: "The cast includes, etc." But he made a hit click and soon they had him signed on the dotted line. Today, with Ginger Rogers as his dancing partner, he is hanging up new box office records.

He is in mufti a country-looking boy, one who might be selling tickets at the depot. Yet he can wear a top hat, Inverness and twirl a cane with Picadilly polish few attain. And so effortless is his dancing he may be seen as star of an American ballet at the Metropolitan.

Mary Roberts Rinehart is to make New York her permanent home after a long residence in Washington. One of America's most beautiful authors wants to be near her sons and grandchildren.

Her new domicile is a Park avenue apartment which can be transformed into a single living room, perhaps the largest in town, more than 60 feet in length.

This is achieved by opening folding doors and throwing living room, library, billiard room, etc., together. Mrs. Rinehart's new novel upon which she is now working is to be called "The Doctor." Her late husband was a physician.

The illustrator, Russell Patterson, now so silvered he suggests William Courtney, has almost entirely abandoned his calling to make puppets and devise puppet shows.

Another indication of the revival of what had become an almost lost art in America. Tony Sarg, of course, is the pioneer of the marionette and has made a fortune. Last winter three shows of this sort were playing to big audiences.

Incidentally, I hear authoritatively that John La Gatta draws all his characters in the altogether and then affixes their clothes. Also there is a manicure goddess who has such beautiful feet she is in constant demand to pose and receives the highest pay of all.

Joe Zelli has been unable somehow to duplicate his Paris success catering high jinks to New York stay-ups. He has made several starts, steeped in generous backing, but a rousing opening was followed by a quick closing.

Although he employed his sure-fire formula for the favored—a sweeping bow, quick hand-clap and the whirlabout cry: "Royal box for the Prince!" But the magic had jelled since the day he lured the toiling martyrs up to his peak of Montmartre.

But Zelli has tenacity and night clubbing is a tenacious trade. He may yet turn the trick.

The cob-webby attic and the guttering candle are no longer, by a long shot, a part of a writer's background. Today the most magnificent workrooms in New York are occupied by literary successes. Edna Ferber recently took over the Ivar Kreuger penthouse on Park Avenue.

Kay Brush's Sutton Place studio in Urban decor is a model of elegance. Then there's Kathleen Norris's minaret near Palo Alto. Zane Grey's ocean-going yacht aboard which he turns out westerns. Michael Arlen has a schloss in the Austrian Tyrol. General Lew Wallace had a romantic tower in Indiana.

Joseph Hergesheimer actually has a moated castle on a fashionable reach of Philadelphia. And, of course, there is E. Phillips Oppenheim's circular glass studio overlooking the blue of the Mediterranean.

Fun in the park: One of those soft-eyed russet brown setters near the Pulitzer statue entrance this evening was the target for the capers of a frisky wire-haired puppy.

A living monument of patience, the puppy nipped his flanks, chewed his ears and leaped all over him with a staccato of mad yips.

Finally the noble elder, desperate, stretched on the ground, rolled on his back and let go a long moan. "That," called a seedy bench-sitter near-by, "is how I feel about things, too."

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Will You Survive the Ice Pack?

Cold and colder it grew. Inch by deadly inch, the great ice-pack moved down. And now a frosty grayness filmed the sky's hot blue . . . a sharpness nipped the steaming fragrance of the air . . . and in the swamps the lush green palms and tree ferns shrivelled to lifeless slime.

Elsie Robinson

For the Mesozoic Age was passing and the test by cold had come.

Never before had the earth known frost. Everywhere there rose a mighty bellowing, as the great beasts sought refuge from the strange, new agony.

Deep and deeper into their warm wallows they plunged—monstrous diplodocus, camptosaurus, brontosaurus, trachodons, triceratops, gigantosaurus over one hundred feet long—and the earth shuddered beneath their struggles. But for all their size and ferocious strength, they were helpless.

THEY COULDN'T THINK

Yet they need not have died. Life was still possible in some places on the globe. If they could have given up their old comfort, left their old haunts, devised new habits and protections for themselves, they might have been saved.

But they couldn't think. In all their vast bodies there was hardly a spoonful of brain stuff.

Hunger and anger they knew, fear and lust, but never a flicker of imagination. So they died, floundering in the swamps where they had been born, unable to make a place for themselves in the changing world.

Of them all, only one remained—a tiny beast, hardly larger than a mouse, the little Theriomorph. Hardship was no novelty to this small creature. Life had always been one long search for food and safety from more powerful brutes.

Forced to flee the warm swamps, he had taken to the high barrens and, even before the ice-pack came, had begun to adapt himself to a harder life, growing hair to protect himself against the chill—developing new habits.

FRONT PAGE NEWS

So when the test came, the Theriomorph survived. And from him there came in time, mammals—and Man. But of the mighty swamp lords, only a few bones remain.

Which, believe it or not, should be Front Page News for YOU. For there's a story that packs as big a wallop in 1935 A. D. as in 1,935,000 B. C.

Once more—as so often and often in the past—the Ice-Pack is on the move and the Test by Cold has come. These last few years—do not fool yourself into thinking they are merely an economic accident.

They mark a life change—as tremendous as the change from the Mesozoic Age to Cainozoic. The world of your father, and of your own youth—that world has passed as surely as the steaming swamps of the great reptiles. And it will never come again.

Get that fact straight in your head and heart . . . and rivet it to your backbone, if you've got one to rivit it to. The Good-Old-Days will never come back. They can't. We wouldn't know what to do with them if they did. The Machine has wiped them out as surely and irrevocably as the Ice-Pack wiped out those steamy forests with their flabby citizens.

WHO WILL SURVIVE

And something entirely different has come in their places—a swifter, sterner existence, so alien to all life hitherto that we cannot as yet tabulate it. And with it there has come the same old question:

"Who will survive?"

The bones of those old reptiles hold the answer. Only those will survive who have the sense to see what is happening, the imagination to devise a new scheme of living, the gumption to grasp it. The rest will perish in their mud wallows.

All around you can see them at it. The Sentimentalists, the Softies, the Smarties, the Peevish and Intolerant—the same old flabby Mesozoic Gang who won't admit or adapt, but just dig deeper in the mud and wallows, and yawp at everyone who won't.

Where does that leave YOU? Are you going to cast in YOUR lot with the mud wallowers? Or take a chance with the tough little Theriomorphs?

Words of Wise

What we think or what we know or what we believe is in the end of little consequence. The only thing of importance is what we are.—John Ruskin.

We are in the garden of life. —Gipsy Smith

The devil doesn't seem to have much trouble over the unemployment problem.—Dr. Cortland Myers.

Don't talk about going back to where you were before the World War. Get a new world, for you cannot have the world as it was. —Lloyd George.

Schools are pretty powerless without the backing of the home. —Dr. Samuel S. Drury.

Sharing the Wealth

Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

THE GLOBE TROTTER OF HEARST METROTONE NEWS

The entire spirit of the NRA had been adopted and demonstrated by Ford for thirty years in his business. It showed him nothing new except the restraint it put on business.

Edwin C. Hill

When the NRA came, Ford went off in the woods by himself and thought it out. Then he took his stand as a plain American citizen. He knew he would suffer and he did, until up from the South came the break in the boycott.

"The signing away of citizenship," he felt, "was no part of American law."

This is an extract from an address by W. J. Cameron, generally regarded as Henry Ford's spokesman.

"We thought we had a great future under the NRA. It had many splendid ideas which promised to improve the future of the working people. We are more disappointed than you are about the change. But I want to say to you that NRA principles are going to be carried out in this industry 100 per cent as far as is humanly possible."

This is an extract from an address by George F. Johnson to 17,600 employes.

RUGGED INDIVIDUALISTS

As far apart as they are on the New Deal, Henry Ford and George F. Johnson have a whole lot in common. They are, in the best sense of the term, two of America's great rugged individualists. Ford is 72 years old; Johnson is 78.

At 40, Johnson was a shoe factory foreman, practically out of a job. At 40, Henry Ford was a mechanic tinkering with the newfangled horseless carriages. Everyone knows Ford's position today. A few may not know Johnson's.

Well, he is chairman of the board of the Endicott-Johnson Company which manufacturers $60,000,000 worth of shoes a year and employs 20,000 people, which by the way is 3000 more than were on payroll in the boom year of 1928.

He built up an industrial democracy in the towns of Johnson City and Endicott which has attracted world-wide attention.

No strike or labor trouble has occurred in 40 years, layoffs have been unknown and a complete social welfare program has been put into effect and has operated without infringing on the independence of the worker.

"It is a disgrace to die rich," says George F. Johnson.

Sixteen years ago, he discovered that he was worth $7,000,000. Today he is worth $2,000,000, the other five million having gone to improve the social conditions and the living conditions of his people in the Susquehanna Valley of New York State.

"Money," says Ford, "of itself means nothing. Real wealth is work, productivity."

SHARE-THE-WEALTHERS

He and Johnson have been share-the-wealthers for a long time. Ford's original $5-a-day minimum wage was a revolutionary step, the primary factor in the inauguration of the era of high wages in the United States. They have plowed back the profits into their businesses of making automobiles and making shoes.

The Ford Company in 32 years has received $12,500,000,000 from the public. Of that enormous sum, $12,395,000,000 was paid out in wages, materials, taxes and plant.

That left $105,000,000 surplus and, as the Ford spokesman pointed out, when you spend $68,000,000 of that in one year just to keep the wheels of industry turning, such a surplus proves a blessing to the country.

Henry Ford and George Johnson do not agree on the tax-the-rich program. Johnson says:

"The purpose of money is usefulness to the many, not the coddling of the few. Most owners of wealth don't know what to do with their money outside of spending it on themselves. That's why I think it's a good idea for the government to take it away from them in the form of taxes."

Mr. Cameron says:

"We think the tax-the-rich program is simply a break-up-Ford campaign. Every form of attack has been made to gain control of the Ford Company. Now comes this idea of breaking up great fortunes."

The Marry-Go-Round

By Helen Rowland

THEY ALL HAVE THEIR GOOD POINTS

"Every man has his better side. Even the worst people have their good points," writes a young woman who might be a first cousin to Pollyanna, "Why not can the satire and look on the brighter side?"

Helen Rowland

Now, I never thought of THAT. Of course, the worst people have their good points—even the most notorious people!

Cleopatra may have had her heart-affairs and made rather a mess of her life. But there is no denying that she was a wonderful hostess and could serve a perfect dinner. And she never went in for platinum hair!

Henry VIII may have done away with a few wives. But he always MARRIED the girl! He didn't loll around on her sofa-cushions, smoke up all her cigarettes and urge her to "live her own life." He could take 'em or leave 'em alone!

Bluebeard had his weaknesses, but he must have been a romanticist, after all. He could not bear to be separated from a woman he had once loved. He kept all his wives hanging around the house—even after he had murdered them. The sentimentalist!

Delilah DID double-cross Samson, it's true—but she had a lovely figure. And she never wore "shorts" or soaked herself in suntan oil.

Don Juan broke a lot of hearts, perhaps—but he was too delicate to introduce his latest crush to one of his last summer's flames and expect them to be "good friends."

Circe may have turned men into pigs—but she fed them well and never kept them waiting for dinner while she put on her make-up. And there is no record that she plucked her eyebrows.

Munchausen, whatever may have been said about his genius for lying, never came home to his wife with an alibi so thin that she could see through it, or insulted her intelligence with an excuse so weak that it sagged in the middle.

Oh, yes, the worst people DO have their good points! A wife-beater may be a wonderful bridge player who never quarrels with his partners. A gun-moll may be the soul of kindness to her pet Peke. And even the devil himself may keep cool and refrain from deadly sarcasm when his wife drives him out in the Sunday traffic and stalls the engine!

Moreover, lots of GOOD people have their BAD points. And CAN they be trying!

'Dear Govt.' -:- By Winston Norman

Hon. Jim Farley
BALLOT DEPT
Wash. D. C.

Dear Mr. Farley:

MY Barber has a scheme that would make Mr. Roosevelt a cinch next year. He calls it the Shave-the-Nation Plan, and he told me about it while he was cutting my hair.

His Shave-the-Nation Plan is real interesting. He says:

"The fate of this here country lays in the Barbers Union. Us Barbers can make or break Roosevelt, so if Jim Farley is smart he will put us on the Govt Payroll."

I asked him how Barbers could make a success out of Mr. Roosevelt, and he says:

"All we would do is just give our Customer a Fireside Chat while we trimmed the whiskers off of him. By the way," he says, "How would you like a shave?"

"I don't want no shave," I says.

So he laid me down & begun to shave me. While doing so he says:

"Us Barbers are just like a Mortician, the Customer is always right. I can swing a customer to Roosevelt or anybody else, because when I get 'em in the barber chair, one man's neck looks just like another's to me."

I took a squint at his razor, Mr. Farley, and I seen where his Shave-the-Nation Plan had a real threat behind it. He waived the razor a couple of times and says:

"Well, how about a Shampoo?"

"I don't need no Shampoo," I says.

But he gives me a Shampoo anyhow, and when he turned me loose I owed him $1.85.

Mr. Farley, my barber is the kind of a genius that could make this country take a Shampoo or anything else it diden't need, so he could make it take Mr. Roosevelt again in 1936.

I think you better use his Shave-the-Nation Plan, because when a man climbs in a barber chair he sort of Relaxes and Stops Thinking, and that is the time to sell him a patent hair tonic or a New Deal.

Yours truly,

W. NORMAN,
